FAMILY SHOPPERS AT ART SHOW

Giant Plane Service Due

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union plans to put its supersonic TU144 airliner into service this year, Civil Aviation Minister Boris Bugayev said today.

Success in that endeavor would complete Russia's victory in the supersonic sweepstakes over the Anglo-French Concorde and the shelved American SST — first into the air, first through the sound barrier and first into service.

The official Tass news agency quoted Bugayev summarizing the breakthroughs expected this year in the booming Soviet aviation industry at a conference of top aviation officials.

"The TU154 and IL162, intended for super long-distance non-stop flight, will appear on Aeroflot routes this year," Bugayev said.

"It is also intended to start the operation of the TU144 supersonic liner and the IL176 jet cargo plane." New airports will be built and existing ones reconstructed.

Some foreign aviation experts have doubted that the Soviets would have the scoop-nosed, delta wing jet on passenger routes this year because they have fallen behind production targets so often in the past.

But veterans observers said the decision to fly the plane to the Paris air show May 27 — its first trip out of the country — is a sign the Soviets are Supremely confident it is ready to go on the line.

Bugayev's speech was the first official indication that the plane would operational this year.

They said the plan is to begin using the TU144 this fall for flights from Moscow to Khabarovsk, in Far Eastern Siberia.

If that works smoothly, they said, the plane would be used early next year on the Moscow-Karachi run.

The TU in the plane's name designates its designers, the father-and-son team of Andrei and Alexei Tupolev.

According to figures available in authoritative aviation manuals, the plane has a maximum speed of 1,550 m.p.h. and a range of about 4,000 miles. It has a passenger capacity of 120 to 150.

Soviet officials have said they expect it to cross the Atlantic

Soft Landing On Mars Seen

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet commentators hinted today that the five-ton unmanned Russian spacecraft now outward bound for Mars may be equipped to make a soft landing to look for signs of life—and perhaps even to determine if earthly forms of life could exist on the Red Planet.

The probe dubbed Mars 2 (though Western scientists have reported that at least six previous Russian Mars shots failed) was shot into space Wednesday on a 190-million mile trip that will last six months.

As usual, the Russians kept the details of the mission secret. But Mars 2 weighs five tons—five times as much as any other interplanetary probe either Soviet or American—and this was seen as an indication it might be designed for a soft landing and extended experiments on the surface of Mars.

Now the Russians are hinting that such may indeed be case—though previous shots have shown Mars to be a very cold planet with very little atmosphere.

The official news agency TASS, in a commentary published Friday, said Soviet biologists are convinced that some forms of life can exist in the rigorous conditions of Mars.

"The problem of whether or not there is life on Mars has been agitating mankind for dec-

Volcano Lava Rolls On

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — A stream of lava 1,000 yards wide rolled relentlessly down one side of Mt. Etna Saturday toward scattered and frightened inhabitants on the lower slopes.

Scientists said the incandescent flow was moving toward the villages of Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo at a speed of about 27 feet per hour.

Dozens of men and women again paraded images of the patron Saints Alphius, Cyrinus and Philadelphius to the very edge of approaching lava, praying the fiery flow would stop as it did in 1928 after the saint's statues were paraded.

Several streams that had been headed toward the villages of Sciara and Macchia Di Giarre were reported all but stopped after cutting across roads and melting bridges.

Police manned roadblocks to keep out sightseers who were flooding the area to see the most spectacular and dangerous show at the 10,902-foot volcano since 1928. Officials mapped emergency evacuation plans.

Experts studying the eruption of Europe's tallest and most active volcano, now in its 49th day of activity, said earlier they feared Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo would be engulfed by the end of the month.

The lava, moving in a solid reddish-orange wall, already has destroyed 42 buildings, most of them isolated farm houses above Sant'Alfio, and burned several acres of orchards, crops and wineyards.

"That land was my grandfather's," sobbed farmer Mario Tomarchi, 58. "I was the only one who wanted it. My brothers went to America and became rich. Now I am poorer than ever."

Some of his neighbors were trapped in Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo, unable to return through roadblocks to see if their homes had been destroyed.

The main lava steam was still confined to the dry bed of the Cubania creek and scientists said if it did not overflow the banks, the two villages, which have a combined population of 5,300 might escape untouched.

One small stream passed within 445 feet of Fornazzo, but caused no damage. Another inched along beside it but scientists said it was turning away from the town.

Rogers Eyes Sino Invitations

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William 0. Rogers says he was pleased to learn American groups have issued invitations to Chinese Communist scientists to come to the United States and that he will take a personal interest in processing their applications.

Rogers said Friday the American government would not offer advice on specific invitations or individuals to be invited.

"However, I can assure that in the event that these invitations are accepted and visa applications filed, I will take a personal and sympathetic interest in the speedy processing of those applications," Rogers said.

Nixon Appeals For National Unity

President Accepts New LBJ Library

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —With his Democratic predecessor at his side, President Nixon called today for political partisanship based mainly on principle rather than party affiliation.

Nixon made the appeal in a speech at the dedication of the Lyndon B. Johnson Presidential Library on the University of Texas campus in Austin.

He spoke one week after Johnson, former Democratic President Harry S Truman and many top officials of their administrations lined up behind Nixon in opposition to an effort to cut U. S. troop strength in Europe. The proposal, by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, was defeated by a wide margin on Wednesday.

Nixon did not refer directly to that unusual display of bipartisanship and he stressed in his address that preservation of both the Republican and Democratic parties is essential to the American political system.

"But more and more in today's world, the times require that a President, and indeed all of us who help lead the nation, go beyond party to be partisans of principle," he said.

"For increasingly we confront great concerns that go beyond partisan differences —concerns that reach to the security of our nation, to our hopes for peace in the world, to realizing the American dream here at home in our lives and those of our children —and on these we must be partisans of principle."

Nixon praised Johnson for providing that kind of leadership during his years in the White House and as Democratic leader of the Senate.

The President and his wife Pat flew to Austin from Washington early in the morning with their daughter Julie, her husband,Navy Ensign David Eisenhower, and evangelist Billy Graham. A prepared test of his speech was made available in the capital before he left for Texas.

A crowd of 4,000 turned out at Bergstrom Air Force Base for the presidential party's arrival aboard Air Force One. They cheered and waved signs as Nixon emerged from the plane.

"I hope it rains today and I'm sure President Johnson agrees. That's why I came —to bring rain," Nibon quipped in reference to drought conditions in Southwest states.

The presidential party then boarded a helicopter for a short flight to the University of Texas for the library dedication.

Johnson Gives Big Texas Barbeque

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—President Nixon today accepted on behalf of the people the $18.6 million Lyndon B. Johnson Library, an "extraordinary treasury of insights into a critical period in our nation's history."

Nixon and Johnson, speaking to 3,800 guests and a nationwide television audience, dedicated the largest and costliest memorial ever to an American president.

"On behalf of the people of the United States, I am privileged to accept it," Nixon said. "The American people have reason to be doubly grateful to you today, first for your long lifetime of service, and now for this collection that can take the scholars of future generations behind the scenes of that service."

Nixon and Johnson spoke while 800 Texas Rangers, state troopers, Secret Service agents, city and campus police ringed the library for several blocks to guard against antiwar protesters.

As the former president turned over to the national archives the papers from his almost four decades of public service, Johnson said the work expresses his philosophy that "man can."

"There is no record of a mistake, nothing critical, ugly or unpleasant that is not included in the files here," Johnson said. "I do not know how this period will be regarded in years to come. But that is not the point. This library will show the facts—not just the joy and triumph but the sorrow and failures too."

After the dedication ceremony, Johnson and his wife Ladybird and the 3,800 guests settled down to an outdoor barbeque of 6,000 chickens, 1,000 hot sausage links, 1,500 pounds of ribs, 2,000 pounds of brisket beef, 3,000 fried pies, biscuits, cole slaw and potato salad.

Gaily colored tents were erected for the luncheon on the lawn of the 19-acre library site at the University of Texas.

Antiwar protesters threatened to disrupt the ceremonies. A group of Vietnam veterans said they would try to get through police lines to return medals, citations and "other so'called honors and distinctions."

But the heavy police cordon, led by Texas Rangers with sheathed three-foot-long riot sticks, was set up to keep the protesters away.

Hijinks In Merry Month Of May

Spring came in like a lion this year, not doing much for greenery or girl watchers.

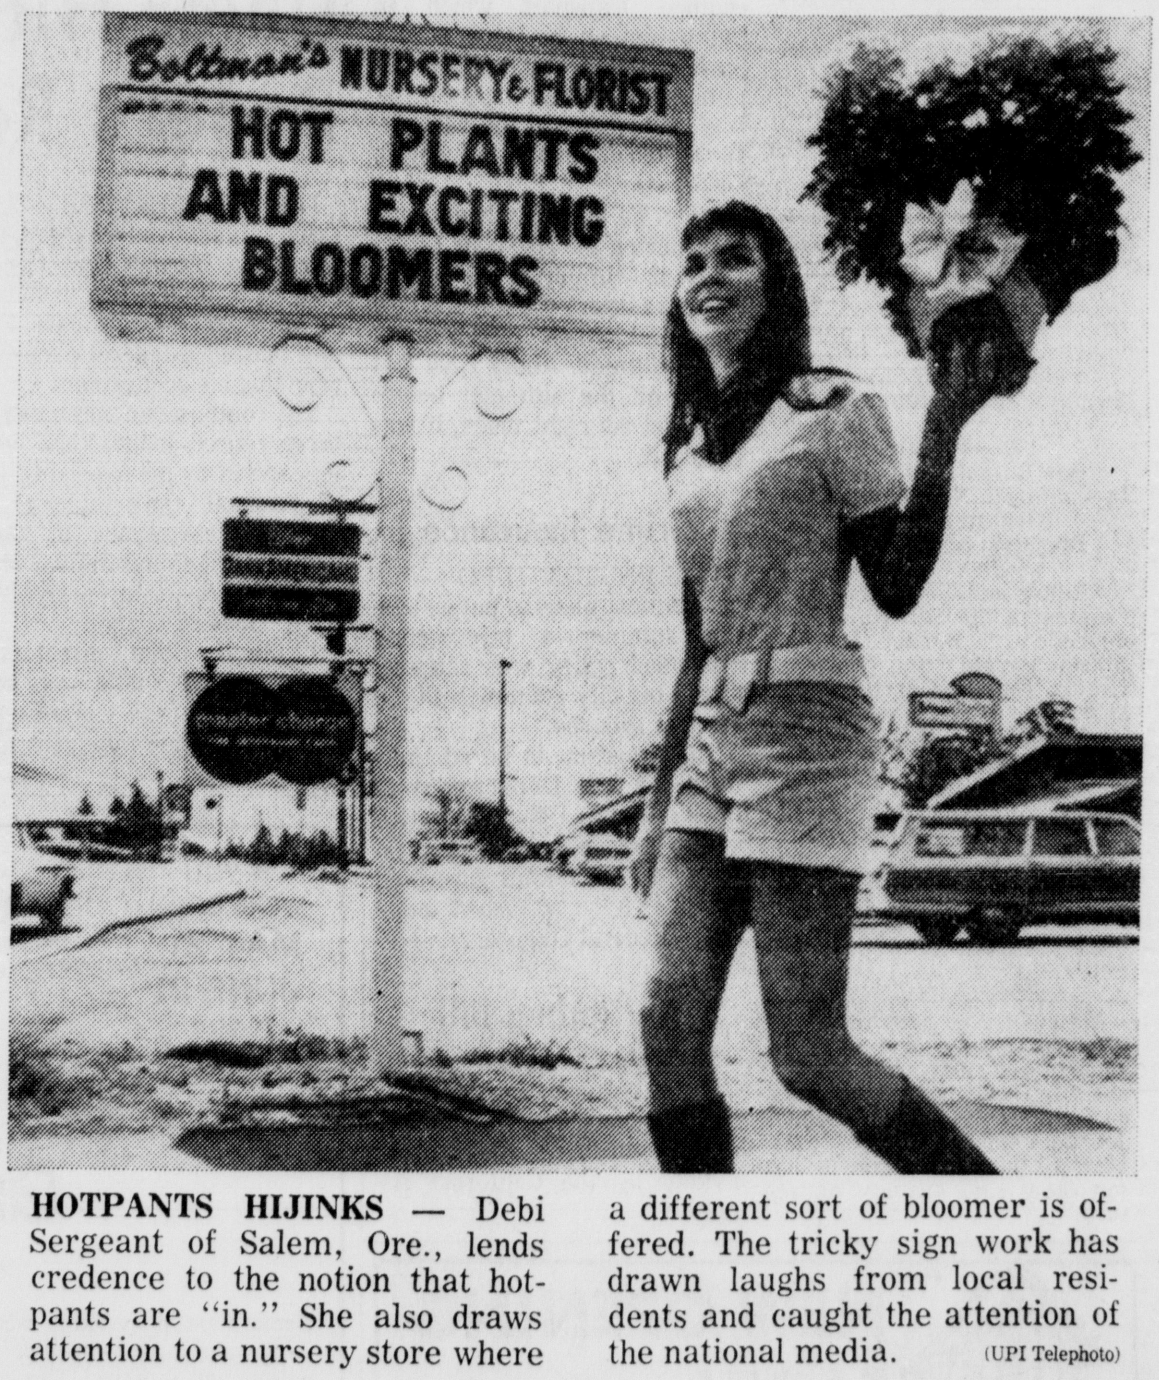
Now, some two months later, the sap has risen in the trees and hot pants are vying with mini skirts as attention getters.

At least one domestic airline has taken cognizance of the latest fashion trend—for ladies, that is. In Chicago Allegheny Airlines announced it will put its stewardesses in hotpants starting June 1.

The girls can either wear red and blue shorts with knee boots or with navy blue panty hose, the airline said. If the girls feel like it they can wear dresses, the airline added. Want to bet?

Clothes, their style, quantity, or quality didn't prevent students at Woodrow Wilson School of Public Affairs, Princeton University from indulging in an annual warmweather ritual. They spent much of the past week jumping in and out of a university-owned fountain generally with their clothes on.

Late spring fever also seized a group of students at Florida Technological University at Orlando — but for a good cause. The students began see-sawing May 11 toward what they hope will be a world's record. They have to continue to May 29th to break the present one. The project was designed to raise money for Pat Landry, a Titusville high school football player who was paralyzed by an injury suffered in a practice session.



HOTPANTS HIJINKS — Debi Sergeant of Salem, Ore., lends credence to the notion that hotpants are "in." She also draws attention to a nursery store where a different sort of bloomer is offered. The tricky sign work has drawn laughs from local residents and caught the attention of the national media. (UPI Telephoto)

Late May also appears to be a time for river events.

Mankato, Minn., will be the scene today for the 2nd annual rubbertized regata river race on the Minnesota River. Racing, with homemade rafts using inner tubes, will involve the city fathers, including the city manager and a city councilman who promises a raft with a crew of 11. Prizes are kegs of beer.

The attendance figure will have to well considerably to compete with what is billed as

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Soldier Ambushed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Extremists ambushed a British Army jeep in the predominately Roman Catholic Cromac Square area of Belfast early today, killing one soldier. A few hours later another military land rover was fired on here and a soldier wounded.

The dead soldier was identified as Cpl. Robert Bankier, 25, of the Royal Green Jacket Battalion. He was the first British servicemen killed in Ulster's current "troubles" since March 10, when three young Scots troopers were mbushed and shot to death.

"The area was all quiet when the patrol went in but a witness told us all of a sudden a lot of firing broke out," an army spokesman said. The assailants escaped.

A short time later, the spokesman said, a machinegunner opened fire from a blue sedan on another army vehicle on a main highway running throught Belfast. A soldier was wounded in the leg and taken to a nearby hospital where his condition was reported "not critical," he said. No arrests were made in this incident either.

Policemen Shot

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two patrolmen were shot to death in Harlem late Friday night in the third attack on policemen in New York City in three days.

The victims, one black and one white, were identified as Waverly Jones, 34, of Manhattan and Joseph Piagentini, 28, of Suffolk County, Long Island. Police said both men entered the police academy on the same day—Aug. 1, 1966.

They were shot from the back as they emerged from an apartment building where they had responded to a call to help a sick person. Police said the call was "legitimate."

The slayers reportedly were waiting in a white Mustang automobile when the officers appeared. Police said the men got out of the car, walked behind the patrolmen and then opened fire.

According to the reports, the assailants continued to fire as the officers lay in the street, then took the policemen's revolvers and sped away in their car.

An all-points bulletin was issued for the apprehension of the two suspects, both Negroes.One was described as a male, about 20 years old, 6-foot-1, 150 pounds, wearing a black hat, a medium Afro hairdo, light mustache, a goatee, black shirt and black pants.

GM Dissidents Lose

DETROIT (UPI) — Management supporters overwhelmingly defeated dissident efforts to force changes at General Motors at the company's annual stockholders meeting after GM pledged to spend $150 million in the fight against exhaust pollution.

Board Chairman James M. Roche announced a commitment "to take the automobile out of air pollution" shortly before the beginning of voting Friday on three proposals put forward by Campaign GM. The group, which owns just 12 of GM's 286 million shares of stock, got even less than the 3 per cent shareholders' support it had hoped for.

The proposal which backers were almost optimistic about because it had the support of several institutional organizations, including the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co. of Philadelphia, received only 2.36 per cent of the shareholder vote.

It would have required GM to disclose in its annual report more details about pollution control, vehicle safety developments, minority hiring and recall campaigns.

Deadline Set

PARIS (UPI) — Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath and French President Georges Pompidou today gave their common market negotiators a' June deadline for agreeing on the details of bringing Britain into the European community.

In two days of talks ending here Friday, Heath and Pompidou cleared away the political roadblocks built up over the years to British entry into the European Common Market. Heath already has set a deadline of Jan. 1, 1973 for Britain's final, formal admission to membership.

Present members are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg.

Trudeau's Big Fall

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (UPI) —Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada took over the controls of his Soviet-built IL62 airliner on the flight from Kiev today and dropped the big jet about 2,200 feet before he learned how to operate them.

Trudeau piloted the four-engined transport which is flying him on his tour of the Soviet Union for about 10 minutes of wobbly flight on the way from Kiev in the Ukraine to Tashkent, capital of Soviet Usbekistan.

When he tried his hand as a pilot during the five-hour flight, the IL62—similar to the British VC10 transport —did a shallow righthand bank and began losing altitude. About 2,200 feet ticked off the altimeter before he found the right touch, it was reported.

Crime Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government plans to put on sale this summer a new crime insurance policy with rates as low in big city ghettos as in the affluent suburbs.

The program, to be administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, goes into effect Aug. 1. Proposed regulations governing the plan were published today in the Federal Register.

Litterbug Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A bill requiring courts to reward persons who turn in convicted litterbugs was passed Friday by the California Assembly.

VIOLENCE AT KENT STATE

Twenty persons were arrested early today when police dispersed a crowd of about 200 student protesters in downtown Kent, Ohio. One student, Robert Kelley, 22, was injured. He is shown above being wrestled to the ground by two policemen. Police said he resisted arrest on a charge of verbal abuse. The police action followed a demonstration held on the Kent State University Commons to "protest repression, violence and jailing of political prisoners. Speakers denounced the police for arresting 63 persons earlier Friday in a sweep through the city's tavern area.

Leftwingers Accused In Capitol Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William J. Poole, investigator for the House Internal Security Committee, says seven communsts were among 53 coordinators of the "spring offensive" antiwar demonstrations.

"I don't think many members of Congress would have endorsed these demonstrations if they had known the extent of communist influence," Committee Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said in reaction to the testimony Friday.

As the committee adjourned its hearings until June, a federal judge enjoined the Public National Bank of Washington from providing the committee with any more records from the accounts of two antiwar organizations —the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice (PCPJ) and the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC).

Ichord promptly accused U.S. District Judge William Jones of "protecting communist membership" and said the injunction would "seriously hinder" the committee's inquiry.

The committee first detailed the roles of communists in NPAC and PCPJ by subpoening bank records on the flow of $205,000 in accounts of the antiwar groups.

Poole testified the seven communists who helped organize the PCPJ demonstrations in late April and early May

Alioto Motion Denied, Trial Set For Jan. 3

SEATTLE (UPI)—A federal judge has sent Jan. 3, 1972, as the trial date for San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and three former Washington state officials accused of conspiring to bribe a public official in a fee-splitting arrangement.

U.S. District Judge William Beeks set the date Friday after denying defense motions for separate trials. Alioto's request for a change of venue to San Francisco also was denied.

A federal grand jury indicted Alioto, former Washington Attorney General John J. O'Connell and George K. Faler, former assistant to O'Connell, on several counts of bribery, conspiracy and fraudulent use of the mails.

Former Pierce County Prosecutor John G. McCutcheon, who shared a Tacoma law office with O'Connell, was charged with concealing the alleged conspiracy.

Beeks agreed to consider motions to dismiss all charges against McCutcheon and two counts of mail fraud against the other defendants. But he denied motions to dimiss the seven conspiracy counts.

Angela Appeal Is Turned Down

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The State Supreme Court Friday turned down a petition by a Philadelphia lawyer to have Angela Davis freed from Marin County Jail on a writ of habeas corpus.

Robert Borden, who filed the writ, said he was acting as a "law clerk" for Miss Davis' co-defendant, Ruchell Magee. It contended Miss Davis had nothing to do with last August's shootout and courtroom escape attempt in San Rafael in which four persons were killed.

Borden said Magee had given him "power of attorney," but an attorney for Miss Davis, Allan Brotsky, said he has never heard of Borden.

The petition was not signed by Miss Davis, a black militant and former UCLA philosophy instructor, and Borden is not a member of the California bar.

The petition appeared to be inconsistent with Magee's legal stalling techniques which have helped keep the murder and conspiracy case at a standstill for months.

In addition to the writ of habeas corpus, Borden said he has also filed a writ in U.S. District Court to have the stalled trial moved to Federal jurisdiction.

Pre-trial hearings under a new judge were scheduled to resume Monday in San Rafael.

Uhler Hits CRLA Panel's Rejection

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state official who charged the California Rural Legal Assistance was improperly involved in the Angela Davis case Friday blasted a federal panel for rejecting his accusations.

The commission, composed of three retired judges, has been empaneled by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity to investigate allegations by Gov. Reagan's administration that the CRLA has improperly used its $1.8 federal budget.

Lewis K. Uhler, director of the state OEO, told a news conference that the commission held preconceived opinions and had been "primed" by federal antipoverty officials before touring California.

That's "abundantly evident," said Uhler, after announcing a boycott of future commission hearings on the CRLA question.

Uhler's office prepared an affadavit charging that CRLA attorneys intervened at Soledad Prison in an attempt to arrange a meeting between an inmate, accused of killing a guard, and Angela Davis.

The commission rejected the affadavit Thursday as "totally unfounded and without merit."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Soldier Ambushed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Extremists ambushed a British Army jeep in the predominately Roman Catholic Cromac Square area of Belfast early today, killing one soldier. A few hours later another military land rover was fired on here and a soldier wounded.

The dead soldier was identified as Cpl. Robert Bankier, 25, of the Royal Green Jacket Battalion. He was the first British servicemen killed in Ulster's current "troubles" since March 10, when three young Scots troopers were mbushed and shot to death.

"The area was all quiet when the patrol went in but a witness told us all of a sudden a lot of firing broke out," an army spokesman said. The assailants escaped.

A short time later, the spokesman said, a machinegunner opened fire from a blue sedan on another army vehicle on a main highway running throught Belfast. A soldier was wounded in the leg and taken to a nearby hospital where his condition was reported "not critical," he said. No arrests were made in this incident either.

Policemen Shot

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two patrolmen were shot to death in Harlem late Friday night in the third attack on policemen in New York City in three days.

The victims, one black and one white, were identified as Waverly Jones, 34, of Manhattan and Joseph Piagentini, 28, of Suffolk County, Long Island. Police said both men entered the police academy on the same day—Aug. 1, 1966.

They were shot from the back as they emerged from an apartment building where they had responded to a call to help a sick person. Police said the call was "legitimate."

The slayers reportedly were waiting in a white Mustang automobile when the officers appeared. Police said the men got out of the car, walked behind the patrolmen and then opened fire.

According to the reports, the assailants continued to fire as the officers lay in the street, then took the policemen's revolvers and sped away in their car.

An all-points bulletin was issued for the apprehension of the two suspects, both Negroes.One was described as a male, about 20 years old, 6-foot-1, 150 pounds, wearing a black hat, a medium Afro hairdo, light mustache, a goatee, black shirt and black pants.

VOLCANO BARRED TO SIGHTSEERS

Police in Sicily today sealed off mountain roads to the river of lava advancing on farming villages from Mount Etna and brought in trucks to help the farmers evacuate their homes. After seven weeks of continual eruptions by the volcano, officials warned the lava could flow through the town of Sant' Alfio in 10 days. More than a dozen farm houses have been destroyed so far in the worst eruption in 43 years. Before police sealed off the roads, thousands of villagers and tourists gathered yesterday to look at the fiery lava flowing down the flopes of the 10,902-foot volcano.

Baptiste Protests Proposal For San Francisco Payroll Tax

Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste yesterday recommended retaliation against San Francisco Administrator Thomas J. Mellon, who proposed last week that San Francisco impose a payroll tax.

Baptiste contends the tax would hurt Marin commuters. As a protest against the proposal, Baptiste said that Mellon should be taken off the screening committee that will help pick a successor to Marin County Administrator Alan Bruce, who has announced his resignation.

Mellon was one of five persons named last Tuesday to screen candidates for the administrator's job.

Baptiste's proposal to oust Mellon will be considered by the board of supervisors Tuesday.

Bruce said he would recommend no retaliatory action against Mellon because this is "not conducive to close San Francisco-Marin relationship."

Draft Protest Prompts New Student Publication

A new student publication is being circulated on the College of Marin campus in answer to what it calls a need for "an alternative media form."

The Better Times published its first issue May 7 and its second Wednesday.

"This paper is not an underground paper," it says in its latest issue. "But rather an alternative media form."

"The time has passed for blowing minds and ranting to the faithful. We intend to seek and point out alternative ways of though and action."

Its staff consists of students Michael A. Glass, Wendi A. Kallins, Michele Tormanen and Spencer Sias. Three of the four were arrested May 4 during a peaceful sit-in at the San Rafael draft board.

"This paper was conceived in the draft action to communicate something we learned from it: That the task of building a decent place in which to live belongs to us all," the paper says.

The new paper is not supported by district funds. The official college paper is the College of Marin Times.

This week's issue includes reports on student "mundialization" activities, the Marin Telephone War Tax Protest group, Senate debate on the draft, state legislation to outlaw hitchhiking and a movie review of antiwar films.

Burton Says Reagan Held Back Benefit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Democratic lawmaker yesterday accused the Reagan administration of illegally with holding since December a $4-a-month Social Security increase to 300,000 elderly and disabled Californians.

Assemblyman John Burton of San Francisco, one of Reagan's most severe critics, accused the governor of invoking a "spurious legal technicality" to avoid making the payment.

He charged the action sets the groundwork for possible court suit and demanded that state Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson "ought to give that $4 back in the next welfare check or he ought to resign his office."

Governor's office spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

At a news conferencen Burton recalled that Congress in 1969 required states to pass on to elderly and disabled Social Security recipients who also received welfare a $4 Social Security increase. s

Burton last year steered through the legislature a bill signed by Reagan requiring California to pass on to such recipients an additional $7.50 Social Security increase. Previously, California had deducted such increases from a recipient's welfare check.

Calling the governor 'Ronnie Ripoff,'' Burton asserted that late in 1970 Reagan "invoked a spurious legal technicality and claimed that the state could include the original $4 guaranteed by federal law as part of the $7.50 guaranteed by state law."

He asserted that contrary to legislative "intention" the welfare department began withholding the $4 from welfare checks. Burton distributed to newsmen an opinion from the legislature's lawyer supporting his contention.

Burton said unless the increase is made, "Gov. Reagan is surely going to see his administration hauled back into court, probably by those legal assistance lawyers, those long-haired young men with attache cases whom he abhors."

Moorer: No Sign Of Soviet Cutback

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff says that despite an "encouraging and hopeful" breakthrough in arms talks, there is no indication that Soviet Union intends to cut back its military buildup.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer said Friday the United States should maintain its defense capability. He said the Soviets were continuing a buildup in such weapons as nuclear missiles, new aircraft, new ground forces equipment, new ships of all kinds and "hundreds of submarines."

Span Panel Backs Bid For Funds

Directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District formally endorsed yesterday applications for almost $20 million in federal grants to help finance its joint ferry and bus system.

Approval came after an outpouring of support in favor of the district's plans, according to Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

Harbor Carriers, private operator of ferry services on San Francisco Bay, and promoters of untested transit systems rejected by the district opposed the applications, Luehring said.

The support, which came at the last of two public hearings on the applications, was expressed by all boards of supervisors in the district, numerous cities, citizen groups and labor unions, Luehring said.

Although the district already has submitted preliminary applications for the grants, the hearings are required by federal law. Luehring said formal applications now will be submitted.

Marin City Show To Be Televised

Plans for an "adventure playground" project at Marin City will be described on a program "UC Up Close" at 3 p.m. tomorrow on Channel 3, according to Kim Vogley, a student at the University of California at Davis who is working on the project.

Miss Vogley said that slides of Marin City will be featured on the television show.

She said that the supervised playground project will be for youngsters 7 to 14 years old and is scheduled to start soon under the auspices of the university with community cooperation.

VOLCANO BARRED TO SIGHTSEERS

Police in Sicily today sealed off mountain roads to the river of lava advancing on farming villages from Mount Etna and brought in trucks to help the farmers evacuate their homes. After seven weeks of continual eruptions by the volcano, officials warned the lava could flow through the town of Sant' Alfio in 10 days. More than a dozen farm houses have been destroyed so far in the worst eruption in 43 years. Before police sealed off the roads, thousands of villagers and tourists gathered yesterday to look at the fiery lava flowing down the flopes of the 10,902-foot volcano.

Baptiste Protests Proposal For San Francisco Payroll Tax

Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste yesterday recommended retaliation against San Francisco Administrator Thomas J. Mellon, who proposed last week that San Francisco impose a payroll tax.

Baptiste contends the tax would hurt Marin commuters. As a protest against the proposal, Baptiste said that Mellon should be taken off the screening committee that will help pick a successor to Marin County Administrator Alan Bruce, who has announced his resignation.

Mellon was one of five persons named last Tuesday to screen candidates for the administrator's job.

Baptiste's proposal to oust Mellon will be considered by the board of supervisors Tuesday.

Bruce said he would recommend no retaliatory action against Mellon because this is "not conducive to close San Francisco-Marin relationship."

Draft Protest Prompts New Student Publication

A new student publication is being circulated on the College of Marin campus in answer to what it calls a need for "an alternative media form."

The Better Times published its first issue May 7 and its second Wednesday.

"This paper is not an underground paper," it says in its latest issue. "But rather an alternative media form."

"The time has passed for blowing minds and ranting to the faithful. We intend to seek and point out alternative ways of though and action."

Its staff consists of students Michael A. Glass, Wendi A. Kallins, Michele Tormanen and Spencer Sias. Three of the four were arrested May 4 during a peaceful sit-in at the San Rafael draft board.

"This paper was conceived in the draft action to communicate something we learned from it: That the task of building a decent place in which to live belongs to us all," the paper says.

The new paper is not supported by district funds. The official college paper is the College of Marin Times.

This week's issue includes reports on student "mundialization" activities, the Marin Telephone War Tax Protest group, Senate debate on the draft, state legislation to outlaw hitchhiking and a movie review of antiwar films.

Burton Says Reagan Held Back Benefit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Democratic lawmaker yesterday accused the Reagan administration of illegally with holding since December a $4-a-month Social Security increase to 300,000 elderly and disabled Californians.

Assemblyman John Burton of San Francisco, one of Reagan's most severe critics, accused the governor of invoking a "spurious legal technicality" to avoid making the payment.

He charged the action sets the groundwork for possible court suit and demanded that state Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson "ought to give that $4 back in the next welfare check or he ought to resign his office."

Governor's office spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

At a news conferencen Burton recalled that Congress in 1969 required states to pass on to elderly and disabled Social Security recipients who also received welfare a $4 Social Security increase.

Burton last year steered through the legislature a bill signed by Reagan requiring California to pass on to such recipients an additional $7.50 Social Security increase. Previously, California had deducted such increases from a recipient's welfare check.

Calling the governor 'Ronnie Ripoff," Burton asserted that late in 1970 Reagan "invoked a spurious legal technicality and claimed that the state could include the original $4 guaranteed by federal law as part of the $7.50 guaranteed by state law."

He asserted that contrary to legislative "intention" the welfare department began withholding the $4 from welfare checks. Burton distributed to newsmen an opinion from the legislature's lawyer supporting his contention.

Burton said unless the increase is made, "Gov. Reagan is surely going to see his administration hauled back into court, probably by those legal assistance lawyers, those long-haired young men with attache cases whom he abhors."

Moorer: No Sign Of Soviet Cutback

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff says that despite an "encouraging and hopeful" breakthrough in arms talks, there is no indication that Soviet Union intends to cut back its military buildup.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer said Friday the United States should maintain its defense capability. He said the Soviets were continuing a buildup in such weapons as nuclear missiles, new aircraft, new ground forces equipment, new ships of all kinds and "hundreds of submarines."

Span Panel Backs Bid For Funds

Directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District formally endorsed yesterday applications for almost $20 million in federal grants to help finance its joint ferry and bus system.

Approval came after an outpouring of support in favor of the district's plans, according to Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

Harbor Carriers, private operator of ferry services on San Francisco Bay, and promoters of untested transit systems rejected by the district opposed the applications, Luehring said.

The support, which came at the last of two public hearings on the applications, was expressed by all boards of supervisors in the district, numerous cities, citizen groups and labor unions, Luehring said.

Although the district already has submitted preliminary applications for the grants, the hearings are required by federal law. Luehring said formal applications now will be submitted.

Marin City Show To Be Televised

Plans for an "adventure playground" project at Marin City will be described on a program "UC Up Close" at 3 p.m. tomorrow on Channel 3, according to Kim Vogley, a student at the University of California at Davis who is working on the project.

Miss Vogley said that slides of Marin City will be featured on the television show.

She said that the supervised playground project will be for youngsters 7 to 14 years old and is scheduled to start soon under the auspices of the university with community cooperation.

POW Wives Fly To Europe To Pressure The Communists

GENEVA (UPI)—A plane load of 173 wives and relatives of U.S. servicemen held prisoner or missing in Indochina, the biggest group ever to visit International Red Cross headquarters, arrived Saturday in a bid to get the Communists to respect the Geneva accords regarding war prisoners.

The kin from 32 states were to meet with Red Cross officials to lend weight to the still unsuccessful efforts of the Red Cross to get North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to permit it to visit POW camps, to release the sick and wounded, to permit the free flow of mail and to give a complete count of the prisoners.

Wednesday, 140 of the wives and relatives plan to fly to Paris and attempt to see representatives of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The mission was arranged by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, in Washington.

Monday, the delegation will see Marcel Naville, president of the International Red Cross.

Mrs. Joan Vinson, national coordinator of the league and in charge of the group, said 140 wives of missing or imprisoned American servicemen were among the group. The others comprised parents, brothers, sisters and older children.

The charter flight cost $300 per person with hotel and meals.

The group was met at Geneva airport by officials of the U.S. Mission in Geneva, including the Ambassador Idar Rimestad.

"We hope to express our concern for all prisoners of war and all those affected by the conflict in Vietnam," Mrs. Vinson said.

more than 1,650 Americans servicemen are listed missing in action or prisoner of war in Indochina, she said.

The first was captured more than seven years ago while many others have been missing or imprisoned for up to six years, she said.

The largest delegation within the group was from Alabama, with 21. There were 13 wives or relatives each from California, Texas and Virginia.

The trip was timed to coincide with a conference at the Red Cross starting Monday on the Geneva war conventions. Governmental experts from 40 countries will attend the conference, although not in an official capacity.

The aim of the conference is to discuss possible ways of rewriting the war conventions in light of modern warfare, especially as regards the treatment of prisoners in civil and undeclared conflicts such as Indochina.

Missing Husband Is Reported Dead

A San Rafael woman, who had given up hope she ever would see her Green Beret husband again, has been notified by the Army that her husband has been officially declared dead in Vietnam.

Capt. James D. Birchim, husband of Barbara Birchim of 39 Knight Drive, had been listed as missing in action after falling from a rescue device while being airlifted from an area that had been under hostile enemy fire.

That occurred in November 1968.

Despite being resigned to the belief her husband was dead, Mrs. Birchim said today she nevertheless was "very surprised" by the Army's action May 10.

She said the board had received no new evidence in her husband's status. "I don't know why they did it now," she said. "There was no warning they were even going to review the case."

A memorial service for Capt. Birchim has been set for 10 a.m. Monday at the post chapel at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Besides his wife, Capt. Birchim leaves two children, Kimberly Ann, 3, and David, 2. He had never seen his son.

Ross Valley Sewer Bid Rejected

The state Water Resources Board has rejected an application by the Ross Valley Sanitary District for state funds to help pay the cost of a sewer project.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, said the Marin agency wanted the state to pay 25 per cent of the $1.25 million cost, but the state board said in Los Angeles Wednesday it could not approve the application because the project failed to meet grant guidelines.

The project involves construction of a pumping station in Kentfield and installation of a line from the station to the district treatment plant.

Noah said construction would begin anyway with $750,000 in district funds, but that completion probably would be delayed a year while the balance is sought, either through a tax increase or a bond issue.

The district board is to open bids on the start of construction at 8 p.m. Monday in the district office.

5 Employees At Hamilton Are Retiring

Five civil service employees at Hamilton Air Force Base, representing more than 125 years of government service, have retired effective May 31.

They were honored recently at retirement ceremonies at the base and awarded certificates of appreciation for their work, the base public information office reported.

Those retiring are:

Millard F. Roberson, a tractor trailer operator at the base motor pool, after 27.5 years of service. He has been with the motor pool at the base since 1955.

Loie V. Moyer, a clerk-stenographer with the office of information, after 15 years of service, at Hamilton since 1956.

Andrew Paulcich, power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 28 years, at Hamilton since February, 1970.

John Miller a supervisory civil engineer with the 466st Civil Engineering Squadron, after 34.5 years.

Lloyd C. Sparks, a power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 20 years, at Hamilton since 1965.

Tam Board To Discuss Controversy

The Tamalpais High School District board agreed today to discuss in open session Monday night controversy surrounding the district's educational program for mentally retarded children.

However, the board said, it would not permit airing of parents' charges against two teachers in the program. That aspect will be taken up in a closed session also set for Monday.

Edward J. Neumeirer, district administrative assistant, said the open session was asked by E. Allen Arnold of Mill Valley, head of a parent group which charges that teachers are inept at their jobs, show little concern for their students and frequently leave students unattended.

In other business at its special meeting today, the board accepted a low bid of $347,450 for construction of the student center at Tamalpais High School. Although the figure is about $34,000 higher than a construction estimate, Neumeier said, the board plans to take the extra funds from a special reserve that contains adequate money for the work.

Low bidder of four was DiGiorgio and Sons, San Rafael.

Mrs. Silva Reported In Good Condition

Marian Silva, wife of former Novato mayor Babe Silva, was reported in good condition today after undergoing major surgery at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame.

The nature of the surgery was not disclosed.

Some children in Milwaukee, aged three to five, some black and some white, decided to do something about the lack of playgrounds with swings.

So Thursday the little demonstrators, accompanied by a few of their mothers, protested before a park commission meeting. They carried signs with slogans such as, "We want trees and grass and a swimming pool in our park'' and "We want trees, slides and bushes." One little tyke simply carried a flower-shaped sign which said, "We want flowers."

And, while some of the tots played tag around the speaker's lecturn and others kept up constant chatter between munching on graham crackers, the commissioners approved the idea of improving the park.

Petaluman Injured In 2-Car Crash

A Petaluma man was injured yesterday in a two-car collision on the Highway 101 exit to Ignacio Boulevard.

Russell C. Crawford, 57, complained of head pains and was treated by a private doctor.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Crawford had slowed his pickup truck to merge with southbound traffic on Ignacio Boulevard at about 1 p.m. when his vehicle was struck from behind by a car driven by Ralph E. Duncan, 23, of Santa Rosa.

Rocket Barrages Hit GI Positions

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist gunners pumped about 40 more rounds of heavy rockets and mortars today into hard-hit Fire Base Charlie 2 and nearby Alpha 4, just south of the Demilitarized Zone where 30 U.S. soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in shelling attacks Friday, American military spokesmen reported.

U.S. fighter—bombers and heavy artillery throughout the day had pounded ''Rocket Ridge," where the Communist firing positions were believed to be located, after the Friday night attacks. But the Communists opened fire again Saturday night, firing nearly 15 rounds of heavy rockets against Charlie 2 and nearly 25 rounds of rockets and mortars at Alpha 4, two miles to the north.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damages in the Saturday night shellings.

The shellings Friday were the most intensive on American bases since Khe Sanh in 1968 and resulted in the worst U.S. casualty toll since 33 Americans were killed and 76 wounded at Fire Base Mary Ann in the Central Highlands last March 28.

The Indochina war flared elsewhere as well. The South Vietnamese command reported a total of 87 Communists killed Thursday and Friday in fighting in and around the embattled A Shau Valley.

In neighboring Cambodia, the high command reported seven Cambodian soldiers killed and 21 wounded Friday morning just south of the Thai border—the worst government casualties in more than a month. It reported 16 Communists were killed.

The U.S. command in Saigon said the Communist rockets that hit the American artillery outpost, Fire Base Charlie 2, at sundown Friday came from inside the DMZ. But Charlie 2's commanding officer said this was not certain.

Charlie 2 is four miles south of the DMZ and the Communist rockets have a range of up to eight miles.

"I'm not sure whether the rockets were fired from within the DMZ or South Vietnam," Lt. Col. Arnold Stallman, 39, of Shenandoah, Va., told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman today.

He said the rockets came from a ridge that starts four miles north of the base and runs on into the DMZ.

"The ridge straddles the DMZ and it's impossible to pinpoint the exact location," Stallman said.

son and his "Great Society" — is the largest and most expensive ever built for an American President.

It will house a 31-million-page collection of documents spanning Johnson's 34-year public service career, as well as an enormous assemblage of photographs, films and tape recordings covering everything from Johnson's flop-eared beagles to the 1969 decision to halt bombing of North Vietnam.

The library will be open to the public beginning Sunday.

In addition to President and Mrs. Nixon and daughter and son-in-law Jue and David Eisenhower, the guest list includes House Speaker Carl Albert, Secretary of State William Rogers, Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, United Nations Ambassador George Bush, Gregory Peck, Hal Molbrook, Van Cliburn, Jose Ferrer, Marion Anderson, Eric Hoffer, Betty Furness and Audrey Meadows.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was invited but declined, saying he had a previous speajing engagement. Other members of the Kennedy family, including Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Ethel Kennedy, also were invited but declined, a Johnson spokesman said.

Another phrase in the commentary raised the further possibility that an attempt will be made to find out if Earth forms of life can live on Mars.

"It is understandable, there, that the first task scientists set before themselves is to find out whether terrestrial microorganisms can adapt themselves to Martian conditions," Tass said.

Experts Say Pot Can Be Disaster For Some Users

NEW YORK (UPI) — Research on the effects of marijuana indicates the drug is not universally harmful but that the excessive use by some persons "can be a disaster," a panel of seven doctors and scientists has asserted.

The panel members, attending a conference yesterday on marijuana sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences, refrained from recommending that marijuana use be legalized, stating that more research was necessary.

However, they were nearly unanimous in saying penalties for marijuana possession should be reduced.

Dr. Reese T. Jones, of San Francisco's Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute, noted that there are "a lot of similarities" between marijuana and alcohol. "But that only worries me more," he said.

Another panel member, Dr. Sidney Cohen of the National Institute of Mental Health, said marijuana might be legalized but cautioned against too much haste. "Once you bring it into the culture," he said, "you'll never be able to get it out."

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM McNAUGHT

Memorial service for William K. McNaught, 66, of Sausalito, a retired mechanical engineer, will be at noon Monday at Christ Episcopal Church, Sausalito.

McNaught died at his home at 37 Miller Avenue Thursday, apparently of natural causes, according to deputy coroner Don Cornish.

He is survived by his wife, Polly; three sons, Thomas, William and Kirk; a brother, Dr. Robert C. McNaught, and two grandchildren.

Memorial contributions are preferred by the family to a favorite charity.

GRACE CHRISTENSEN

Funeral for Grace H. Christensen, 66, of 65 Via Barranca, Greenbrae, was to be held today at the Maneely-Matthews Chapel in San Fraccisco.

Mrs. Christensen, wife of retired building contractor Andrew G. Christensen, died Tuesday at a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Marin County for 30 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Harold Christensen of Tustin, Orange County; two daughters, Virginia Noel of Greenbrae and Shirley Kelso of San Anselmo; a brother, Clair FaMar of Brookings, Ore.; two sisters, Irene Winkfield of Salem, Ore. and Mary Allenby of Brookings; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

LELAND DILLMAN

Funeral for Leland S. Dillman, 77, former San Geronimo Valley resident who died in a Sonoma hospital Thursday after a short illness, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Bates, Evans and Fenrensen Funeral Home, Sonoma.

Dillman was born in Ohio and came to Marin County in 1937. For many years he was an employee of Mare Island Naval Base and later Hamilton Air Force Base, retiring from there about eight years ago. He was a cabinet maker and carpenter.

He moved to Sonoma in 1948 but continued to work at Hamilton until his retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth, of Sonoma; three sons, John G. Dillman of San Rafael and Hugh Edward Dillman and Gerald A. Dillman, both of Sonoma; five daughters, Ruth Ann Johnson and Betty Little of San Rafael, Marion Simpson of Woodacre, Janice Hughes of Chula Vista and Joyce Rubke of Yuba City; a sister, Dorothea Hitch of Richmond, Ind., 35 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

POW Wives Fly To Europe To Pressure The Communists

GENEVA (UPI)—A plane load of 173 wives and relatives of U.S. servicemen held prisoner or missing in Indochina, the biggest group ever to visit International Red Cross headquarters, arrived Saturday in a bid to get the Communists to respect the Geneva accords regarding war prisoners.

The kin from 32 states were to meet with Red Cross officials to lend weight to the still unsuccessful efforts of the Red Cross to get North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to permit it to visit POW camps, to release the sick and wounded, to permit the free flow of mail and to give a complete count of the prisoners.

Wednesday, 140 of the wives and relatives plan to fly to Paris and attempt to see representatives of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The mission was arranged by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, in Washington.

Monday, the delegation will see Marcel Naville, president of the International Red Cross.

Mrs. Joan Vinson, national coordinator of the league and in charge of the group, said 140 wives of missing or imprisoned American servicemen were among the group. The others comprised parents, brothers, sisters and older children.

The charter flight cost $300 per person with hotel and meals.

The group was met at Geneva airport by officials of the U.S. Mission in Geneva, including the Ambassador Idar Rimestad.

"We hope to express our concern for all prisoners of war and all those affected by the conflict in Vietnam," Mrs. Vinson said.

more than 1,650 Americans servicemen are listed missing in action or prisoner of war in Indochina, she said.

The first was captured more than seven years ago while many others have been missing or imprisoned for up to six years, she said.

The largest delegation within the group was from Alabama, with 21. There were 13 wives or relatives each from California, Texas and Virginia.

The trip was timed to coincide with a conference at the Red Cross starting Monday on the Geneva war conventions. Governmental experts from 40 countries will attend the conference, although not in an official capacity.

The aim of the conference is to discuss possible ways of rewriting the war conventions in light of modern warfare, especially as regards the treatment of prisoners in civil and undeclared conflicts such as Indochina.

Missing Husband Is Reported Dead

A San Rafael woman, who had given up hope she ever would see her Green Beret husband again, has been notified by the Army that her husband has been officially declared dead in Vietnam.

Capt. James D. Birchim, husband of Barbara Birchim of 39 Knight Drive, had been listed as missing in action after falling from a rescue device while being airlifted from an area that had been under hostile enemy fire.

That occurred in November 1968.

Despite being resigned to the belief her husband was dead, Mrs. Birchim said today she nevertheless was "very surprised" by the Army's action May 10.

She said the board had received no new evidence in her husband's status. "I don't know why they did it now," she said. "There was no warning they were even going to review the case."

A memorial service for Capt. Birchim has been set for 10 a.m. Monday at the post chapel at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Besides his wife, Capt. Birchim leaves two children, Kimberly Ann, 3, and David, 2. He had never seen his son.

Ross Valley Sewer Bid Rejected

The state Water Resources Board has rejected an application by the Ross Valley Sanitary District for state funds to help pay the cost of a sewer project.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, said the Marin agency wanted the state to pay 25 per cent of the $1.25 million cost, but the state board said in Los Angeles Wednesday it could not approve the application because the project failed to meet grant guidelines.

The project involves construction of a pumping station in Kentfield and installation of a line from the station to the district treatment plant.

Noah said construction would begin anyway with $750,000 in district funds, but that completion probably would be delayed a year while the balance is sought, either through a tax increase or a bond issue.

The district board is to open bids on the start of construction at 8 p.m. Monday in the district office.

5 Employees At Hamilton Are Retiring

Five civil service employees at Hamilton Air Force Base, representing more than 125 years of government service, have retired effective May 31.

They were honored recently at retirement ceremonies at the base and awarded certificates of appreciation for their work, the base public information office reported.

Those retiring are:

Millard F. Roberson, a tractor trailer operator at the base motor pool, after 27.5 years of service. He has been with the motor pool at the base since 1955.

Loie V. Moyer, a clerk-stenographer with the office of information, after 15 years of service, at Hamilton since 1956.

Andrew Paulcich, power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 28 years, at Hamilton since February, 1970.

John Miller a supervisory civil engineer with the 466st Civil Engineering Squadron, after 34.5 years.

Lloyd C. Sparks, a power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 20 years, at Hamilton since 1965.

Tam Board To Discuss Controversy

The Tamalpais High School District board agreed today to discuss in open session Monday night controversy surrounding the district's educational program for mentally retarded children.

However, the board said, it would not permit airing of parents' charges against two teachers in the program. That aspect will be taken up in a closed session also set for Monday.

Edward J. Neumeirer, district administrative assistant, said the open session was asked by E. Allen Arnold of Mill Valley, head of a parent group which charges that teachers are inept at their jobs, show little concern for their students and frequently leave students unattended.

In other business at its special meeting today, the board accepted a low bid of $347,450 for construction of the student center at Tamalpais High School. Although the figure is about $34,000 higher than a construction estimate, Neumeier said, the board plans to take the extra funds from a special reserve that contains adequate money for the work.

Low bidder of four was DiGiorgio and Sons, San Rafael.

Mrs. Silva Reported In Good Condition

Marian Silva, wife of former Novato mayor Babe Silva, was reported in good condition today after undergoing major surgery at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame.

The nature of the surgery was not disclosed.

Some children in Milwaukee, aged three to five, some black and some white, decided to do something about the lack of playgrounds with swings.

So Thursday the little demonstrators, accompanied by a few of their mothers, protested before a park commission meeting. They carried signs with slogans such as, "We want trees and grass and a swimming pool in our park'' and "We want trees, slides and bushes." One little tyke simply carried a flower-shaped sign which said, "We want flowers."

And, while some of the tots played tag around the speaker's lecturn and others kept up constant chatter between munching on graham crackers, the commissioners approved the idea of improving the park.

Petaluman Injured In 2-Car Crash

A Petaluma man was injured yesterday in a two-car collision on the Highway 101 exit to Ignacio Boulevard.

Russell C. Crawford, 57, complained of head pains and was treated by a private doctor.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Crawford had slowed his pickup truck to merge with southbound traffic on Ignacio Boulevard at about 1 p.m. when his vehicle was struck from behind by a car driven by Ralph E. Duncan, 23, of Santa Rosa.

Rocket Barrages Hit GI Positions

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist gunners pumped about 40 more rounds of heavy rockets and mortars today into hard-hit Fire Base Charlie 2 and nearby Alpha 4, just south of the Demilitarized Zone where 30 U.S. soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in shelling attacks Friday, American military spokesmen reported.

U.S. fighter—bombers and heavy artillery throughout the day had pounded ''Rocket Ridge,'' where the Communist firing positions were believed to be located, after the Friday night attacks. But the Communists opened fire again Saturday night, firing nearly 15 rounds of heavy rockets against Charlie 2 and nearly 25 rounds of rockets and mortars at Alpha 4, two miles to the north.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damages in the Saturday night shellings.

The shellings Friday were the most intensive on American bases since Khe Sanh in 1968 and resulted in the worst U.S. casualty toll since 33 Americans were killed and 76 wounded at Fire Base Mary Ann in the Central Highlands last March 28.

The Indochina war flared elsewhere as well. The South Vietnamese command reported a total of 87 Communists killed Thursday and Friday in fighting in and around the embattled A Shau Valley.

In neighboring Cambodia, the high command reported seven Cambodian soldiers killed and 21 wounded Friday morning just south of the Thai border—the worst government casualties in more than a month. It reported 16 Communists were killed.

The U.S. command in Saigon said the Communist rockets that hit the American artillery outpost, Fire Base Charlie 2, at sundown Friday came from inside the DMZ. But Charlie 2's commanding officer said this was not certain.

Charlie 2 is four miles south of the DMZ and the Communist rockets have a range of up to eight miles.

"I'm not sure whether the rockets were fired from within the DMZ or South Vietnam," Lt. Col. Arnold Stallman, 39, of Shenandoah, Va., told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman today.

He said the rockets came from a ridge that starts four miles north of the base and runs on into the DMZ.

"The ridge straddles the DMZ and it's impossible to pinpoint the exact location," Stallman said.

The Soviets have extensive experience in soft landings. The Soviet Venus program placed an instrument capsule on that planet's hot surface. Soviet moon explorers have succeeded not only in making soft landings, but in taking off again with soil samples to carry back to earth.

Luna-17 put a roving, remote control moonmobile on the lunar surface last year. it still is operating.

Experts Say Pot Can Be Disaster For Some Users

NEW YORK (UPI) — Research on the effects of marijuana indicates the drug is not universally harmful but that the excessive use by some persons "can be a disaster," a panel of seven doctors and scientists has asserted.

The panel members, attending a conference yesterday on marijuana sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences, refrained from recommending that marijuana use be legalized, stating that more research was necessary.

However, they were nearly unanimous in saying penalties for marijuana possession should be reduced.

Dr. Reese T. Jones, of San Francisco's Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute, noted that there are "a lot of similarities" between marijuana and alcohol. "But that only worries me more," he said.

Another panel member, Dr. Sidney Cohen of the National Institute of Mental Health, said marijuana might be legalized but cautioned against too much haste. "Once you bring it into the culture," he said, "you'll never be able to get it out."

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM McNAUGHT

Memorial service for William K. McNaught, 66, of Sausalito, a retired mechanical engineer, will be at noon Monday at Christ Episcopal Church, Sausalito.

McNaught died at his home at 37 Miller Avenue Thursday, apparently of natural causes, according to deputy coroner Don Cornish.

He is survived by his wife, Polly; three sons, Thomas, William and Kirk; a brother, Dr. Robert C. McNaught, and two grandchildren.

Memorial contributions are preferred by the family to a favorite charity.

GRACE CHRISTENSEN

Funeral for Grace H. Christensen, 66, of 65 Via Barranca, Greenbrae, was to be held today at the Maneely-Matthews Chapel in San Fraccisco.

Mrs. Christensen, wife of retired building contractor Andrew G. Christensen, died Tuesday at a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Marin County for 30 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Harold Christensen of Tustin, Orange County; two daughters, Virginia Noel of Greenbrae and Shirley Kelso of San Anselmo; a brother, Clair FaMar of Brookings, Ore.; two sisters, Irene Winkfield of Salem, Ore. and Mary Allenby of Brookings; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

LELAND DILLMAN

Funeral for Leland S. Dillman, 77, former San Geronimo Valley resident who died in a Sonoma hospital Thursday after a short illness, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Bates, Evans and Fenrensen Funeral Home, Sonoma.

Dillman was born in Ohio and came to Marin County in 1937. For many years he was an employee of Mare Island Naval Base and later Hamilton Air Force Base, retiring from there about eight years ago. He was a cabinet maker and carpenter.

He moved to Sonoma in 1948 but continued to work at Hamilton until his retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth, of Sonoma; three sons, John G. Dillman of San Rafael and Hugh Edward Dillman and Gerald A. Dillman, both of Sonoma; five daughters, Ruth Ann Johnson and Betty Little of San Rafael, Marion Simpson of Woodacre, Janice Hughes of Chula Vista and Joyce Rubke of Yuba City; a sister, Dorothea Hitch of Richmond, Ind., 35 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Air Board To Implement Initial Smog Alert Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District unanimously went on record yesterday in favor of implementing a temporary smog alert system this fall.

Under the procedure, citizens would be warned when certain pollutants in the air reached levels considered hazardous to health. Depending on the intensity of contaminants and weather factors, the district could impose restrictions — even a ban — on vehicle use and the operation of businesses.

A permanent alert system, similar to one used in Los Angeles, will be required next year by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

In the meantime, directors felt, interim steps aimed at clearing dirty air in critical periods should be adopted. In the Bay Area, the critical smog period is in the fall. The board asked its staff and advisory council to work out alert system criteria.

Milton Feldstein, director of technical services, outlined for the board federal criteria for a warning system, but pointed out the Bay Area district could adopt stricter standards if it wished.

A tougher stance was embraced by board member Dianne Feinstein, a San Francisco supervisor.

The three-stage federal plan called for alert, warning and emergency phases, based on the level in the air of sulfur dioxide, particulate matter, a combination of those two, carbon monoxide, oxidants and nitrogen oxides.

As the intensity of each pollutant grew, and taking into account weather forecasts, various abatement actions could be affected by the district. Under the first, or alert, stage, for instance, the agency would call for a reduction in unnecessary vehicle use and "substantial curtailment and postponement" of production at refineries and other large industries.

The warning phase would mean reduction of all vehicle use and "maximum" curtailment of industry. Under emergency conditons, vehicle use would be prohibited and businesses compelled to close.

Feldstein explained it would take a dangerous rise in only one of the six pollutants to trigger any of the three phases. He said the oxidant level in Bay area air has been known to reach the alert stage during critical smog periods.

In other business, board member Robert W. Hoyer delivered to the board-advisory council workshop session a highly complimentary report of a district critique compiled last year by a group of Stanford University students.

The student report chastised the district for going too slow in the fight against pollution.

Hoyer said the report showed a technical awareness of the district and he praised several sections as "well done."

While taking issue with the "book review" nature of the committee report, Ned Groth, then chiefly responsible for the critique but now a member of the district's advisory council, said he was generally pleased with recent antismog efforts.

The students' report also dealt with personalities and performance of district directors, but Hoyer's committee did not evaluate that phase.

At the time the Stanford report was issued, several directors who had been given unfavorable ratings by the students objected to the treatment.

Students To Ballot At College of Marin

College of Marin students will go to the polls Monday and Tuesday to elect student body officers for the fall semester.

A total of 12 students have announced their candidacy for 10 offices.

Running for president are Kenneth Bott of Mill Valley and Todd Cooley of Corte Madera.

Bott now is student body vice president and plans, if elected, to cut profits at the campus bookstore and pass the saving on to the customer.

He also has called for a new loan service for ex-servicemen entering college to tide them over until they receive their first check under the GI Bill.

"Student government is on the move," he said in his campaign statement. "During the last two semesters I have seen Associated Students of the College of Marin (student government) grow steadily stronger, until finally it is now ready to do some really significant things."

His opponent, Todd Cooley, sums up the situation differently. "Student business has its place, but when student government can't decide whether it should meet on Thursday or on every other Thursday we can't help but feel short changed," he said.

Under his administration, Cooley promises to follow through with the past administration's promises to hold student-sponsored dances.

Other students running for office are: Thomas Estudillo of Tiburon and Gregory C. Fearon of San Rafael for vice president, L. Casey Lamson of Sausalito for secretary, Frank Holloway of Forest Knolls and Tim Nielsen of Ignacio for treasurer, Barbara Lamson of Sausalito for public relations representative, Delana Cochran of Ross and Barbara Kaplan of San Rafael for college center commissioner, Douglas W. Hunt of Sausalito for rallies and assemblies commissioner and Brian Horwitz of San Rafael for spirit and athletic commissioner.

No candidate has filed for either head yell leader or head song leader.

8 Students In Exchange Program

Eight high school students from Marin are scheduled to go abroad under the Youth for Understanding Exchange Student Program, according to Camie Studley, Marin County coordinator for the program.

Students selected thus far for trips to foreign countries are:

Novato High School — Dawn Fiala who will go to Germany.

San Marin High School — Brad Leathers, Switzerland, and Patrick Studley, Sweden.

Sir Francis Drake High School — Cynthis Miller, Finland, and Cecilia Celle, Sweden.

Terra Linda High School — Katherine Kaeppel, France; Doris Zimmerman, Switzerland, and Susan Upshaw, Germany.

Rev. Fenton Kovic of Palo Alto, regional chariman for Youth for Understanding, will conduct an orientation session for the students at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Mrs. Studley's home, 10 Laurie Drive.

To All Firms in Marin County Doing Business Under a Fictitious Name:

All firms operating under a fictitious name for profit will be required to refile their Fictitious Business Name Statement by July 1, 1971, according to Geo. H. Gnoss, County Clerk.

A FICTITIOUS NAME is one that does not include the surname of the operator or one that implies the existence of other owners; or, if a corporation, if it includes a name other than the name given in the articles of incorporation. The filing fee will be $10.

County Clerk Gnoss points out that while the new law does not become effective until July 1, 1971, businesses may refile at any time between January 1, 1971 and June 30, 1971. He urges all businesses affected to comply as soon after January 1, 1971, as possible, to avoid the rush at deadline.

Legal publication of the statement is required if there has been any change in information required in the statement previously filed.

The office of the County Clerk will furnish forms required by the new law.

Ecology Fills Agenda For Mayors

The environment — what's messing it up and how it can be corrected — will fill the major share of the agenda at Wednesday's meeting of the Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

The meeting will be hosted by San Anselmo at the Deer Park Villa on Bolinas Road in Fairfax.

Discussions on aerial advertisement, non-recycleable bottles, and noise are included on the agenda, Ronald E. Bartels. Corte Madera town manager and council secretary reported.

Bartels said officials will discuss posibility of establishing a uniform sound control ordinance if they should decide one is necessary.

Mill Valley officials will report on their efforts to regulate the sale of non-recycleable botties, he said, and a council subcommittee will report on its study of aerial advertising.

MANILA (UPI)—Two Philippine Air Force F86 jet fighters collided in flight Friday and crashed seven miles southeast of Clark Air Base and 75 miles north of Manila, Clark officials said. One pilot was killed.

Marin Women

THEIR GOLDEN wedding will be celebrated tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. William Nave of San Rafael at a reception at the family's Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes in Novato. One of Marin's best known citizens, William Nave was born in Novato and founded numerous businesses there. He and the former Irene Lartigue were married at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa on May 23, 1921.

Golden Anniversary For Naves In Novato

Celebrating 50 years of marriage tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. William Nave will be honored at a reception by 200 of their family and friends at Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes, Novato.

The Naves exchanged vows May 23, 1921, at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa in a double wedding ceremony with his sister Katherine Nave and her husband, Frank Sheldon.

William Nave was born in Novato where the Nave Shopping Center now stands, and, as he describes it, he grew up fast, going into business while still in his teens.

Son of Peter Nave, an immigrant from Genoa, he was born in an eight room house in 1901. As a boy he fished for trout and swam near what is now the Nave Shopping Center. With his two brothers and two sisters, he worked in the orchards and gardens and milked the cows. At home spoke Italian, and learned English during brief schooling and later some night classes. But business intervened with his schooling and by the time Nave was 13 two men worked for him, buying and selling livestock and farm equipment. At 15 he set up a jitney business, meeting trains in Novato at 10 to 25 cents a ride.

He did odd jobs and accumulated money to buy the cars. Then he decided to open the first garage in Novato. It was a day in 1916 that he was motoring along Novato and spotted two girls walking to the train station to ride to San Rafael High School.

Friendly Bill offered them a ride, little guessing that five years later one of them, Irene Lartigue, would become his wife.

In 1919 Nave bought the Bodkin and Loma Verde ranches and soon ran some 800 head of cattle on the various ranches he owned, a total of 2,100 acres.

After they were married Mrs. Nave was to become a cook on some of the ranches and she later worked as a bookeeper, accountant and consultant for the family enterprises.

Still in the cattle business, Nave opened an insurance agency, and then a juke box concession. In 1929 the couple moved to San Rafael with their two young sons, Billy and Bobby. Richard was born the following year.

In the early '30s Nave was appointed loan commissioner for the Federal Land Bank, and it was his job to approve loans to the depression-struck ranchers to the amount of one-and-a-half million dollars.

From 1935 to 1949 he served as deputy assessor for the county of Marin. After he decided to build a bowling alley, since it was becoming more of a family sport, and Nave Lanes was erected in south Novato, near Hamilton Air Force Base. Soon, too, the Nave Shopping Center materialized on the site of his family home.

Nave still owns and is active in management of both, with all the sons, says Rich Nave. He also still enjoys hunting and the sons took him to Montana last year. Occasionally he bowls, too.

Mrs. Nave has continued in club activities, and although she has been in ill health recently, she places her big interest in her 17 grandchildren, who range in age from 22 to 2.

Among the relatives at the reception tomorrow afternoon will be his sisters, Katherine Nave Sheldon and Molly Nave Scott and his brother, Louis Nave, all of Novato. Another brother, Fred Nave, is deceased.

Also attending the reception will be Mrs. Nave's sister, Mrs. Alfred Renger of Novato, and members of the families from the Stockton area and Santa Cruz, and friends from Marin and other parts of the Bay Area.

Registration Opens Monday At YWCA

Registration for YWCA summer activities opens Monday at the San Rafael office, 305 Mission Avenue. A variety of programs are offered.

Island Adventure, a program for 6 to 9 year old boys and girls, from June 21 to July 1 offers activities on Angel Island, including hiking, music, dance, drama, crafts, nature study and the history of the island.

A second two-week session for the same age group will be held July 26 to Aug. 5 at Phoenix Lake park in Ross. Emphasis will be placed on adventure in the woods along the stream.

Cook-outs, special theme days, crafts, music, drama, nature study, hiking and games will be part of the program.

Three to 5 year olds may enroll for day camp. This one morning a week camp will include crafts, music, games and an introduction to ecology through seeing how plants, insects and animals relate in a near-natural setting.

"Day Camp Time," a relaxed program designed especially for children with neurological handicaps, will be offered July 6 to July 23. Indoor and outdoor activities geared to the capacity of the participants will be featured. The program will be assisted by Marin County Day School students trained as aides.

Swimming lessons will be available for 3 to 5 year olds and 6 to 8 year olds, as well as adults and teen-agers.

Pre-school creative dance, horseback riding for boys and girls aged 8 and up, a jazz dance workshop for teens and adults, and adult classes in tennis, golf and yoga are also available.

To register for activities call the Marin YWCA in San Rafael.

THEIR GOLDEN wedding will be celebrated tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. William Nave of San Rafael at a reception at the family's Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes in Novato. One of Marin's best known citizens, William Nave was born in Novato and founded numerous businesses there. He and the former Irene Lartigue were married at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa on May 23, 1921.

Golden Anniversary For Naves In Novato

Celebrating 50 years of marriage tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. William Nave will be honored at a reception by 200 of their family and friends at Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes, Novato.

The Naves exchanged vows May 23, 1921, at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa in a double wedding ceremony with his sister Katherine Nave and her husband, Frank Sheldon.

William Nave was born in Novato where the Nave Shopping Center now stands, and, as he describes it, he grew up fast, going into business while still in his teens.

Son of Peter Nave, an immigrant from Genoa, he was born in an eight room house in 1901. As a boy he fished for trout and swam near what is now the Nave Shopping Center. With his two brothers and two sisters, he worked in the orchards and gardens and milked the cows. At home spoke Italian, and learned English during brief schooling and later some night classes. But business intervened with his schooling and by the time Nave was 13 two men worked for him, buying and selling livestock and farm equipment. At 15 he set up a jitney business, meeting trains in Novato at 10 to 25 cents a ride.

He did odd jobs and accumulated money to buy the cars. Then he decided to open the first garage in Novato. It was a day in 1916 that he was motoring along Novato and spotted two girls walking to the train station to ride to San Rafael High School.

Friendly Bill offered them a ride, little guessing that five years later one of them, Irene Lartigue, would become his wife.

In 1919 Nave bought the Bodkin and Loma Verde ranches and soon ran some 800 head of cattle on the various ranches he owned, a total of 2,100 acres.

After they were married Mrs. Nave was to become a cook on some of the ranches and she later worked as a bookeeper, accountant and consultant for the family enterprises.

Still in the cattle business, Nave opened an insurance agency, and then a juke box concession. In 1929 the couple moved to San Rafael with their two young sons, Billy and Bobby. Richard was born the following year.

Treat A Luxury Fabric As Carefully As Silks, Satins

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice,

I have just finished a lovely wedding gown for my daughter out of Qiana satin. I was very disappointed in this expensive fabric because it showed every mark where I had ripped and restitched a seam, as well as pulled threads where I had hand basted the garment together for a fitting. I thought this new fabric was such a miracle? Mrs. H. B.

Dear Mrs. H. B.:

Qiana is a luxury fabric just as your beautiful silks and satins and must be treated with the very same care. True, it doesn't water spot, it is washable, and it has other plus features, however, you must take the same precautions you would take when making any expensive fabric. You can plan any pattern alterations at this time.

When you machine stitch or hand sew, be sure you have a new, fine, needle that won't pull your threads. I have found that using silk thread for basting, eliminates the marks left by using a heavier thread.

I would also like to remind you not to use knots at the ends of your basting threads. Many times I have watched women pull out their bastings, completely forgetting the knots, and consequently the pulled threads created by the knots. Instead of a knot, just take an extra stitch over the first one, to hold it in place. It is a routine habit that is a good one to acquire.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER: Mrs. John Terelly, Gravenhurst, Ontario is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following sewing suggestion.

"I recently purchased a needle board for pressing velvets and was shocked when I found out how expensive they were. I discussed this with the shop owner and she told me, 'I'd probably find other uses for it!' It wasn't long until I discovered what a needle board is really useful for.

"I do quite a bit of machine and hand knitting and have always found pressing curled edges a tedious task. Now I simply roll the edge of the knitted piece out on the needle board and press. The finished product is much nicer as it doesn't get stretched out of shape and isn't flattened with that hard pressed look. The needle board can also be used for any nubby fabric, napped fabric, and textures besides the original use, velvets!"

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I keep making the same mistake over and over and don't seem to be able to remember until it's too late. I invariably end up with a soiled line right down the center front of a dress or a crease that is so set, I can't possibly remove it. How can this be avoided when almost all patterns call for a center front placed on the fold of the fabric! Mrs. M. S. S.

Dear Mrs. M. S. S.:

Usually, the center front is the only part of a garment that would be placed on the original fold of the fabric. For this piece of the garment only, refold your fabric so that the center front will be placed on the straight grain line, but on a new fold. Your fabric allowance is usually the same. It just takes a minute to replan the pattern layout.

I think with the finish that is put on most fabrics, causing a more permanent crease mark, it would be wise to refold every piece of fabric you make and cut any center front or center back fold on the new fold of the fabric.

Dear Eunice,

Sometimes I feel there are too many products to choose from today. Just as I get used to one brand, something new comes out and confusion sets in. Today's concern is a new brand of zippers that have a covering over the metal teeth. It certainly looks nicer, but does it actually work better? Mrs. L. T.

Dear Mrs. L. T.:

We have worked with the zipper you are referring to. It seems to have the most value when you encounter fabrics that would easily snag on the uncovered teeth of the zipper. They are also especially nice when you are using a center application, rather than the lapped seam type.

You will find in competitive products, there will be good features in most of them. You must decide which one gives you the best service with the least trouble and stick with it for the most part. I must honestly say that we have found less trouble with the lightweight metal zippers than any other type. However, there are patterns that require the invisible zipper or decorative type. You will always have to use your good judgment.

A bikini cover-up, a walking cabana, and a caftan are all gift items you can make from Eunice Farmer's booklet "Boutique Gifts." To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal.

No Accounting Sometimes For Some People's 'Buying Habits'

DEAR HELEN:

Would you believe: This boy lets his girl pay for everything — shows, dinners, entertainment, even his clothes. He is working, she isn't. They are both in college, she on an allowance from home.

She is terribly possessive; he takes it (among other things). She is also cute and talented, so why must she feel it necessary to "own" a guy unworthy of her? — CONCERNED PAL

DEAR PAL:

There's no accounting for some people's "buying habits," but possessiveness I can understand: What you pay for, you expect to "own."

The girl might wake up sooner if her parents would cut the heart out of her allowance (meaning the gigolo fund). — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm sitting here crying. You see, I'm part Puerto Rican, and also have a little Polish blood. And I'm sick of being called "spic" and listening to those sick Polish jokes, or being called a "dumb Polack" (by people who aren't my friends).

I know you can't do much, but please print this to show those idiots they aren't funny. — PROUD AND HURT

DEAR P AND H:

Why don't you suggest that those idiots listen to "All in the Family" on Tuesday night TV? And when they call you "spic," call 'em "Archie." — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm inspired to write this because of all the columns I've read about kids because of their parents, running away, even committing suicide. I can thank my family for not making me one of those kids.

I have a younger brother and two fantastic parents, and we all love each other very much. Of course, there are arguments — quite a few come to think of it — and some seem to be the worst in the world. We've also had our share of problems but the thing that stands out in my mind is that we never really hold grudges. Within an hour, we're friends again.

Friends: That's a word everyone uses for someone his own age. Yet my mother is my best friend — the best a girl could have. Ever since I can remember (I'm 18) we've been having serious discussions. Not just on what outfit to wear, but on important things that touch my generation: boys, drugs, sex, life in general. She never puts me down or is too busy. She talks to me like an adult and an equal, and I'm not afraid to discuss anything with her.

My relationship with my parents and brother must be very rare. We aren't afraid to show love and pride in each other. And I'm so thankful! — JANINE

Care Food Statements Hit

"Many of the current scare statements about food are nonsense, either because the proposition is untrue to start with or because its truth is carried to a ridiculous extreme," says Dr. Jean Mayer, Harvard University professor of nutrition and chairman of the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health.

Dr. Mayer says the idea that fat in cow's milk causes heart disease is nonsense. He suggests eating a varied diet, including as many unprocessed foods as possible, such as meat, fish, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

"Milk and cheese are still the major sources of calcium and contain many essential nutrients," he says.

Miller Newlyweds Take Mexico Honeymoon Trip

On a wedding trip to Mazatlan, Mexico, are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miller (Alice Robinson), who were married May 16 in Stewart Chapel at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson of San Rafael, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Miller of San Rafael.

Maid of honor was Janet Crowhurst of San Rafael, and the bridegroom's sister, Marilynn Miller, and Sharon Peicich of San Rafael were bridesmaids.

Bob Kirby of San Rafael was best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by the bridegroom's brother, Mike Miller of Novato, and Harry Finnerty of San Rafael.

A reception at the Oakview Club at the Meadows in Terra Linda followed the ceremony.

Alice is the sister of Tom Robinson of Virginia Beach, Va. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Robinson of Piedmont and Mrs. Ray Wilson of Berkeley.

Jim is employed by W. C. Garvie Boat Builder in San Rafael. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Mason, all of San Rafael.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Terra Linda High School. They are living in San Rafael.

Miss McLain has been with the bank since 1951.

Friedan Vow On Column For McCalls

Betty Friedan, a founder of the women's liberation movement whose book, "The Feminine Mystique," roasted women's magazines for preaching that mystique, has begun a monthly column in McCall's magazine.

In her first column in the June issue Miss Friedan asserted, "I have no intentions of giving up my revolutionary credentials; I have, in fact, warned them (the editors) that I will be saying things they won't agree with.

"In a nation as big as this, change happens through the mass media. Women have to use it, not just be used by it. The bra burning image which enables people to dismiss us as a silly joke can and must be replaced."

In a swipe at militant women's liberation writers, Miss Friedan added, "I have always been uneasy about the pseudo-radical talk that includes the elimination of men, sex and children among the aims of women's liberation. This makes for kickier headlines than child care centers or abortion reform, but it's just a way of dismissing the whole movement as a dirty joke.

"If liberation, equality, personhood for women is worth fighting for, it can't be at the price of these other goods. Maybe sexual politics are even more anti-women than they are anti-men. Or are they anti-life?" she asks in her column.

Treat A Luxury Fabric As Carefully As Silks, Satins

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice,

I have just finished a lovely wedding gown for my daughter out of Qiana satin. I was very disappointed in this expensive fabric because it showed every mark where I had ripped and restitched a seam, as well as pulled threads where I had hand basted the garment together for a fitting. I thought this new fabric was such a miracle? Mrs. H. B.

Dear Mrs. H. B.:

Qiana is a luxury fabric just as your beautiful silks and satins and must be treated with the very same care. True, it doesn't water spot, it is washable, and it has other plus features, however, you must take the same precautions you would take when making any expensive fabric. You can plan any pattern alterations at this time.

When you machine stitch or hand sew, be sure you have a new, fine, needle that won't pull your threads. I have found that using silk thread for basting, eliminates the marks left by using a heavier thread.

I would also like to remind you not to use knots at the ends of your basting threads. Many times I have watched women pull out their bastings, completely forgetting the knots, and consequently the pulled threads created by the knots. Instead of a knot, just take an extra stitch over the first one, to hold it in place. It is a routine habit that is a good one to acquire.

RAP SESSION

Doctor Cites Nation's Basic Economic Issues

By MARY LEYDECKER
(Last in a series of 24 raps)

In a society which alleviates unemployment by producing supersonic transports, it's not surprising to find heroin used to alleviate personality problems, in the view of Dr. Elmer A. Weden Jr. of Sleepy Hollow.

The 49-year-old surgeon whose many activities include serving as president of the San Anselmo School District board, said that, "We're not getting at the basic problems" in our society.

Dr. Weden, a longtime member of the Henry George School of Social Sciences, saw many of the problems as either purely economic, such as poverty, or economically related, like racism.

"When there are as many black dollars as white dollars, discrimination will taper off if not cease completely," he said.

In an interview in the emergency room at Marin General Hospital where he was interrupted many times by phone calls, the doctor further explained his views.

"The blacks are entirely right when they say "just give us the money to have good schools," he said. "Rather than waste any money on busing," Dr. Weden suggested spending money wherever it is needed to improve schooling for minorities.

He further explained his opinions on economics, saying that people who benefit from public projects ought to pay for them.

"The California Water Plan will enrich land owners whose land will go up in value from $300 to $3,000 an acre; maybe they ought to pay for it," he said.

He called the SST a "blunderbuss" and suggested that persons benefiting from the production of it ought to pay for it, although he added with a smile, "I'm not hung up on the SST, either."

Leaving economics, the doctor turned to youth.

"Sure, there's a generation gap, but it's the same as it's always been," he said.

However, he added later that there is a difference today.

"When we were young there were a lot of easily recognized leaders from 18 to 21 years old," he said.

The leaders were easily recognized, he explained, because they were doing such things as writing for college newspapers and otherwise exerting leadership. "The immature nonleaders were out swallowing goldfish," he said.

"Today the ones who ought to be swallowing goldfish are emulating their leaders and it's hard to tell them apart," he said, explaining young people who take up new movements in a very shallow manner.

As for requests by youth for appointments to governing bodies and lowering of the draft age, Dr. Weden said he abhors young people "using only age as criteria."

As for the voting age, Dr. Weden said "it would seem more rational to raise the voter age," although he thought the ideal solution would be eliminate any age requirement and substitute a "test on knowledge of public affairs."

He readily agreed this would be impractical in today's world where "we're supposed to be getting less discriminatory not more so."

Turning to a discussion of drugs, Dr. Weden said that he thought the "problem peaked about two years ago," adding that he never had seen much use of drugs at Terra Linda High School, where he serves as a team physician.

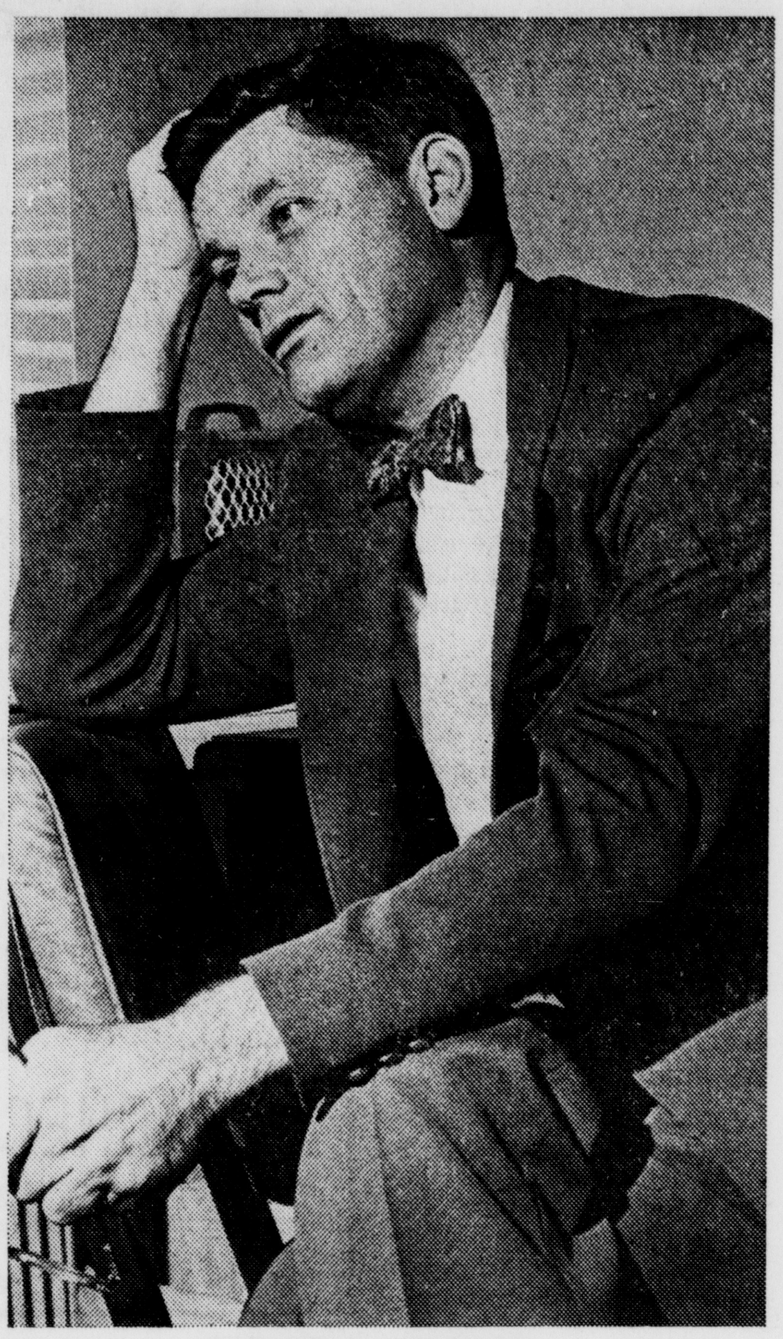
In the emergency room, however, Dr. Weden said that "two years ago people regularly came in screaming and yelling on bad trips from LSD. Now we're seeing some severe heroin problems."

The doctor, who is the father of two teen-age youngsters, concluded his views on today's world by saying, "What good does it do to withdraw?"

"This morning I felt depressed for a while and I thought, 'what I'd really like to do is spend several hours every day playing my banjo,' " he said. (Dr. Weden recently organized a Dixieland band.)

"Then I thought to myself — 'That's just like the kids, except they play guitars.' "

"You can't avoid problems — maybe you can postpone them for awhile — but they'll still be there," he said.



DR. ELMER A. WEDEN JR.
"We're not getting at the basic problems.."

Marin Open Space Outline Due Before County Planning Panel

What areas in Marin should be designated as scenic areas, green belts, and other open spaces will be discussed by the Marin County Planning Commission, meeting Monday at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Albert Solnit, chief of advance planning, and Planner Sol Silver will present a preliminary plan for open space as part of the countywide general plan that is being drafted by the county planning department.

Other items on the planning commission agenda include:

A-20 ZONE — Public hearing on a proposed new A-20 zone, which would allow a variety of agricultural, recreational and open space use but limit homes to one dwelling unit per 20 acres.

TOMALES FARM — Herbert Angress wants to build 62 units of townhouses on 40 acres of his property at 21300 Shoreline Highway, on the east side of Tomales Bay north of Marshall.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — William Wright Jr. will present a master plan for his Del Pantano Industrial Park on 13 acres of land on the north side of Airport Road between Gnoss Field and Highway 101, north of Novato.

LAND DIVISION — Fred Roemer, who owns property at 858 Marin Drive, Tamalpais Valley, wants to create an extra parcel, which was denied by the county planning director.

MELVIN SWIG — Marinwood Community Services District will protest a four-lot land division granted by the county planning director to Melvin Swig, who owns 21 acres on the south side of Lucas Valley Road opposite Mount Shasta Drive. Marinwood services contends the area is too steep, and driveway grades will be excessive.

TOWNHOUSES — Charles D. Parmalee and Floyd Allensby of San Rafael want to build 121 condominium townhouse units on 7.8 acres of land on Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera the railroad tracks.

Four Fined On Drunken Driving

Four persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Wednesday by Judge David Menary Jr. were:

Honor Joyce Lawrence, 57, of San Francisco, arrested Dec. 19 in Corte Madera, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Edward Allan Thompson, 46, of 18 Southridge Drive East, Tiburon, arrested Dec. 28 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $240.

Lee Norman Bryon, 55, of 262 Canal Street, Apt. 431, San Rafael, arrested Oct. 18 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $250.

David Randolph Pashilk, 27, of 608 C Street, San Rafael, arrested Oct. 18 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $125.

THE VAGABOND KING

Longtime Broadway Star, Dennis King, Dies At 73

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dennis King, whose versatility on the Broadway stage enthralled several generations of theatergoers, died late Friday night of a heart condition at the New York University Hospital. He was 73.

King was born on Nov. 2, 1897, in Coventry, England, the son of John Pratt and Elizabeth King Pratt. He assumed his mother's name for stage purposes and, at an early age, began absorbing the invaluable stage training afforded participants of the British repertory system.

In 1919, King made his London debut in "Monsieur Beaucaire." He then traveled to the United States and became a naturalized citizen.

It was soon discovered that King, whose former talents seemingly lay only within dramatic productions, possessed a fine high-baritone singing voice. It was this find which would, in the end, enable King to accept musical as well as dramatic roles on the stage and perform them both with steady brilliance.

On Sept. 2, 1924, he made his Broadway debut as a singing actor in the role of hero Jim Kenyon in "Rose Marie," a rlassic of the age with such Rudolf Friml song hits as "Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie."

And in another Friml musical, "The Vagabond King," King achieved indelible stardom in the role of France's poet-patriot, Francois Villon. He also played D'Artagnan when Florenz Ziegfield decided to produce Friml's musical version of "The Three Muskateers."

King's last Broadway Role was in John Osborne's drama, "A Patriot for Me," in the 1969-70 season. He received a Tony Award nomination for the role.

Four years earlier, he had been elected president of The Players, a club for stage professionals and others associated with the arts that was founded in 1888 by Edwin Booth.

A spokesman for the club said late Friday evening that King suffered a paralytic stroke about a week ago that led to his death.

King is survived by two sons. Funeral arrangements were not immediately announced.

5 Children Rescued From Fire

Five children were rescued from their blazing Terra Linda home early today by a neighbor who was awakened by the fire which destroyed the $25,000 residence.

The fire, which began about 3:10 a.m. near the living room of the four-bedroom home at 724 Del Ganado Road, quickly spread throughout the structure, according to firemen.

The neighbor, Edward Bott, of 714 Del Ganado Road, was awakened by heat from the blaze which scorched homes on both sides of the residence. Firemen said Bott broke a bedroom window to pull the children, who were alone in the house, to safety.

The home was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived.

Names of the children were unavailable and firemen could identify the owner of the home only as a party named Knox.

Cause of the fire, which caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the contents of the house and left only the garage standing, was still under investigation today, firemen said.

Water District Applicant Turns Down Job Offer

The man chosen to head a Marin Municipal Water District improvement district has turned down the job and another candidate will be interviewed.

Dexter Ahlgren of Sunnyvale decided against accepting the position of general manager, the Southern Marin Advisory Committee reported, and another candidate will be interviewed in closed session at 8 p.m. Monday. A recommendation will be made Tuesday to the water district's board of directors.

The advisory committee is composed of one member from each of the district's seven sanitary districts and advises the district board on problems concerning the individual districts.

The improvement district was authorized to make preparatory studies of consolidation of Southern Marin sanitary districts in one district run by Marin Municipal Water District. Excluded at their own request would be Tiburon Sanitary District and the City of Belvedere.

A general business session will follow Monday's interview.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon presented the nation's highest award for science to nine scientists yesterday, expressing hope that their talents soon could be turned "exclusively to peaceful pursuits."

Sandoval Convicted In Slayings

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jaime Sandoval, one-time male nurse in San Rafael, was found guilty yesterday in Superior Court of slaying two of his friends.

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated 11 hours before finding Sandoval, 40, guilty of killing Edelmiro Huertas, 63, and Carmen Acenzio, 36, of San Francisco.

Judge Robert J. Drewes set Wednesday for the start of the penalty phase of the trial.

The victims' bodies were found last May 30 off the Devil's Slide area on the Coast Highway just south of Pacifica.

During the trial, the prosecution contended that the couple was about to evict Sandoval from their home and that he borrowed a .22-caliber rifle which he used to murder them.

It was with Huertas's help that Sandoval, an ex-convict, won his release from San Quentin Prison in 1967. Sandoval had been convicted of molesting the young sons of a Millbrae couple.

The boys' mother, Virginia Douglas, had died earlier in a fall from a cliff in Puerto Rico, and Sandoval was the only witness to the plunge. Ten days later, her husband committed suicide on a Lucas Valley road, leaving a note in which he said he doubted his wife had died accidentally and that he had been bilked of $32,000 by Sandoval.

Guilty Plea To Weapon Charge

Floyd Johnny Broadwell, 18, of Cotati, has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing a sawed-off rifle.

He is to be sentenced July 8.

Broadwell, who earlier pleaded innocent to the charge, was arrested March 22 in a car behind the Patio Car Wash in Corte Madera.

Reagan Angered By Welfare Criticism

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh and Gov. Ronald Reagan's office traded heated accusations Friday as the Indiana Democrat stumped the state for support in nest year's presidential primary.

Bayh, who has his eye on the 1972 Democratic nomination for President, accused both Reagan and President Nixon of making "welfare the most volatile political issue" by claiming that relief rolls "are filled with lazy men and women who do not want to work."

"It's an outright lie," replied a spokesman for the governor. "It's the same kind of lack of concern for the truth and the facts that has spawned the present welfare mess which will surely lead to bankruptcy if the system is not totally reformed."

Bayh said he will introduce legislation to block Reagan from implementing part of his welfare "reform" program by use of special waivers in the federal law. He said it would be "illegal" for the Nixon administration to grant the waivers, but he will push legislation anyway to prevent it from happening.

"President Nixon and Gov. Reagan are trying to make political capital out of human misery by a demagogic misinterpretation of the facts," Bayh told a news conference on the second day of a pre-presidential campaign swing.

Denying that recipients are "lazy," Bayh said 80 per cent are either children, the aged or totally disabled. Most of the rest are eith full-time, mothers, employed or seeking work. Only one-half per cent, he said, "can and should be working."

"But thanks to the economic policies of the Nixon administration," he continued, "they must compete in a job market that has more than 5 million Americans unemployed."

Bayh did, however, "salute" Nixon for his welfare "reform" bill and said it offers "a decided improvement" over the present situation. He said if the plan is enacted, it will "take the governor's welfare 'reform' out of the picture."

Nixon's proposal — criticized by Reagan as too liberal — would provide a $2,400 income floor for a family of four.

"In an unusually strong attack on Reagan from an out-of-stater, Bayh charged "I think Gov. Reagan realizes that the people of the country are fed up on welfare. And instead of suggesting a positive alternative and biting the bullet, he is trying to inflame them and take political advantage of it."

A spokesman for the governor later commented, "he obviously hasn't read our program. Because if he did, he would realize that those on welfare with little or no outside income — those who need assistance the most — would receive an even higher welfare grant than they're now receiving."

Bayh has not formally declared his candidacy and stopped short of doing it Friday.

The Indianan said he believes there is a "possibility" Nixon will not stand for re-election.

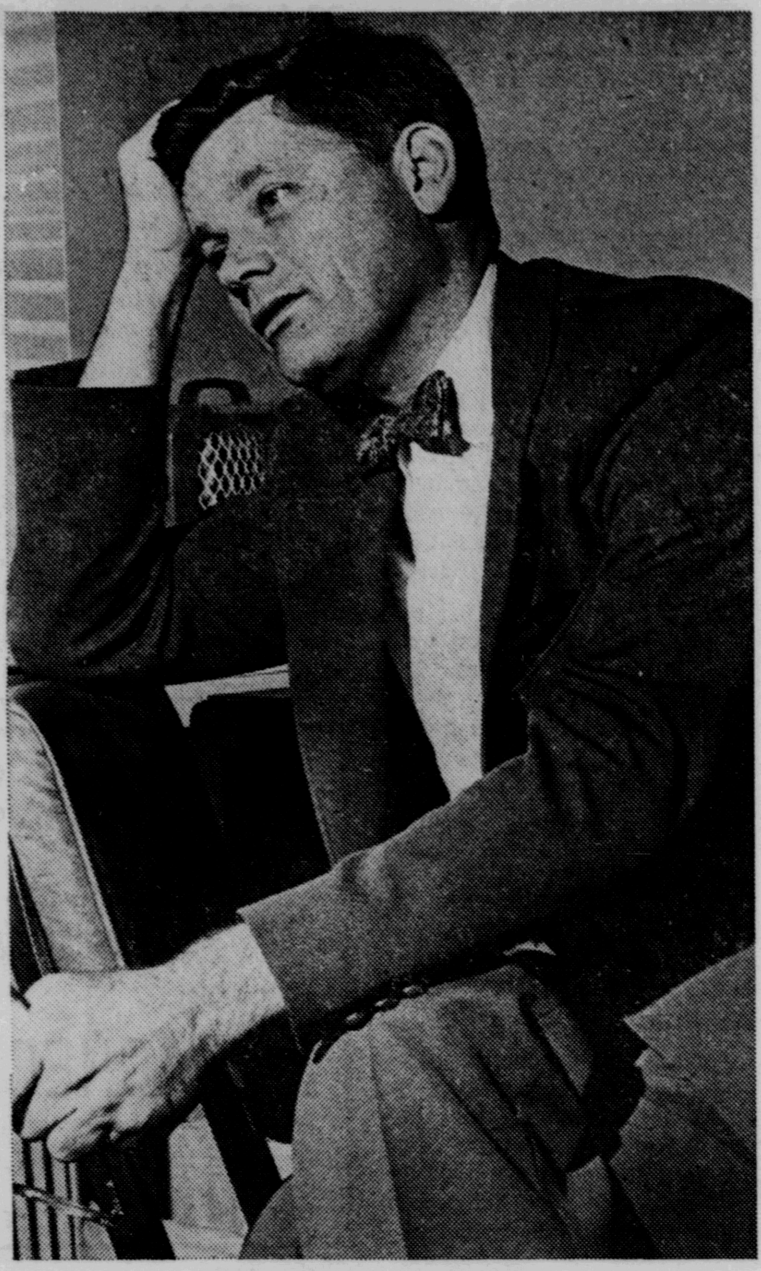
RAP SESSION

Doctor Cites Nation's Basic Economic Issues

By MARY LEYDECKER

(Last in a series of 24 raps)



DR. ELMER A. WEDEN JR.

In a society which alleviates unemployment by producing supersonic transports, it's not surprising to find heroin used to alleviate personality problems, in the view of Dr. Elmer A. Weden Jr. of Sleepy Hollow.

The 49-year-old surgeon whose many activities include serving as president of the San Anselmo School District board, said that, "We're not getting at the basic problems" in our society.

Dr. Weden, a longtime member of the Henry George School of Social Sciences, saw many of the problems as either purely economic, such as poverty, or economically related, like racism.

"When there are as many black dollars as white dollars, discrimination will taper off if not cease completely," he said.

In an interview in the emergency room at Marin General Hospital where he was interrupted many times by phone calls, the doctor further explained his views.

"The blacks are entirely right when they say "just give us the money to have good schools," he said. "Rather than waste any money on busing," Dr. Weden suggested spending money wherever it is needed to improve schooling for minorities.

He further explained his opinions on economics, saying that people who benefit from public projects ought to pay for them.

"The California Water Plan will enrich land owners whose land will go up in value from $300 to $3,000 an acre; maybe they ought to pay for it," he said.

He called the SST a "blunderbuss" and suggested that persons benefiting from the production of it ought to pay for it, although he added with a smile, "I'm not hung up on the SST, either."

Leaving economics, the doctor turned to youth.

"Sure, there's a generation gap, but it's the same as it's always been," he said.

However, he added later that there is a difference today.

"When we were young there were a lot of easily recognized leaders from 18 to 21 years old," he said.

The leaders were easily recognized, he explained, because they were doing such things as writing for college newspapers and otherwise exerting leadership. "The immature nonleaders were out swallowing goldfish," he said.

"Today the ones who ought to be swallowing goldfish are emulating their leaders and it's hard to tell them apart," he said, explaining young people who take up new movements in a very shallow manner.

As for requests by youth for appointments to governing bodies and lowering of the draft age, Dr. Weden said he abhors young people "using only age as criteria."

As for the voting age, Dr. Weden said "it would seem more rational to raise the voter age," although he thought the ideal solution would be eliminate any age requirement and substitute a "test on knowledge of public affairs."

He readily agreed this would be impractical in today's world where "we're supposed to be getting less discriminatory not more so."

Turning to a discussion of drugs, Dr. Weden said that he thought the "problem peaked about two years ago," adding that he never had seen much use of drugs at Terra Linda High School, where he serves as a team physician.

In the emergency room, however, Dr. Weden said that "two years ago people regularly came in screaming and yelling on bad trips from LSD. Now we're seeing some severe heroin problems."

The doctor, who is the father of two teen-age youngsters, concluded his views on today's world by saying, "What good does it do to withdraw?"

"This morning I felt depressed for a while and I thought, 'what I'd really like to do is spend several hours every day playing my banjo,'" he said. (Dr. Weden recently organized a Dixieland band.)

"Then I thought to myself — 'That's just like the kids, except they play guitars.'"

"You can't avoid problems — maybe you can postpone them for awhile — but they'll still be there," he said.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh and Gov. Ronald Reagan's office traded heated accusations Friday as the Indiana Democrat stumped the state for support in nest year's presidential primary.

Bayh, who has his eye on the 1972 Democratic nomination for President, accused both Reagan and President Nixon of making "welfare the most volatile political issue" by claiming that relief rolls "are filled with lazy men and women who do not want to work."

"It's an outright lie," replied a spokesman for the governor. "It's the same kind of lack of concern for the truth and the facts that has spawned the present welfare mess which will surely lead to bankruptcy if the system is not totally reformed."

Bayh said he will introduce legislation to block Reagan from implementing part of his welfare "reform" program by use of special waivers in the federal law. He said it would be "illegal" for the Nixon administration to grant the waivers, but he will push legislation anyway to prevent it from happening.

"President Nixon and Gov. Reagan are trying to make political capital out of human misery by a demagogic misinterpretation of the facts," Bayh told a news conference on the second day of a pre-presidential campaign swing.

Denying that recipients are "lazy," Bayh said 80 per cent are either children, the aged or totally disabled. Most of the rest are eith full-time, mothers, employed or seeking work. Only one-half per cent, he said, "can and should be working."

"But thanks to the economic policies of the Nixon administration," he continued, "they must compete in a job market that has more than 5 million Americans unemployed."

Bayh did, however, "salute" Nixon for his welfare "reform" bill and said it offers "a decided improvement" over the present situation. He said if the plan is enacted, it will "take the governor's welfare 'reform' out of the picture."

Nixon's proposal — criticized by Reagan as too liberal — would provide a $2,400 income floor for a family of four.

"In an unusually strong attack on Reagan from an out-of-stater, Bayh charged "I think Gov. Reagan realizes that the people of the country are fed up on welfare. And instead of suggesting a positive alternative and biting the bullet, he is trying to inflame them and take political advantage of it."

A spokesman for the governor later commented, "he obviously hasn't read our program. Because if he did, he would realize that those on welfare with little or no outside income — those who need assistance the most — would receive an even higher welfare grant than they're now receiving."

Bayh has not formally declared his candidacy and stopped short of doing it Friday.

The Indianan said he believes there is a "possibility" Nixon will not stand for re-election.

Townhouse Plan Due Discussion

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for development of 80 townhouse units in San Marin at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Standard Growth Properties plans to construct the units on the north side of San Marin Drive between San Carlos Way and Simmons Lane.

The commission also will consider a master plan for the Ignacio Boulevard and Alameda Del Prado.

Wrong Booking

A mistake in an Independent-Journal story yesterday made it seem that John Lee Storz of San Anselmo had been booked into Juvenile Hall. Actually, Storz's car was burglarized, and Patrick Shane Myers, 13, of San Anselmo, was booked on suspicion of committing the crime.

Townhouse Plan Due Discussion

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for development of 80 townhouse units in San Marin at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Standard Growth Properties plans to construct the units on the north side of San Marin Drive between San Carlos Way and Simmons Lane.

The commission also will consider a master plan for the Ignacio Boulevard and Alameda Del Prado.

Wrong Booking

A mistake in an Independent-Journal story yesterday made it seem that John Lee Storz of San Anselmo had been booked into Juvenile Hall. Actually, Storz's car was burglarized, and Patrick Shane Myers, 13, of San Anselmo, was booked on suspicion of committing the crime.

SPECIAL SUNDAY SCHOOL — Kathy Dillman (left) and her husband John (right), both students at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry, assist children in a new Sunday School program at Tiburon Baptist Church. The school, launched by Mrs. David B. Friesen of Mill Valley, is designed for the educationally handicapped child and according to Mrs. Friesen has proved highly successful.

TIBURON BAPTIST CHURCH

A Special Sunday School

By GIL GILBREATH
Tiburon Baptist Church

A Sunday School that kids don't want to leave when the time is up — even for Sunday fried chicken?

This may sound like a far cry from the memory verse and golden rule days.

But at the Tiburon Baptist Church there is at least one class that doesn't fit the old mold. Unfortunately, the membership is limited.

No, not to rich kids, or poor kids, or smart or dumb kids. But limited to what the director, Mrs. David B. Friesen, calls "educationally handicapped children." She defines the term as "any child who doesn't seem to fit into regular classes, for one reason or another."

Mrs. Friesen got started in the business of running a specialized Sunday School because of her own adopted 6-year-old Mike, who is deaf and wears a brace on one leg. Mike is a victim of the rubella epidemic that hit expectant mothers in this country in 1964-65.

He is a very sharp and determined little boy who likes to "rough it up" with Mrs. Friesen and who is making rapid progress in lip reading and speech. One of his first phrases was "I love you," in reply to Friesen's "I love you, Mike."

The opportunity to fill such a vital community need came less than a year ago when Tiburon Baptist pastor Dr. Jerry Ashby visited the Friesens after they had attended his church.

Mrs. Friesen lamented the family's problem in going to church because of Mike's difficulty in fitting into the usual children's program — "he was going through a very noisy phase then." (He still has a pair of well-used lungs).

She told the pastor, half in earnest, "It looks like we are just going to have to open up our own church."

"You come to our church and we'll make a place for Mike," Dr. Ashby promised. And the new class was born.

What better director for the new class than Mrs. Friesen? She knew several other families in circumstances similar to hers who were delighted to hear of a church which could serve all their family, or would gladly take their children whether the parents remained or not.

Now the class has six pupils and three assistant teachers. The class for the handicapped meets at the church worship hour so that parents may, if they wish, attend services. John and Kathy Dillman, Golden Gate Seminary students, and Bob Carleton, who is completing a master's degree in psychology at San Francisco State, are extremely helpful and understanding with children.

Each Sunday one or two children from the regular classes (it's a contest to see which ones) join the special class to give us good balance, Mrs. Friesen explains. And, "I never cease to be amazed at how beautifully these little people respond to the particular needs of our handicapped children."

What is it about the class that makes the kids so happy to be in Sunday School?

"We help them to understand that God loves them and that we love them," the leader says. "That's all we can do."

What more, one might ask, is there to be done?

Mrs. Friesen explains further that the program is a "very unstructured" mixture of art work of all kinds, games, stories, "rhythm band" — mostly home-made percussion instruments, and setting the table for snacks: "One little girl who doesn't always participate in activities just loves to set the table."

Mrs. Friesen's know-how with children is not accidental. She and her husband, who live in a vine-covered home at 540 Ethel Street in Mill Valley, have cared for "more than 100" foster children over the last 30 years while rearing two of their own. Even since adopting Mike, they have continued to help care for the County's homeless children when they felt the need demanded it.

Already the "new class" at Tiburon Baptist is outgrowing its space, and they do need a room with an adjoining restroom, but the workers say "The Lord will provide — doesn't He always?"

Consortium Chief Picked

WASHINGTON, D.C. (LC) — Dr. Lloyd E. Sheneman, professor of Christian Education at Lutheran Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa., will become the first director of the Washington Theological Consortium on Sept. 1.

The consortium, comprising all the major Roman Catholic and Protestant theological schools in the Washington area, as well as Gettysburg, was established in 1967 to explore ways of mutual assistance and the development of common programs.

Its coordinating committee, composed of its presidents and deans, announced the selection of Dr. Sheneman as its new director.

Dr. Sheneman, a native of Kansas, holds degrees from the University of Kansas, the Lutheran Seminary at Philadelphia and Yale University.

Since 1964, he has been a member of the faculty at the seminary in Gettysburg. In addition to his teaching responsibilities, he has served for two years as director of field work and for two years as acting dean of the seminary.

LIBERTY, Mo. (UPI)—Clay County Proscutor William S. Brandon said Friday he was surprised his son, Bill, was arrested in a series of Missiouri drug raids coordinated by the prosecutor.

Jacobsen Will Be Installed As Pastor

A celebrative service of worship will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday when the Presbytery of the Redwoods will install the Rev. David C. Jacobsen as pastor of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church.

The service will be followed by a spaghetti dinner prepared and served by Jacobsen.

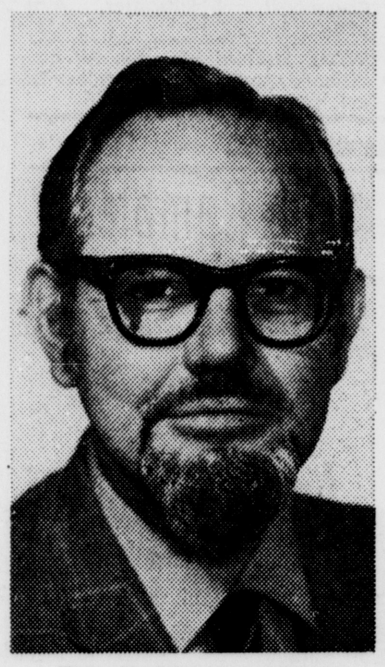
Participating in the ceremonies will be officers of the church, clergy and laymen from other Southern Marin churches, and city officials.

Jacobsen returned to the pulpit as full-time pastor in March on nomination by the congregation after devoting a year to teaching at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo and to a practice in family counseling.

He had served the Sausalito congregation for nine and a half years prior to March 1970.

Jacobsen attended public schools in Los Angeles and graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles. He received his Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1947 from San Francisco Theological Seminary.

During his first two years in Sausalito, he earned his master of theology degree, cum laude, from the seminary. From 1962-68 he was administrative assistant in the departments of field education and pastoral psychology at the seminary.



Rev. DAVID JACOBSEN
To Sausalito post

While on leave from the Sausalito church and the seminary in 1968, Jacobsen served as a visiting professor at Colgate Rochester Divinity School in New York. Since his return to Marin County he has held the position of assistant professor of ministries at the seminary.

Monsignor Dullea To Mark Anniversary

A Jubilee Mass will be celebrated by Msgr. Edward M. Dullea in honor of the 25th anniversary of his ordination tomorrow at St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae.

Since his ordination, Dullea has spent almost his entire career in Marin County and has been principal of Marin Catholic High School since June 1962.

A native of San Francisco, Dullea was graduated from St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, and was ordained at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco on June 15, 1946.

His first assignment was at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, where he served as assistant pastor from July 1946 until June, 1950. He then was in residence for a short time at St. Rita's Church, Fairfax, prior to going to Catholic University, Washington, D.C., for postgraduate work until August 1951.

After returning from Washington, Dullea was assigned to the faculty of Marin Catholic High School from 1951 to 1961, becoming acting principal in 1961 and principal in 1962.

On Feb. 21, 1964 he was conferred monsignor by Pope Paul VI.

The jubilee mass will be held at 2 p.m. and a reception will follow at the Marin Catholic High School.

The various organizations connected with the school — the Marin Catholic Women's Club, the Booster's Club and the Friends of Marin all join together in inviting their members, and all the members of the alumni to attend the mass and reception.

Benefit Concert For Building

A benefit concert for the building fund of the Greenbrae Mormon Church will be presented on May 28 at 8 p.m. in the chapel of the church located at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Bon Air Road.

Performing will be soprano Joan Smith, violinist Donna Salarpi and pianist Janice Gardner.

They will present a program of works by Bach, Mozart, Vivaldi and Rodrigo and arrangements of old favorites by Johann Strauss and Fritz Kreisler.

ALC Women Give $100,000 To Society

NEW YORK (LC) — Thanks to its women's auxiliary, the American Lutheran Church was the third largest giver among 60 communions that supported the work of the American Bible Society in 1970.

The 2.5 million-member ALC's contribution amounted to $134,358, it was reported at the society's 155th annual meeting here, including $100,000 from the American Lutheran Church Women, whose first executive director is now a departmental officer of the ABS.

New Dean At Seminary Announced

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Dr. Claude Welch has been appointed dean of the Graduate Theological Union, effective July 1, it was announced this week.

For the past 11 years, Dr. Welch has been Berg Professor and chairman of the department of religious thought at the University of Pennsylvania.

During the past two years, he has also directed a critical appraisal of all graduate programs in religion in the United States and Canada for the American Council of Learned Societies.

In making the announcement, Dr. John Dillenberger, GTU president, said; "Claude Welch is an excellent administrator with educational vision and with the most thorough knowledge of the educational scene in religion in the U.S."

Welch has been active in theological commissions of the World Council of Churches and more recently a member of the first mixed Catholic and Protestant theological commission dealing with the subjects of apostolicity and catholicity. He is an ordained Methodist minister.

Church Education

SANTIAGO (LFW) — Increased participation in the adult education program of the Protestant Audio-Visual Center (CAVE) in Chile is being planned by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Chile.

AT HUB CHURCH

Arts Festival For Pentecost

An arts festival in celebration of Pentecost will open Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo with an orchestra and organ concert at 8 p.m.

Stephen Golden, violinist with the Kensington Trio, will conduct an orchestra composed of violinists Sue McClees, Mark Jordan, Noriko Sano and James Jenkins; violists Mabel Pittenger and Jean Harris, and cellists Michele Bergman and Chris Jennings.

GUEST ORGANIST

Wilbur F. Russell, professor of music at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be the organist. He will play with the orchestra in the C.P.E. Bach Concerto in E Flat and the allegro from the J.S. Bach Concerto in D Minor for Organ and Orchestra.

Solo organ numbers will be a presentation of Bach's Pentecost chorale, "Komm Gott Heiliger Geist," and Toccata and Fugue in D Minor and six pieces for Mechanical Clock Organ by C. P. E. Bach.

The following evening, at 7:30 p.m., the church's drama workshop will present a pair of one-act plays, directed by Jack Randall.

"Helena's Husband" is a light farce based on the legend of Helen of Troy, and "Santa Claus", a poetic drama by e.e. cummings, is concerned with the battle between life and death and the need for faith in order to overcome the problems of our society.

PENTECOST SUNDAY

On Pentecost Sunday, May 30, the morning worship hour at 10 a.m. will include communion, as well as a special anthem for Pentecost by Richard Felciano, noted Bay Area composer, for electronic tape, organ, and choir.

Following worship, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., there will be a display of original art works by members of 11 Presbyterian congregations in Marin. The exhibit will be in Landon Court.

NEW LEADER — Mrs. Marcus Rohlfs of Seattle, Wash., has been elected president of the American Baptist Convention. Her election came last weekend at the group's annual meeting in Minneapolis.

New Dean At Seminary Announced

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Dr. Claude Welch has been appointed dean of the Graduate Theological Union, effective July 1, it was announced this week.

For the past 11 years, Dr. Welch has been Berg Professor and chairman of the department of religious thought at the University of Pennsylvania.

During the past two years, he has also directed a critical appraisal of all graduate programs in religion in the United States and Canada for the American Council of Learned Societies.

In making the announcement, Dr. John Dillenberger, GTU president, said; "Claude Welch is an excellent administrator with educational vision and with the most thorough knowledge of the educational scene in religion in the U.S."

Welch has been active in theological commissions of the World Council of Churches and more recently a member of the first mixed Catholic and Protestant theological commission dealing with the subjects of apostolicity and catholicity. He is an ordained Methodist minister.

Church Education

SANTIAGO (LFW) — Increased participation in the adult education program of the Protestant Audio-Visual Center (CAVE) in Chile is being planned by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Chile.

AT HUB CHURCH

Arts Festival For Pentecost

An arts festival in celebration of Pentecost will open Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo with an orchestra and organ concert at 8 p.m.

Stephen Golden, violinist with the Kensington Trio, will conduct an orchestra composed of violinists Sue McClees, Mark Jordan, Noriko Sano and James Jenkins; violists Mabel Pittenger and Jean Harris, and cellists Michele Bergman and Chris Jennings.

GUEST ORGANIST

Wilbur F. Russell, professor of music at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be the organist. He will play with the orchestra in the C.P.E. Bach Concerto in E Flat and the allegro from the J.S. Bach Concerto in D Minor for Organ and Orchestra.

Solo organ numbers will be a presentation of Bach's Pentecost chorale, "Komm Gott Heiliger Geist," and Toccata and Fugue in D Minor and six pieces for Mechanical Clock Organ by C. P. E. Bach.

The following evening, at 7:30 p.m., the church's drama workshop will present a pair of one-act plays, directed by Jack Randall.

"Helena's Husband" is a light farce based on the legend of Helen of Troy, and "Santa Claus", a poetic drama by e.e. cummings, is concerned with the battle between life and death and the need for faith in order to overcome the problems of our society.

PENTECOST SUNDAY

On Pentecost Sunday, May 30, the morning worship hour at 10 a.m. will include communion, as well as a special anthem for Pentecost by Richard Felciano, noted Bay Area composer, for electronic tape, organ, and choir.

Following worship, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., there will be a display of original art works by members of 11 Presbyterian congregations in Marin. The exhibit will be in Landon Court.

NEW LEADER — Mrs. Marcus Rohlfs of Seattle, Wash., has been elected president of the American Baptist Convention. Her election came last weekend at the group's annual meeting in Minneapolis.

Director Of Program Will Speak

Dr. Arthur V. Thurman, program director for 400 Northern California Methodist churches, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the 11 a.m. service at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Thurman, who has held his present post since 1969, will speak on "Hope Is A Fact, Too!"

Prior to his present job, he served pastorates in California, Nevada, Indiana and Massachusetts and was district superintendent for Methodist churchs in the South Francisco East Bay from 1961 to 1967. He holds an honorary doctorate of divinity degrees from the University of Pacific and the Pacific School of Religion.

Richard A. Christensen, student associate at the church, will assist Thurman.

Terra Linda Pastor Is Assembly Delegate

Rev. James Upshaw of Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda is serving as a delegate to the United Presbyterian Church, USA, General Assembly currently in session in Rochester, N.Y.

Upshaw is representing the Redwoods Presbytery, a unit of the Synod of the Golden Gate. The assembly will conclude Wednesday.

Storybook Ending As Marin Catholic Wins Title

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season came to a storybook close last night as the upstart Marin Catholic High School Wildcats won the championship, defeating Terra Linda, 7-4, before an overflow crowd of nearly 2,000 persons at San Rafael's Albert Park.

The Wildcats struck for six runs in the third inning to give pitcher Tom Olson, the only senior in the lineup, the support he needed to go the distance for his league-leading seventh win of the year. It was the Kentfield school's 10th victory against three losses, and gave it the flag by one-half game over Novato.

Actually, Marin Catholic took over first place for good by percentage points late yesterday afternoon, when San Rafael handed once-mighty Novato its third loss in the last four games. The Novato Hornets led the MCAL all the way until yesterday, and in fact had a two and one-half game lead on the rest of the league with four games to go.

Even after losing yesterday Novato had a chance to win through the back door — if Terra Linda knocked off Marin Catholic — but the Wildcats had too much momentum, and it seemed as if fate was with them as they won their final six games.

Last night's contest was no contest after the third inning, when 12 Wildcats strode to the plate. Only two hits, a run-scoring double by Don Bianchini and a to left by Mickey Hurley, were recorded during the outburst, but the Trojans ruined themselves with a pair of errors and five walks.

After the second walk of the inning forced in the sixth Wildcat run, Trojan starter Mike Sabel gave way to Scott Seefeldt, who presided over another run before getting out of the inning. Seefeldt, who worked seven and two-thirds innings of no-hit ball on Tuesday, was understandably tired and wild, so Sabel came back under the MCAL's reentry rule in the next inning and finished the game with no further trouble.

Trouble was Olson's middle name as he spent most of the game pitching from the "stretch" position with runners on base. The Trojans never went down in order, and in fact loaded the bases in the last three innings.

But the Trojans couldn't seem to take advantage of their opportunities. It was significant that, although they got their leadoff runner aboard in each of the final four innings, they only brought two around to score.

One was in the seventh, when Bill Sherbert walked to start things. Jerry Seefeldt then hit into an error, Mike Sanderson singled to load the bases, and successive force outs scored Sherbert and Seefeldt.

Sanderson's single was his third hit of the night. He also singled and scored in the second on Jim Codington's first of two doubles, and tripled and scored in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Sable. Marin Catholic's Bianchini also had three hits, and scored a pair of runs.

SWING AND A MISS — Marin Catholic High catcher Paul Riccardi got set to block a low curve ball from pitcher Tom Olson that fooled Terra Linda's Rick Trono in the first inning last night in San Rafael. Olson struck out Trono, and went the distance to bring the Wildcats a 7-4 victory and the Marin County Athletic League baseball championship.

Mays Can Beat The Babe's Home Run Record, Says Fox

HOUSTON (UPI) — Willie Mays will break Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 for a career if he plays three more years, Manager Charlie Fox of the San Francisco Giants said Friday.

Mays, 40, has hit eight homers this season for a career total of 636, second only to Ruth. Fox said Mays is having a tremendous season so far.

He said he rests Mays every so often, but has no set pattern.

"A leprechaun comes and taps me on the shoulder and says maybe I should go talk to him," Fox said. "If I can get 120 games out of him, I'll be satisfied and I hope we can get four or five more years from him. If he goes three more years, he'll break the record."

Fox said Mays probably will play two of the three games in this weekend series with the Houston Astros. He said Mays probably would miss Sunday's game so he could have almost three consecutive days rest. The Giants have an open date Monday and don't play until Tuesday night.

Fox said Mays could prolong his career by playing first base, but "we got a guy named Willie McCovey there."

Mays played first earlier this season when McCovey was injured and Mays loved it, Fox said.

"Put Willie in a new position and he's like a kid with a new toy," Fox said. "He wants to show you he could have played that position all along, too."

Fox said the Giants' outfield of Mays, Ken Henderson and Bobby Bonds with George Foster in reserve for Mays is the best one he has ever seen in baseball.

"All can run, throw and field and hit with power," Fox said.

TOE BE OR NOT TOE BE

Cobbler's Best Friend Hurls Astros Over S.F.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Larry Dierker has an old pair of baseball spikes that most players would throw away, and so would Dierker, normally.

But these shoes are something special to the big Astro righthander even though they have a hole in the pitching toe big enough for the inner sole to slide through. He wore more than an inch off the inner sole in beating the striking San Frnacisco Giants 4-1 Friday night.

"I ain't going to switch shoes while I'm winning," Dierker said. "I'll either wear them 'til they fall apart or 'til i start losing."

Dierker, who has a 7-1 record, may work the cobbler overtime to keep those shoes together. He struck out nine Giants including Willie Mays twice and didn't walk anyone in his latest triumph.

But he needed help from Fred Gladding in the ninth when the Giants loaded the bases on three singles. Gladding an Joe Morgan who turned it into a game ending double play.

The only time the Giants scored off Dierker was in the fourth on singles by Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier and a sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey. They loaded the bases with two out in the seventh but Dierker got pinchhitter Frank Healy, who is hitting .875 by going 7-for-8, to ground out to end the threat.

Norm Miller, in a rare start, lined a bases loaded double over left fielder George Foster's head to highlight a three-run fourth inning for the Astros. Foster turned to the right to catch the ball, but it sliced over his left shoulder to the wall as two runs scored.

Loser Gaylord Perry, 4-2, started the inning by hitting Jesus Alou, and Bob Watson was safe on an error by second baseman Tito Fuentes. John Mayberry walked and Miller drove in Alou and Watson with the double. Mayberry scored on a single by John Edwards.

The Astros scored a run in the third, again with Foster's help. Doug Rader doubled, went to third on a single by Roger Metzger and scored when Foster fumbled the ball.

Don Wilson, 4-2, starts the second game of the series for the Astros tonight against Rich Robertson, 1-2.

FINAL TRIALS

'Bumping' Process Begins For '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Seven spots still open in the lineup for next Saturday's Indianapolis "500" were expected to be filled rather quickly today with the traditional "bumping" to follow.

This is the last weekend for qualifications for the $1 million race, the world's richest auto event. Near-ideal weather conditions were forecast for today and the outlook said any shower activity should not come until after time trials end Sunday.

Once the 33-car field is filled, the "bumping" begins, with faster cars knocking slower ones out of the lineup. Drivers sidelined in this manner still can look elsewhere for a "ride" in hopes of qualifying another machine for the 55th Indianapolis classic.

Among veteran drivers still seeking starting berths were Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., Johnny Rutherford of Forth Worth, Tex., Wally Dallenbach of East Brunswick, N.J., Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., Larry Dickson, Marietta, Ohio, Jim Hurtubise, North Tonawanda, N.Y., George Snider, Bakersfield, Calif., and Arnie Knepper, Belleville, Ill.

San Rafael Jolts Novato Out Of The Championship

Brilliant Pitching Battle

Despite a complete game of no-hit relief by incredibly overworked Dave Judnick, the Novato High School Hornets lost to San Rafael High, 2-1 yesterday to seal their own coffin in the Marin County Athletic League baseball race.

Had they won, the Hornets would have been league champions. But the Bulldogs, and especially John Klingler, played the spoiler role perfectly, to allow Marin Catholic to win the pennant last night by beating Terra Linda. Klingler stopped Novato on three hits, before some 400 fans at Albert Park.

Judnick, who pitched seven innings last Friday night in a loss to Marin Catholic and six and two-thirds innings of relief Tuesday in a win over Redwood, threw possibly the best game of his career, all for naught.

He came on to spell starter Mike Lamb in the bottom of the first, inheriting a bases-loaded situation with nobody out and a run in. Lamb had given up leadoff singles to Dave Urquhart and Jim Thorne, and Dirk Gansloser and Holt Greene had then walked to force home Urquhart.

Judnick fanned the first two men he saw. He let up slightly, walking Pete Treanor to force home Thorne, but then he settled down, and with a blazing fastball and magnificent control, pitched nearly perfect baseball the rest of the way. The only base runner off him was Gary Nelson on a seventh inning base-on-balls.

Klingler, while less amazing, was the best he has been all year, and his teammates gave him some timely defensive support. Double plays with Mike Spezzi in the pivot twice eliminated leadoff runners, and Greene made a diving catch in rightfield to save a run in the top of the seventh.

The Hornets managed only three hits off Klingler — a clean single by Randy Jackson, a double by Art Herrnberger, and an infield hit by John Kidder. Herrnberger scored their only run on a balk in the third inning, when Klingler forgot to

TWIN KILLING — Second baseman Mike Spezzi of San Rafael High made the pivot to force Novato's Jerry Johnson and threw to first in time for a double play yesterday afternoon in the fifth inning at Albert Park. It was the Bulldogs' second twin killing of the game, and helped lead to a 2-1 victory over the Hornets.

Russ Cage Team Tops U.S. Pros

CINCINNATI (UPI)—A touring Russian Olympic basketball team extended its record in the United States to 6-0 Friday night as it beat a team of top pro draft choices in a game where five players fouled out.

The Russians produced three men in double figures as did the Americans, as the visitors scored a 97-85 win. A total of 74 fouls were called through international rules.

Protestors from the Jewish Community Relations Council of Cincinnati paraded outside the Cincinnati Gardens before the game protesting the treatment of Jews in Russia.

Spectators ignored the protestors and no incidents resulted outside.

The only disturbance reported was at the start of the Russian national anthem when four persons in various sections of the Gardens began playing musical instruments. But they were quickly subdued by spectators around them, and guards escorted them away.

Cincinnati Royals top draft choice John Mengelt led the Americans with 27 points, while George Spencer had 12 and Darnel Hillman 11.

Knudson Leads Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Canadian George Knudson, whose back is feeling better these days and who has helped his putting with one of those new-fangled "Potato Masher" putters, seemed to be playing in a daze during Friday's second round of the Colonial National Invitation.

The wind was gusting to 25 miles an hour over the long, tree-laden Colonial Country Club course, sending scores soaring, but Knudson calmly strolled around in a one-under-par 69 for a two-day total of four-under-par 136 and a one-stroke lead over Jack Montgomery.

Then he had the gall to say: "The wind was not really all that bad. I didn't even realize it was blowing."

MRS. BOWMAN IS BEATEN IN CAL GOLF

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — For the second time in as many tries, Mary Elizabeth Shea of Los Angeles is the winner of the California State Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss Shea, the 1969 titlist, carded a birdie two on the 33rd hole at Woodland Hills Country Club Friday for a 5 and 3 victory over defending champion Carol Bowman of San Rafael.

Miss Shea, the tournament medalist, held a 2 up advantage at the halfway point with a four-over-par 76 in the morning round to Mrs. Bowman's 79.

In addition to last year, Mrs. Bowman won the state amateur crown in 1965, 1966 and 1967.

Runaway For A's? Rigney Chuckles

OAKLAND (UPI) —Bill Rigney, the Minnesota Twins manager, laughed when he came to town Friday and read about how the Oakland A's were running away with the American League West race.

And when his team got through whipping the A's 10-1 Friday night behind a four-hitter by 20-year-old Bert Blyleven, Rigney had all he could do to keep from breaking up.

"It's a little foolish," he said, "To start talking about how one team or another has things locked up in May. We have 130 games to go and I'll guarantee you once I get my pitching staff straightened out we'll be right there in the race."

Friday night's victory moved the Twins, who won the A.L. West last year, to within 5-1-2 games of the A's and today the two teams went at it again with Jim Kaat (3-2) pitching for the Twins and Jim Hunter (7-2) for the A's. On Sunday it will be Jim Perry (5-3) against Vida Blue (9-1).

The Twins jumped sore-armed John Odom for three runs on three hits and three walks in the first inning Friday and kept right on rolling against three successors, finishing up with 11 hits, including a pair of homers by the light-hitting George Mitterwald and one by rookie Steve Braun, his first in the big leagues.

Odom, who came off the disabled list on May 8, threw 37 pitches in the first inning before manager Dick Williams felt he saw enough, Rollie Fingers got the final out of the first and pitched through the sixth, giving up three hits and two more runs. The Twins reached Jim Roland for two hits and two runs and Darold Knowles for three hits and three runs to complete the rout.

Blyleven, meanwhile, sailed along serenely. He lost his bid for a no-hitter in the fourth when Reggie Jackson beat out a roller to second. The second hit off him came in the fifth when Dave Duncan outlegged a chopper to third.

In the sixth, Bert Campaneris nailed a high inside fastball for his third homer and Jackson doubled in the ninth for the final Oakland hit.

"It was one of my better games this year," said Blyleven, "but it wasn't my best. I pitched three shutouts before this game but this was the first time I got a lot of hitting help."

In his previous victories Blyleven won by scores of 1-0 twice, 3-2 and 2-0.

Storybook Ending As Marin Catholic Wins Title

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season came to a storybook close last night as the upstart Marin Catholic High School Wildcats won the championship, defeating Terra Linda, 7-4, before an overflow crowd of nearly 2,000 persons at San Rafael's Albert Park.

The Wildcats struck for six runs in the third inning to give pitcher Tom Olson, the only senior in the lineup, the support he needed to go the distance for his league-leading seventh win of the year. It was the Kentfield school's 10th victory against three losses, and gave it the flag by one-half game over Novato.

Actually, Marin Catholic took over first place for good by percentage points late yesterday afternoon, when San Rafael handed once-mighty Novato its third loss in the last four games. The Novato Hornets led the MCAL all the way until yesterday, and in fact had a two and one-half game lead on the rest of the league with four games to go.

Even after losing yesterday Novato had a chance to win through the back door — if Terra Linda knocked off Marin Catholic — but the Wildcats had too much momentum, and it seemed as if fate was with them as they won their final six games.

Last night's contest was no contest after the third inning, when 12 Wildcats strode to the plate. Only two hits, a run-scoring double by Don Bianchini and a to left by Mickey Hurley, were recorded during the outburst, but the Trojans ruined themselves with a pair of errors and five walks.

After the second walk of the inning forced in the sixth Wildcat run, Trojan starter Mike Sabel gave way to Scott Seefeldt, who presided over another run before getting out of the inning. Seefeldt, who worked seven and two-thirds innings of no-hit ball on Tuesday, was understandably tired and wild, so Sabel came back under the MCAL's reentry rule in the next inning and finished the game with no further trouble.

Trouble was Olson's middle name as he spent most of the game pitching from the "stretch" position with runners on base. The Trojans never went down in order, and in fact loaded the bases in the last three innings.

But the Trojans couldn't seem to take advantage of their opportunities. It was significant that, although they got their leadoff runner aboard in each of the final four innings, they only brought two around to score.

One was in the seventh, when Bill Sherbert walked to start things. Jerry Seefeldt then hit into an error, Mike Sanderson singled to load the bases, and successive force outs scored Sherbert and Seefeldt.

Sanderson's single was his third hit of the night. He also singled and scored in the second on Jim Codington's first of two doubles, and tripled and scored in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Sable. Marin Catholic's Bianchini also had three hits, and scored a pair of runs.

Mays Can Beat The Babe's Home Run Record, Says Fox

HOUSTON (UPI) — Willie Mays will break Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 for a career if he plays three more years, Manager Charlie Fox of the San Francisco Giants said Friday.

Mays, 40, has hit eight homers this season for a career total of 636, second only to Ruth. Fox said Mays is having a tremendous season so far.

He said he rests Mays every so often, but has no set pattern.

"A leprechaun comes and taps me on the shoulder and says maybe I should go talk to him," Fox said. "If I can get 120 games out of him, I'll be satisfied and I hope we can get four or five more years from him. If he goes three more years, he'll break the record."

Fox said Mays probably will play two of the three games in this weekend series with the Houston Astros. He said Mays probably would miss Sunday's game so he could have almost three consecutive days rest. The Giants have an open date Monday and don't play until Tuesday night.

Fox said Mays could prolong his career by playing first base, but "we got a guy named Willie McCovey there."

Mays played first earlier this season when McCovey was injured and Mays loved it, Fox said.

"Put Willie in a new position and he's like a kid with a new toy," Fox said. "He wants to show you he could have played that position all along, too."

Fox said the Giants' outfield of Mays, Ken Henderson and Bobby Bonds with George Foster in reserve for Mays is the best one he has ever seen in baseball.

"All can run, throw and field and hit with power," Fox said.

TOE BE OR NOT TOE BE

Cobbler's Best Friend Hurls Astros Over S.F.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Larry Dierker has an old pair of baseball spikes that most players would throw away, and so would Dierker, normally.

But these shoes are something special to the big Astro righthander even though they have a hole in the pitching toe big enough for the inner sole to slide through. He wore more than an inch off the inner sole in beating the striking San Frnacisco Giants 4-1 Friday night.

"I ain't going to switch shoes while I'm winning," Dierker said. "I'll either wear them 'til they fall apart or 'til i start losing."

Dierker, who has a 7-1 record, may work the cobbler overtime to keep those shoes together. He struck out nine Giants including Willie Mays twice and didn't walk anyone in his latest triumph.

But he needed help from Fred Gladding in the ninth when the Giants loaded the bases on three singles. Gladding an Joe Morgan who turned it into a game ending double play.

The only time the Giants scored off Dierker was in the fourth on singles by Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier and a sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey. They loaded the bases with two out in the seventh but Dierker got pinchhitter Frank Healy, who is hitting .875 by going 7-for-8, to ground out to end the threat.

Norm Miller, in a rare start, lined a bases loaded double over left fielder George Foster's head to highlight a three-run fourth inning for the Astros. Foster turned to the right to catch the ball, but it sliced over his left shoulder to the wall as two runs scored.

Loser Gaylord Perry, 4-2, started the inning by hitting Jesus Alou, and Bob Watson was safe on an error by second baseman Tito Fuentes. John Mayberry walked and Miller drove in Alou and Watson with the double. Mayberry scored on a single by John Edwards.

The Astros scored a run in the third, again with Foster's help. Doug Rader doubled, went to third on a single by Roger Metzger and scored when Foster fumbled the ball.

Don Wilson, 4-2, starts the second game of the series for the Astros tonight against Rich Robertson, 1-2.

FINAL TRIALS

'Bumping' Process Begins For '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Seven spots still open in the lineup for next Saturday's Indianapolis "500" were expected to be filled rather quickly today with the traditional "bumping" to follow.

This is the last weekend for qualifications for the $1 million race, the world's richest auto event. Near-ideal weather conditions were forecast for today and the outlook said any shower activity should not come until after time trials end Sunday.

Once the 33-car field is filled, the "bumping" begins, with faster cars knocking slower ones out of the lineup. Drivers sidelined in this manner still can look elsewhere for a "ride" in hopes of qualifying another machine for the 55th Indianapolis classic.

Among veteran drivers still seeking starting berths were Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., Johnny Rutherford of Forth Worth, Tex., Wally Dallenbach of East Brunswick, N.J., Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., Larry Dickson, Marietta, Ohio, Jim Hurtubise, North Tonawanda, N.Y., George Snider, Bakersfield, Calif., and Arnie Knepper, Belleville, Ill.

San Rafael Jolts Novato Out Of The Championship

Brilliant Pitching Battle

Despite a complete game of no-hit relief by incredibly overworked Dave Judnick, the Novato High School Hornets lost to San Rafael High, 2-1 yesterday to seal their own coffin in the Marin County Athletic League baseball race.

Had they won, the Hornets would have been league champions. But the Bulldogs, and especially John Klingler, played the spoiler role perfectly, to allow Marin Catholic to win the pennant last night by beating Terra Linda. Klingler stopped Novato on three hits, before some 400 fans at Albert Park.

Judnick, who pitched seven innings last Friday night in a loss to Marin Catholic and six and two-thirds innings of relief Tuesday in a win over Redwood, threw possibly the best game of his career, all for naught.

He came on to spell starter Mike Lamb in the bottom of the first, inheriting a bases-loaded situation with nobody out and a run in. Lamb had given up leadoff singles to Dave Urquhart and Jim Thorne, and Dirk Gansloser and Holt Greene had then walked to force home Urquhart.

Judnick fanned the first two men he saw. He let up slightly, walking Pete Treanor to force home Thorne, but then he settled down, and with a blazing fastball and magnificent control, pitched nearly perfect baseball the rest of the way. The only base runner off him was Gary Nelson on a seventh inning base-on-balls.

Klingler, while less amazing, was the best he has been all year, and his teammates gave him some timely defensive support. Double plays with Mike Spezzi in the pivot twice eliminated leadoff runners, and Greene made a diving catch in rightfield to save a run in the top of the seventh.

The Hornets managed only three hits off Klingler — a clean single by Randy Jackson, a double by Art Herrnberger, and an infield hit by John Kidder. Herrnberger scored their only run on a balk in the third inning, when Klingler forgot to

TWIN KILLING — Second baseman Mike Spezzi of San Rafael High made the pivot to force Novato's Jerry Johnson and threw to first in time for a double play yesterday afternoon in the fifth inning at Albert Park. It was the Bulldogs' second twin killing of the game, and helped lead to a 2-1 victory over the Hornets.

"I now have control of myself mentally and physically."

The speaker was New York pitcher Nolan Ryan and the occasion was Ryan's fifth victory in six decisions, a 6-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Ryan's self-appraisal says a lot about the past and present performance of the 24-year-old right-hander with an immense amount of potential.

"Nolan throws harder than anyone I've ever seen," says teammate Bob Aspromonte who, when wearing Atlanta and Houston uniforms, had to face the young flame-thrower. "Now he's getting his curve over. he's just over-powering. He's got the potential to win 20 games very, very easily."

Ryan has, in the past, been hampered by a variety of injuries, streaks of wildness, mental lapses and periodic military reserve duty. This year he's free of physical problems, his concentration on the mound is good and, due to reassignment, he hasn't had any military duty of late.

"I've had a lot of ups and downs since I've been in the majors, so I think we'd better wait till the end of the season before deciding whether or not I've finally arrived," said Ryan, who allowed four hits, struck out seven, walked five, hit three and threw two wild pitches in reducing his ERA to 1.26 in 43 innings.

In other National League action, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 7-3, St. Louis took a 15-8 victory over San Diego, Houston defeated San Francisco, 4-1, Pittsburgh downed Montreal 6-2, and Los Angeles pounded out an 8-1 victory over Chicago.

Ryan's streaks of wildness are something he still has to contend with. He walked one and hit two to load the bases in the ninth before Danny Frisella came on to retire Orlando Cepeda on a grounder back to the mound to end the game.

Ken Boswell, Aspromonte and Jerry Grote each drove in a pair of runs and Ed Kranpepool went 3-for-4 to lead the Mets offense.

Dave Concepcion hit his first home run and first double of the season to drive in four runs and Tony Cloninger allowed only three hits in his seven innings on the mound as a last-minute replacement for Jim McGlothlin, who came up with a tender elbow while warming up, as the Reds downed the Phillies.

Jose Cardenal and Joe Torre hit three-run homers in a game marred by nine errors as the Cardinals outhit the Padres 15-13. Ten of the Cardinals' 15 runs were unearned as the Padres had five errors and the Cards four.

Willie Stargell's three-run homer with one out in the 13th inning, his 14th of the year, lifted the Pirates past the Expos for the fifth victory in the last six games for Pittsburgh.

Jim Lefevbre's two-run single capped a four-run third-inning rally that highlighted the Dodgers' victory over the Cubs as Claude Osteen went the route for the sixth time this season and improved his record to 6-2.

Redwood High Soph Sparks Giants To Win Over Tam

By PAUL CANE

The Redwood High School baseball team, led by the three-for-four hitting of sophomore Mike Connor, soundly dumped the Tamalpais Indians 9-3 yesterday in a somewhat lackadaisical Marin County Athletic League contest in Larkspur.

Center-fielder Connor, batting cleanup for the Giants, pounded three sharp singles to pace the Redwood attack.

Although the Indians drew first blood on two singles, a stolen base and an error in the top of the first inning, the Giants tallied three times in the second and four times in the third to wrap up their seventh MCAL win of the year.

Winning pitcher John Moresco helped himself in the second by knocking a line single to right-center field to score Bob Brown and Daryl Edralin for two Giant runs.

Tam's right fielder Clifford Hall collected two base hits and scored a pair of runs to highlight Indian scoring, while catcher Bill Rudolph picked up all three of Tam's runs-batted-in on two singles.

In the four-run third frame, Redwood collected only two hits, one by Connor and the other by shortstop Scott Barrie, but the Giants parlayed two Tam errors, two walks and a sacrifice bunt by Bob Brown into all the runs they were to lead.

Connor, who after an early season slump with the bat, has taken over a large part of Giant hitting duties, tallied two Redwood runs and stole a base to complete a fine afternoon's work on the last day of the 1971 MCAL season.

Tam, which finished 2-11 won-lost on the year, was unable to relieve tiring starter Mark Dawson in the later innings due to lack of manpower. Dawson was victimized in part by the six errors and nine of his own bases on balls.

Drake Star Blanks San Marin By 6-0

Pitching perhaps the finest game of his life, Drake High School's senior Moundsman Lex Rzepilia shut out the San Marin Mustangs on two hits yesterday to close out his high school career, as the 1971 Marin County Athletic League baseball season closed yesterday in Novato.

Rzepilia scattered two harmless singles from Jim Thompson and Steve Burnam as the Pirates blanked the Mustangs 6-0.

Drake scored quickly in the first and coasted the rest of the way under wraps as catcher Mike Bauman and left fielder John Loane smashed back-to-back doubles, followed by a costly error on second baseman Mike Bacho to tally two runs in the opening inning.

While Rzepilia was in the process of striking out eight against only a single base on balls, the Pirates went merrily on to score another run in the fourth and three in the sixth for the win, Rzepilia's fourth of the MCAL campaign.

senior first baseman Dave MacAusland ignited the three run rally in the sixth with a triple, and mark Shepherd dropped a perfect squeeze bunt in the fourth to score Bob Mayer from third for the other Drake run.

Marinite Cracks Homer, But Stanford Defeated

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State defeated Stanford, 4-2, Friday to earn a berth in the Pacific-8 Conference baseball championship finals against the University of Southern California.

The Cougars and Trojans met today. USC could win the title with a win in the first contest, but the Cougars need two wins to take the double elimination tournament.

The Cougars eliminated Stanford from the tournament with a three-run eighth inning rally after the Indians' Dave Edson of San Rafael gave his team an early lead with a solo homer in the opening frame.

The Cougars added an insurance run in the ninth and gave reliefer Ken Kollmyer his third victory against three defeats. Stanford starter Bruce Schoen took the loss, his fourth against five wins.

USC had handed Stanford its first defeat of the tourney earlier Friday with a 9-3 victory. The Trojans' pitcher, Steve Busby, scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning and got help in the later innings.

Redwood Coach Honored

Bob Troppmann, athletic director at Redwood High School for all 13 years of its existence, has been honored with a distinguished servica award by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association, it was announced yesterday.

Troppmann, 47, will receive the award at a dinner June 11 at Atlanta, Ga., where prep coaches from throughout the country will be feted. The dinner is an annual event honoring excellence in coaching major sports - football, basketball, baseball, wrestling and track.

The NHLACA divides the country into eight districts for awards, including the one for distinguished service, and chooses one coach from every district for each catagory. Troppmann's district covers the entire West Coast. The distinguished service award is given for "outstanding achievement, contribution to the high school coaching profession and dedicated loyalty to the highest and best in amateur athletics."

Besides serving as athletic director at the Larkspur school, Troppmann was the football coach there for 12 years before resigning after the 1969 season. He began his coaching career at Richmond High in 1948, and went from there to San Francisco State and then to Drake High in San Anselmo before finally moving to Redwood in 1958.

He is married and has five children, two sons and three daughters. He lives in Corte Madera.

no, who was alone two shots behind Knudson with a two-under-par 138 over the par 35-35—70, 7,142-yard course.

"You could not get the timing down," said Homero Blancas, who shared the first round lead with Knudson before fading to a 73 Friday to be at even par 140. "The wind was swirling. Theoretically, it was behind us on one hole, but I swear it was blowing right in our face."

Behind Knudson's 136, Montgomery's 137 and Trevino's 138, came the twosome of Dave Stockton and Jerry McGee at one-under 139.

In addition to Blancas at 140 were Gene Littler, Ron Cerrudo of Napa and Fred Marti, who played along with Montgomery and finished just before sundown.

Montgomery matched Knudson's 69 Friday while Trevino shot a two-under-par 68 and then rushed off to Dallas to be with his critically-ill mother.

For the second straight day Knudson's putter saved him from a so-so round.

Knudson has switched to an oversize mallet head putter which has a white line drawn through the middle of it to help in sighting putts. He started using the putter three weeks ago, and although he putted terribly at Houston last week he stuck with the new blade this week.

After a super putting day Thursday, Knudson rolled in a 35-footer for a birdie on the 13th hole Friday, an eight-footer on the 15th and an eight-footer on the final hole. Those birds came after he three-putted the first green and bogeyed the 10th after putting his tee shot in the dense trees to the right of the fairway.

"That tee shot on 10 was my only bad shot all day," Knudson said. "I've been having back problems as well as golf problems, and it has just been in the past three weeks that it's felt like it is supposed to."

Now that he is feeling a little better and putting a little better, Knudson expects to move up in the money winnings. He currently ranks 93rd on the money winning list with $9,007.

Esposito, Hull Lead All-Stars

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —Phil Esposito, in the Eastern Divison, and Bobby Hull, in the West, were named Friday as Players of the Year as the Sporting News announced its National Hockey League All-Star teams.

Joining Esposito on the East squad were teammates, Bobby Orr, on defense, Ken Hodge at right wing and John Bucyk on left wing. Also chosen were Montreal's J.C. Tremblay on defense and New York's Ed Giacomin in goal.

Picked along with Hull were fellow Black Hawks Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton, Bill White and Tony Esposito and Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy.

Entries Now Open For Heart Tennis

Entries are now open for next month's third annual Tennis For Heart Tournament, to be played at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow.

The tournament, open to all Marin County residents, is set for June 12-13, and June 19-20, with proceeds going to the Marin County Heart Association. Entry blanks are available from the association.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Red Sox Beat Baltimore At Own Game — Lead By 4

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

It was the kind of game the Baltimore Orioles used to win.

Trailing Jim Lonborg 4-2 going into the ninth inning, the defending World Champions knocked him out and scored the tying run on a wild pitch to send the game into extra innings.

It looked like the Boston Red Sox had blown their chance to get a jump on the Orioles in the opener of a four-game series in Baltimore.

But this isn't 1969 or 1970. In fact, it seems more like 1967. The Red Sox weren't disheartened by the Oriole rally and came right back with four runs in the 10th to grab an 8-4 triumph.

The O's who led the Eastern Division by 5 1-2 games last May 21, now trail Boston by four games. The O's still say they're not worried but it may be time to get a bit concerned.

Boston manager Eddie Kasco, predictably , was beaming after the victory. "This victory meant a lot to our players because it proved three things," Kasco said.

1. "We can come back to beat them."
2. "We can beat them in their own park."
3. "And most important, we can't leave town without being in first place."

There were several good omens for the Red Sox. Loneborg, trying to make a comeback after being sent to the minors at the start of this season, was brilliant in his first start as he allowed just six hits in 8 2-3 innings.

The trades the Sox made over the winter continued to look good, too. Duane Josephson, obtained from Chicago, drove in four runs with a pair of solo homers and a two-run single in the 10th. Ken Tatum, obtained from California, wild pitched in the tying run in the ninth but hung on for the victory.

Things looked bad for the Red Sox in the ninth when Brooks Robinson singled and Dave Johnson doubled him home Clay Dalrymple and wild pitched home the tying run before getting the third out.

But in the 10th Luis Aparicio got life on an error and went to third on Reggie Smith's single. Rico Petrocelli doubled in the tie-breaking run and Josephson's two-run single was good insurance.

In the other A.L. games, Minnesota routed Oakland 10-1, Chicago blanked California 3-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 1-0 and Cleveland outlasted New York 8-7. The Milwaukee-Kansas City game was rained out when Milwaukee was two outs away from a 4-1 victory in the fifth inning.

Tom Bradley pitched a five-hitter for his third shoutout as Chicago downed California. Bill Melton and Tom Egan homered for the Sox.

Dean Chance and Fred Scherman combined on a three-hitter to give Detroit the victory over Cleveland. Chance went 7 2-3 innings for his first victory after six losses and allowed all three hits.

New York took a 7-6 lead in the top of the ninth on Danny Cater's two-out, two-run single but Cleveland came back with run-scoring singles by Eddie Leon and pinch-hitter Gomer Hodge.

Dee Andros Denies New Job Offer

SEATTLE (UPI) —Oregon State football coach Dee Andros has his relatives "all in a dither" about the possibility of his becoming Oklahoma athletic director, but his immediate family looks at it differently.

"There's a lot of ifs and ands," said Andros of the report he is under consideration for the post at his alma mater in Norman, Okla. "I haven't been offered anything and I'm very reluctant to terminate my coaching career at this time. My family has been very happy in Corvallis."

Andros, attending a meeting of Pacific-8 coaches here, is one of six men under consideration for the athletic director post. Another is University of Washington coach Jim Owens.

"My relatives are all in a dither," said Andros. "An Oklahoma City television station announced that I was in Norman for interviews.

"It took me a while to convince them that I hadn't come home without letting them know."

Andros has his mother, Brother Plato, who played with Dee on coach Bud Wilkinson teams of the late 1940s, and "a whole bunch of cousins, aunts and uncles all over the place" in Oklahoma.

Beaver Athletic Director Jim Barratt indicated he would not stand in Andros' way for the Oklahoma job, even though he had a three year contract with OSU.

Joe Nystom pitched a two-hitter and Rich Manteuffel hit a home run and single to lead Suburban Auto of San Rafael to a 3-0 victory over Nite Life of San Francisco last night, giving the Marin County team the championship in the San Francisco Spring Class "A" Softball League.

This marks the sixth consecutive title for the team, the previous five under the sponsorship of Paul Koss Supply Co.

Lu Sharp Bowls 626 And 614

Lu Sharp, 175 average bowler from San Anselmo, had herself quite a week of bowling.

At Greenbrae Lanes she rolled a 626 three-game series and at Nave Lanes in Ignacio she rolled a 614. Her Nave score was high among the women there, but her 626 trailed Bea Hoffmann's 634.

High scores for the men came from Ray Miller, a 699 at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, and Stan Walker, 685 at Greenbrae.

Country Club Bowl has announced it will be closed next Wednesday and Thursday for lane resurfacing.

The week's honor roll:

Met Pitcher Solves His Problems

By United Press International

"I now have control of myself mentally and physically."

The speaker was New York pitcher Nolan Ryan and the occasion was Ryan's fifth victory in six decisions, a 6-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Ryan's self-appraisal says a lot about the past and present performance of the 24-year-old right-hander with an immense amount of potential.

"Nolan throws harder than anyone I've ever seen," says teammate Bob Aspromonte who, when wearing Atlanta and Houston uniforms, had to face the young flame-thrower. "Now he's getting his curve over. he's just over-powering. He's got the potential to win 20 games very, very easily."

Ryan has, in the past, been hampered by a variety of injuries, streaks of wildness, mental lapses and periodic military reserve duty. This year he's free of physical problems, his concentration on the mound is good and, due to reassignment, he hasn't had any military duty of late.

"I've had a lot of ups and downs since I've been in the majors, so I think we'd better wait till the end of the season before deciding whether or not I've finally arrived," said Ryan, who allowed four hits, struck out seven, walked five, hit three and threw two wild pitches in reducing his ERA to 1.26 in 43 innings.

In other National League action, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 7-3, St. Louis took a 15-8 victory over San Diego, Houston defeated San Francisco, 4-1, Pittsburgh downed Montreal 6-2, and Los Angeles pounded out an 8-1 victory over Chicago.

Ryan's streaks of wildness are something he still has to contend with. He walked one and hit two to load the bases in the ninth before Danny Frisella came on to retire Orlando Cepeda on a grounder back to the mound to end the game. Ken Boswell, Aspromonte and Jerry Grote each drove in a pair of runs and Ed Kranpepool went 3-for-4 to lead the Mets offense.

Dave Concepcion hit his first home run and first double of the season to drive in four runs and Tony Cloninger allowed only three hits in his seven innings on the mound as a last-minute replacement for Jim McGlothlin, who came up with a tender elbow while warming up, as the Reds downed the Phillies.

Jose Cardenal and Joe Torre hit three-run homers in a game marred by nine errors as the Cardinals outhit the Padres 15-13. Ten of the Cardinals' 15 runs were unearned as the Padres had five errors and the Cards four.

Willie Stargell's three-run homer with one out in the 13th inning, his 14th of the year, lifted the Pirates past the Expos for the fifth victory in the last six games for Pittsburgh.

Jim Lefevbre's two-run single capped a four-run third-inning rally that highlighted the Dodgers' victory over the Cubs as Claude Osteen went the route for the sixth time this season and improved his record to 6-2.

Redwood High Soph Sparks Giants To Win Over Tam

By PAUL CANE

The Redwood High School baseball team, led by the three-for-four hitting of sophomore Mike Connor, soundly dumped the Tamalpais Indians 9-3 yesterday in a somewhat lackadaisical Marin County Athletic League contest in Larkspur.

Center-fielder Connor, batting cleanup for the Giants, pounded three sharp singles to pace the Redwood attack.

Although the Indians drew first blood on two singles, a stolen base and an error in the top of the first inning, the Giants tallied three times in the second and four times in the third to wrap up their seventh MCAL win of the year.

Winning pitcher John Moresco helped himself in the second by knocking a line single to right-center field to score Bob Brown and Daryl Edralin for two Giant runs.

Tam's right fielder Clifford Hall collected two base hits and scored a pair of runs to highlight Indian scoring, while catcher Bill Rudolph picked up all three of Tam's runs-batted-in on two singles.

In the four-run third frame, Redwood collected only two hits, one by Connor and the other by shortstop Scott Barrie, but the Giants parlayed two Tam errors, two walks and a sacrifice bunt by Bob Brown into all the runs they were to lead.

Connor, who after an early season slump with the bat, has taken over a large part of Giant hitting duties, tallied two Redwood runs and stole a base to complete a fine afternoon's work on the last day of the 1971 MCAL season.

Tam, which finished 2-11 won-lost on the year, was unable to relieve tiring starter Mark Dawson in the later innings due to lack of manpower. Dawson was victimized in part by the six errors and nine of his own bases on balls.

Drake Star Blanks San Marin By 6-0

Pitching perhaps the finest game of his life, Drake High School's senior Moundsman Lex Rzepilia shut out the San Marin Mustangs on two hits yesterday to close out his high school career, as the 1971 Marin County Athletic League baseball season closed yesterday in Novato.

Rzepilia scattered two harmless singles from Jim Thompson and Steve Burnam as the Pirates blanked the Mustangs 6-0.

Drake scored quickly in the first and coasted the rest of the way under wraps as catcher Mike Bauman and left fielder John Loane smashed back-to-back doubles, followed by a costly error on second baseman Mike Bacho to tally two runs in the opening inning.

While Rzepilia was in the process of striking out eight against only a single base on balls, the Pirates went merrily on to score another run in the fourth and three in the sixth for the win, Rzepilia's fourth of the MCAL campaign.

senior first baseman Dave MacAusland ignited the three run rally in the sixth with a triple, and mark Shepherd dropped a perfect squeeze bunt in the fourth to score Bob Mayer from third for the other Drake run.

Marinite Cracks Homer, But Stanford Defeated

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State defeated Stanford, 4-2, Friday to earn a berth in the Pacific-8 Conference baseball championship finals against the University of Southern California.

The Cougars and Trojans met today. USC could win the title with a win in the first contest, but the Cougars need two wins to take the double elimination tournament.

The Cougars eliminated Stanford from the tournament with a three-run eighth inning rally after the Indians' Dave Edson of San Rafael gave his team an early lead with a solo homer in the opening frame.

The Cougars added an insurance run in the ninth and gave reliefer Ken Kollmyer his third victory against three defeats. Stanford starter Bruce Schoen took the loss, his fourth against five wins.

USC had handed Stanford its first defeat of the tourney earlier Friday with a 9-3 victory. The Trojans' pitcher, Steve Busby, scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning and got help in the later innings.

Redwood Coach Honored

Bob Troppmann, athletic director at Redwood High School for all 13 years of its existence, has been honored with a distinguished servica award by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association, it was announced yesterday.

Troppmann, 47, will receive the award at a dinner June 11 at Atlanta, Ga., where prep coaches from throughout the country will be feted. The dinner is an annual event honoring excellence in coaching major sports - football, basketball, baseball, wrestling and track.

The NHLACA divides the country into eight districts for awards, including the one for distinguished service, and chooses one coach from every district for each catagory. Troppmann's district covers the entire West Coast. The distinguished service award is given for "outstanding achievement, contribution to the high school coaching profession and dedicated loyalty to the highest and best in amateur athletics."

Besides serving as athletic director at the Larkspur school, Troppmann was the football coach there for 12 years before resigning after the 1969 season. He began his coaching career at Richmond High in 1948, and went from there to San Francisco State and then to Drake High in San Anselmo before finally moving to Redwood in 1958.

He is married and has five children, two sons and three daughters. He lives in Corte Madera.

no, who was alone two shots behind Knudson with a two-under-par 138 over the par 35-35—70, 7,142-yard course.

"You could not get the timing down," said Homero Blancas, who shared the first round lead with Knudson before fading to a 73 Friday to be at even par 140. "The wind was swirling. Theoretically, it was behind us on one hole, but I swear it was blowing right in our face."

Behind Knudson's 136, Montgomery's 137 and Trevino's 138, came the twosome of Dave Stockton and Jerry McGee at one-under 139.

In addition to Blancas at 140 were Gene Littler, Ron Cerrudo of Napa and Fred Marti, who played along with Montgomery and finished just before sundown.

Montgomery matched Knudson's 69 Friday while Trevino shot a two-under-par 68 and then rushed off to Dallas to be with his critically-ill mother.

For the second straight day Knudson's putter saved him from a so-so round.

Knudson has switched to an oversize mallet head putter which has a white line drawn through the middle of it to help in sighting putts. He started using the putter three weeks ago, and although he putted terribly at Houston last week he stuck with the new blade this week.

After a super putting day Thursday, Knudson rolled in a 35-footer for a birdie on the 13th hole Friday, an eight-footer on the 15th and an eight-footer on the final hole. Those birds came after he three-putted the first green and bogeyed the 10th after putting his tee shot in the dense trees to the right of the fairway.

"That tee shot on 10 was my only bad shot all day," Knudson said. "I've been having back problems as well as golf problems, and it has just been in the past three weeks that it's felt like it is supposed to."

Now that he is feeling a little better and putting a little better, Knudson expects to move up in the money winnings. He currently ranks 93rd on the money winning list with $9,007.

Esposito, Hull Lead All-Stars

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —Phil Esposito, in the Eastern Divison, and Bobby Hull, in the West, were named Friday as Players of the Year as the Sporting News announced its National Hockey League All-Star teams.

Joining Esposito on the East squad were teammates, Bobby Orr, on defense, Ken Hodge at right wing and John Bucyk on left wing. Also chosen were Montreal's J.C. Tremblay on defense and New York's Ed Giacomin in goal.

Picked along with Hull were fellow Black Hawks Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton, Bill White and Tony Esposito and Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy.

Entries Now Open For Heart Tennis

Entries are now open for next month's third annual Tennis For Heart Tournament, to be played at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow.

The tournament, open to all Marin County residents, is set for June 12-13, and June 19-20, with proceeds going to the Marin County Heart Association. Entry blanks are available from the association.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Red Sox Beat Baltimore At Own Game — Lead By 4

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

It was the kind of game the Baltimore Orioles used to win.

Trailing Jim Lonborg 4-2 going into the ninth inning, the defending World Champions knocked him out and scored the tying run on a wild pitch to send the game into extra innings.

It looked like the Boston Red Sox had blown their chance to get a jump on the Orioles in the opener of a four-game series in Baltimore.

But this isn't 1969 or 1970. In fact, it seems more like 1967. The Red Sox weren't disheartened by the Oriole rally and came right back with four runs in the 10th to grab an 8-4 triumph.

The O's who led the Eastern Division by 5 1-2 games last May 21, now trail Boston by four games. The O's still say they're not worried but it may be time to get a bit concerned.

Boston manager Eddie Kasco, predictably, was beaming after the victory. "This victory meant a lot to our players because it proved three things," Kasco said.

1. "We can come back to beat them."
2. "We can beat them in their own park."
3. "And most important, we can't leave town without being in first place."

There were several good omens for the Red Sox. Loneborg, trying to make a comeback after being sent to the minors at the start of this season, was brilliant in his first start as he allowed just six hits in 8 2-3 innings.

The trades the Sox made over the winter continued to look good, too. Duane Josephson, obtained from Chicago, drove in four runs with a pair of solo homers and a two-run single in the 10th. Ken Tatum, obtained from California, wild pitched in the tying run in the ninth but hung on for the victory.

Things looked bad for the Red Sox in the ninth when Brooks Robinson singled and Dave Johnson doubled him home Clay Dalrymple and wild pitched home the tying run before getting the third out.

But in the 10th Luis Aparicio got life on an error and went to third on Reggie Smith's single. Rico Petrocelli doubled in the tie-breaking run and Josephson's two-run single was good insurance.

In the other A.L. games, Minnesota routed Oakland 10-1, Chicago blanked California 3-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 1-0 and Cleveland outlasted New York 8-7. The Milwaukee-Kansas City game was rained out when Milwaukee was two outs away from a 4-1 victory in the fifth inning.

Tom Bradley pitched a five-hitter for his third shoutout as Chicago downed California. Bill Melton and Tom Egan homered for the Sox.

Dean Chance and Fred Scherman combined on a three-hitter to give Detroit the victory over Cleveland. Chance went 7 2-3 innings for his first victory after six losses and allowed all three hits.

New York took a 7-6 lead in the top of the ninth on Danny Cater's two-out, two-run single but Cleveland came back with run-scoring singles by Eddie Leon and pinch-hitter Gomer Hodge.

Dee Andros Denies New Job Offer

SEATTLE (UPI) —Oregon State football coach Dee Andros has his relatives "all in a dither" about the possibility of his becoming Oklahoma athletic director, but his immediate family looks at it differently.

"There's a lot of ifs and ands," said Andros of the report he is under consideration for the post at his alma mater in Norman, Okla. "I haven't been offered anything and I'm very reluctant to terminate my coaching career at this time. My family has been very happy in Corvallis."

Andros, attending a meeting of Pacific-8 coaches here, is one of six men under consideration for the athletic director post. Another is University of Washington coach Jim Owens.

"My relatives are all in a dither," said Andros. "An Oklahoma City television station announced that I was in Norman for interviews.

"It took me a while to convince them that I hadn't come home without letting them know."

Andros has his mother, Brother Plato, who played with Dee on coach Bud Wilkinson teams of the late 1940s, and "a whole bunch of cousins, aunts and uncles all over the place" in Oklahoma.

Beaver Athletic Director Jim Barratt indicated he would not stand in Andros' way for the Oklahoma job, even though he had a three year contract with OSU.

Marin Softball Team Captures Title In S.F.

Joe Nystom pitched a two-hitter and Rich Manteuffel hit a home run and single to lead Suburban Auto of San Rafael to a 3-0 victory over Nite Life of San Francisco last night, giving the Marin County team the championship in the San Francisco Spring Class "A" Softball League.

This marks the sixth consecutive title for the team, the previous five under the sponsorship of Paul Koss Supply Co.

Lu Sharp Bowls 626 And 614

Lu Sharp, 175 average bowler from San Anselmo, had herself quite a week of bowling.

At Greenbrae Lanes she rolled a 626 three-game series and at Nave Lanes in Ignacio she rolled a 614. Her Nave score was high among the women there, but her 626 trailed Bea Hoffmann's 634.

High scores for the men came from Ray Miller, a 699 at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, and Stan Walker, 685 at Greenbrae.

Country Club Bowl has announced it will be closed next Wednesday and Thursday for lane resurfacing.

The week's honor roll:

GREENBRAE LANES

Men — Stan Walker, 685; Hal Quan, 643; Gerry Fullerton, 627; Dick Treadway, 623; Keith Ray, 621. Women — Bea Hoffmann, 634; Lu Sharp, 626; Merna McIntosh, 602; Gloria Biss, 600; Bonnie Birkett, 592. Juniors — Dave Mendelsohn, 623.

NAVE LANES

Men — Andy Anderson, 624. Women — Lu Sharp, 614; Jan Sabbattini, 542; Rose Brannon, 534; Gail Poling, 531; Bonnie Guthrie, 529.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Declarer Never Has To Make A Conventional Lead

When you're a defender, you lead in such a way as to tell your partner something about your holding in the suit. You lead the top of a sequence of honors (the king from K-Q, and so on); or fourth-best from a broken suit. When you're the declarer, you don't have to inform the dummy about the nature of your hand. You can lead whatever you please.

TOURNEY PLAY

When today's hand was played in a tournament some years ago, practically all of the North-South players got to four spades, and all of the West players began by taking the three top clubs. As a result, South always needed the rest of the tricks to make his contract.

At pratically all tables, South won the fourth trick and began the trumps by leading the queen of spades for a finesse. West naturally covered with the king, and dummy's ace won.

Now South had no way of knowing how the trumps were breaking. He led the four of trumps from dummy and won with the jack in his own hand, discovering too late that West had no more trumps.

NO WAY TO RECOVER

South could not recover from this bad break. He had to lose a trump trick to the nine, and the game contract went down.

Just one or two players knew that South, as declarer, was under no compulsion to lead conventionally for the first finesse in spades. The alert declarers began the spades by leading the ten instead of the queen from the South hand.

WEST COVERS

When West covered with the king, it was dollars to doughnuts that West had the singleton king, since West would not normally cover the ten if he had a low trump in his hand. Armed with this knowledge, declarer could lead dummy's low trump and take a finesse with the eight of spades on the second round of trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

ANSWER: Pass.

Most experts do not consider this kind of hand worth an opening bid. If the king of spades were guarded by any low spade, you would open with one club, but the singleton king is simply not worth full value as a high card and also an additional value as a singleton.

Eye-Opening Survey Of Traffic Hazards

NEW YORK (UPI) —The nation's optometrists put themselves in the driver's seat to help uncover troublesome vision factors involved in night driving. The national survey of O.D.s conducted by the American Optometric Association and Potters Industries, Inc., says color blindness (protanopia) gives those affected "difficulty" in distinguishing red signals, stop lights and tail lights.

Biggest "irritants," according to the driving optometrists: too many cars on the road, headlight glare, inadequate pavement markings and unsafe autos.

In 1868 the "Great Train Robbery'' took place as seven members of the Reno Gang stole $98,000 from an express car at Marshfield, Ind.

In 1924 discovery of the body of 13-year-old Bobby Franks in Chicago led to the arrest of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb. They were sentenced to 99 years in prison. Loeb was killed by another convict in 1936. Leopold was released on parole in 1958.

In 1943 Russia announced dissolution of the Communist International founded in 1919 to promote world revolution.

Mark Belongings To Aid Recovery

DALLAS (UPI)—One of the best ways to aid law enforcement officials in their search for stolen property is to have your initials or a serial number engraved on such personal belongings as television sets, stereos, athletic equipment, guns and other valuables.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association (TIAA) notes victims who can provide a record of such numbers or initials stand a much better chance of recovering property and will find it simpler to fill out insurance claims.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Little News But The Rail Strike

tiations opened in Washington and at once there were predictions that the 13.5 per cent raise used to halt the rail strike may be adopted by the steelworkers as a contract target.

The stell pact expires in August and there is comparatively little optimism about the chance of averting a steel strike.

The stock market plunged sharply Monday on the rail strike news and drifted the rest of the week in slow trading. Dun & Bradstreet said retail trade was up 5 to 9 per cent from a year ago on the average across the country.

Industrial output gained 0.3 per cent in April on top of the 0.2 per cent rise in March. Housing starts wer disclosed to have fallen 2.4 per cent in April.

Most of the rest of such news as was available was on the discouraging side. The U.S. balance of payments deficit was disclosed to have widened to $5.51 illion in the first quarter. Treasury Secretary John Connally said low interest rates in the country, causing investment funds to flee abroad, were partly responsible.

As if in answer to this, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns said he was opposed to measures that would cause interest rates to go up specifically in order to ease the international balance of payments problem. Burns said restoring price stability at home is much more important and low interest rates contribute to that.

However, short term interest rates did show signs of rising.

But the Treasury's monetary gold stock dropped $229 million and holdings of U.S. securities by the Federal Reserve Banks for foreign accounts which are potential claims against the gold stock, again rose sharply.

Chile announced it was nationalizing the El Teniente copper mine of Kennecott Corp., the world's largest. Aanaconda Co. had a 57 per cent drop in profit for the first quarter from last year as a result of loss of its Chilean copper properties.

The Anaconda annual meeting was told that Congress may have to vote additional expropriation insurance funds if Chile's payments for nationalized American properties do not come up to expectations.

The Senate buried the supersonic transport program, 58-37. It was clear that one factor in the Nixon administration's defeat on the SST was that neither of the two prime contractors, Boeing and General Electric, was eager to see it revived. General Eelectric was disclosed to feel that the noise problem of the engine would be much harder to lick than originally anticipated, while both firms apparently felt putting the SST program back together would cost much more than Congress would be willing to pay

Four Injured In Car Crash

Four Petaluma residents were injured last night when the car they were riding in hit a road divider on Bodega Highway and overturned.

The California Highway Patrol reported Harold Nelson, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, lost control of his car as he was driving west on Bodega near Tomales Road. He was treated for multiple bruises on the face and hips at Hillcrest Hospital.

Admitted to the hospital were three passengers in the car: Lee Hubbard, 19, of 47 Burlington Drive, with head injuries; Beverly Farrall, 18, of 4545 Petaluma Boulevard North, back pain, and William Black, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, head and arm injuries. Black was transferred today to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco.

All were listed in good condition by hospital officials.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

tiations opened in Washington and at once there were predictions that the 13.5 per cent raise used to halt the rail strike may be adopted by the steelworkers as a contract target.

The stell pact expires in August and there is comparatively little optimism about the chance of averting a steel strike.

The stock market plunged sharply Monday on the rail strike news and drifted the rest of the week in slow trading. Dun & Bradstreet said retail trade was up 5 to 9 per cent from a year ago on the average across the country.

Industrial output gained 0.3 per cent in April on top of the 0.2 per cent rise in March. Housing starts wer disclosed to have fallen 2.4 per cent in April.

Most of the rest of such news as was available was on the discouraging side. The U.S. balance of payments deficit was disclosed to have widened to $5.51 illion in the first quarter. Treasury Secretary John Connally said low interest rates in the country, causing investment funds to flee abroad, were partly responsible.

As if in answer to this, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns said he was opposed to measures that would cause interest rates to go up specifically in order to ease the international balance of payments problem. Burns said restoring price stability at home is much more important and low interest rates contribute to that.

However, short term interest rates did show signs of rising.

But the Treasury's monetary gold stock dropped $229 million and holdings of U.S. securities by the Federal Reserve Banks for foreign accounts which are potential claims against the gold stock, again rose sharply.

Chile announced it was nationalizing the El Teniente copper mine of Kennecott Corp., the world's largest. Aanaconda Co. had a 57 per cent drop in profit for the first quarter from last year as a result of loss of its Chilean copper properties.

The Anaconda annual meeting was told that Congress may have to vote additional expropriation insurance funds if Chile's payments for nationalized American properties do not come up to expectations.

The Senate buried the supersonic transport program, 58-37. It was clear that one factor in the Nixon administration's defeat on the SST was that neither of the two prime contractors, Boeing and General Electric, was eager to see it revived. General Eelectric was disclosed to feel that the noise problem of the engine would be much harder to lick than originally anticipated, while both firms apparently felt putting the SST program back together would cost much more than Congress would be willing to pay

Four Petaluma residents were injured last night when the car they were riding in hit a road divider on Bodega Highway and overturned.

The California Highway Patrol reported Harold Nelson, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, lost control of his car as he was driving west on Bodega near Tomales Road. He was treated for multiple bruises on the face and hips at Hillcrest Hospital.

Admitted to the hospital were three passengers in the car: Lee Hubbard, 19, of 47 Burlington Drive, with head injuries; Beverly Farrall, 18, of 4545 Petaluma Boulevard North, back pain, and William Black, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, head and arm injuries. Black was transferred today to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco.

All were listed in good condition by hospital officials.

From Saving Orchard To Catching Thieves

Spring cleaning time is here.

A good place for a newspaperman to start is with the notes in his own pocket.

Here goes:

THE DRIVE FOR funds to restore the old Russian Orthodox Church at Fort Ross — destroyed by fire some months ago — deserves wide support, of course.

While they are about it, let us hope that they give thought to preserving the remnants of the nearby apple orchard planted by the Russians a century and a half ago.

As you leave the old fort, headed south on Highway 1, take the side road to the left. Follow it a mile or so over to where it begins to climb into the hills. Watch closely on the right side of the road among the first clumps of trees. There, almost unrecognizable because of natural moss camouflage, you will see the ancient apple trees. If you get there at the right time of the year, you may be lucky enough to find a ripe apple on a branch hanging almost close enough to reach from the window of your car.

Those ancient apple trees should be taken into public ownership and preserved. They are the last vestiges of the Russians' unsuccessful agricultural efforts in the area.

YOU'VE GOT TO hand it to Joseph G. Alvarez, the San Anselman who runs a jewelry business in San Francisco.

His wife died of a kidney ailment several years ago.

He has devoted himself with single purpose ever since to providing help for kidney sufferers. At times some would have said he almost made a pest of himself — prodding people to do things they really did not wish to do.

Today Marin has an established chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California.

It sponsors several events each year to raise funds for the cause.

The group solicits donations of Betty Crocker coupons which ultimately will be exchanged for an artificial kidney machine. At present, more than a dozen Marin residents must depend for their survival on periodic visits to such a machine.

Alvarez's first efforts to persuade Marin General Hospital to install such a machine fell on deaf ears. Finally, the hospital's administration came 'round. One of these days Marin General will be able to accomodate all Marin residents in need of the services of the machine.

Bully for the Kidney Foundation and the sometimes irritating fellow who wouldn't quit pestering people until "something was done" — Joe Alvarez.

THE DESERTED COURTHOUSE is still a growing eyesore in the center of San Rafael, despite efforts to put together some kind of arrangement for its sale and redevelopment by private interests. So far, we have failed.

We just cannot continue without action. We must forget the failures so far and renew efforts to solve the problem of what to do with the property so as to benefit San Rafael and the whole county.

And, whatever happened to plans and pledges for action to increase the number of one-way streets in San Rafael so as to alleviate traffic tie-ups?

BURGLARY VICTIMS complain that they are told by police, "We cannot keep watch on every house in town to protect it against burglary." When a victim of neighborhood vandalism in San Rafael was told this, he asked, "Then how come the police can put a car across the street with two cops in it watching my place when I have a late-hour party?"

One might deduce that the police are more intent on catching late-hour revelers than they are dedicated to catching burglars.

What protection is there against burglary, really?

The best available is neighborly mutual concern. If you know your neighbors are away and you see something suspicious, ask the police to investigate.

Our pseudo-sophisticated attitude that we should not concern ourselves with what goes on at our neighbor's house certainly provides aid and comfort to burglars.

Incidentally, this is what the I-J's "Secret Witness" project is all about. Experienced crime detectors say that every mysterious crime could be solved if some one who saw something a bit out of the ordinary took note of it and reported it to authorities. Somewhere in the mass of such "tips" will be one or two which lead to the solution of otherwise mysterious crimes.

The I-J's "Secret Witness" program has been condemned from some quarters — including a teachers' group or two.

If it is thus wrong to encourage concern for one's neighbors, our society does have a problem. If it is wrong to want to help protect the life and property of a neighbor, we do need some changes. If it is wrong to want to help bring an offender to justice, problems like our skyrocketting rate of burglaries can only get worse.

The note pockets are by no means empty, but at least there is room now for some new notes.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the 15 nominees for Marin's "Outstanding Senior Citizen" award. Although only one of them can be the award winner, all 15 deserve honor for showing the roles that people can play at an age when younger folk sometimes regard them as "over the hill."

BRICKBATS to Sausalito teachers who took a "sick holiday" instead of reporting to teach their classes on Malcolm X's birthday. Strange way to honor their hero!

BOUQUETS to Boy Scouts, Explorers and Cub Scouts, who present their annual Scout-o-Rama today at Forest Meadows.

BOUQUET to Corte Madera on its 55th birthday.

COUNTRY PARSON

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

McCloskey Booster Spreads The Word

We have an opportunity unparalled in America's history to make the Grand Old Party the Grand New Party. Times are changing rapidly. I believe we can show the nation and the world that a man need not be a famous senator, governor, former general or vice president to become the President of the United States.

Congressman "Pete" McCloskey is none of these, yet he is eminently qualified to serve as our chief executive. In addition, he has enough personal integrity and independent spirit to go down in history on a par with Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. He couples an outspoken courage with a humble attitude that says "I make mistakes too but I'm willing to try."

Here is a dynamic public speaker with an impressive record of achievements. Let's get together and elect Congressman McCloskey to the office of President in 1972.

Send your support and encouragement to: Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., House Office Bldg., Rm. 1511, Washington, D.C.

Junk Cars Deface Island Of Oahu

Rozella Owens' letter published in I-J issue of May 17 did not specify which three of the Hawaiian Islands she visited. However, if one of them was Oahu I grossly disagree with her cleanliness analysis.

My wife and I were in Honolulu the first week of May this year. And, like I witnessed in 1965 (only worse now), the derelict automobiles along the roadside constituted the greatest degree of trash I have ever seen. No matter where we went, be it Punchbowl Cemetery, Polynesian Cultural Village, etc., we saw abandoned automobiles. If I can correctly quote the bus driver that drove us from the airport to our hotel the state of Hawaii has over 800,000 inhabitants and over 300,000 automobiles. I think half of the autos are abandoned along the roads.

Marin County has a lot going for it on trash handling compared to Oahu.

VD, Pregnancies Demonstrate Need

How about your editorial gap? On Page 2, May 14, the I-J reports that "nearly 10 per cent of California teen-agers have venereal disease." On page 26 the editorial refers to education regarding advocating birth control does not permit unmarried couples to indulge in "safe" sexual intercourse. If it did the alarming rise in teen-age pregnancies and V.D. would decline.

At present more pregnant girls seek assistance from Planned Parenthood than girls seeking birth control to prevent pregnancy. Out-of-wedlock births continue to increase in proportion to all births. In 1966 about 5 per cent of them in Marin County were to unwed mothers. In 1970 this figure rose to nearly 9 per cent. Most of these births were in the 15 to 19 age bracket.

The common finding is that teens and even college students operate with appalling misinformation, usually obtained solely from peers. It is usually suggested by those opposed to sex education in the schools that the home is the place for such learning. Our experience at Planned Parenthood has shown that such experience just is not overtly taking place. Most homes have a taboo against discussion of sex.

Parents should obtain sex education to help in handling the love ethic of their children through such groups as PTA's, churches and synagogues. Attempts have been made to develop Parent Advisory Committees to Teen Clinics in the Bay Area without any continuing success.

Crystal Ball Reveals Bright New Future For Mail Service

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service in its first report to the nation in 1979 announced that the new postal rates for the country would be $1 for first-class mail, $2 for air mail, and 50 cents for magazines and newspapers. Fourth-class junk mail would remain unchanged.

Elwood Carruthers, the postmaster general, said that these small raises would guarantee the nation's citizens more efficient service and also put the post office on a paying basis.

At a press conference, Mr. Carruthers told reporters that the funds gained by the raises would be used to re-equip present post offices with the latest machinery, which would speed up the mail by 50 per cent.

"WE BELIEVE that once the new equipment is installed it will be possible for a letter mailed in New York to reach someone in Ohio within the same week."

Asked what new equipment the Postal Service would purchase with the money earned from the new raises, Carruthers pulled back a curtain in the Postal Service aduitorium.

On display was a stagecoach and four horses. Sitting on top of the stagecoach was a postman and next to him was a man dressed in a cowboy suit holding a Remington rifle.

"This is our latest post office vehicle," Carruthers told the press. "It was developed by our own engineers. As you see, in the back of the coach is a large area where we can carry first-class mailbags. The top of the coach just beyond the driver and his guard will be used for second, third and fourth-class mail."

"WHAT DO YOU intend to do with the inside of the coach?" a reporter asked.

"We will use it for passengers wishing to go to the same place. We hope the revenues from stagecoach passengers will keep us from having a deficit. We've tested this vehicle, and by changing horses in Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, we found that we can deliver a letter from New York to Washington in less than three days. This is a 48-hour improvement over the mail service people are getting now."

"How many of them do you expect to have in service this year, Mr. Postmaster?"

"We have ordered 2,000 of them. Our main problem will be to set up stables and provide water for the horses. We are also working with the U.S. Cavalry on safe routes for the coaches to avoid unfriendly Indian country. In the West we're hoping the Army will set up a series of forts to assure that our stagecoaches will get through."

"MR. POSTMASTER, that's all well and good for first, second, third and fourth-class mail, but what do you intend to do about air mail?"

Carruthers pulled back another curtain. Mounted on a horse was a mailman in a cowboy hat. On either side of his saddle were two large leather mailbags.

"Gentlemen, this will be our new express service. The Post Office on its own has developed a new system whereby we will load the air mail on this horse. At 50-mile intervals a new rider and horse will be waiting and the mailbags will be tossed to him and he will race off at top speed to the next rider. With fresh horses and riders we can guarantee that a letter in Chicago will reach Houston in two-and-a-half days."

"WHEN DO YOU expect this new express service to go into effect?" a reporter asked.

"As soon as we train enough riders and get delivery of our horses. We in the Postal Service feel that we have to keep up with the times, and while this new sophisticated equipment will be expensive, it should pay for itself in 10 years.

"I am certain when the American people see what they're getting for their money, they will not object to the infinitesimal increases we have had to make on their postage."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Israel Digs In To Prove It Means 'No Compromise'

SHARM EL-SHEIKH, Israeli-Occupied Sinai — This is the sticking point and, however long-drawn-out the search for an eventual peace settlement may be, it is the last point the Israelis will compromise. It commands the 600-yard passage through the Straits of Tiran that is Israel's lifeline for trade.

Twice before Egypt threatened to cut off that lifeline and twice war followed. At nearby Ras Nasrani, ruined Egyptian cannon were trained on all ships passing through the straits. They were destroyed by Egyptian soldiers fleeing before the Israeli 9th Division in the 1956 war.

This time the Israelis are taking no chance. They are digging in with the zeal, the organizing drive, that created the nation in a hostile desert. Here at Sharm El-Sheikh a military base is going up. Plans are on the drawing board for a full-fledged town designed around the present motel and the construction workers' quarters.

NEARBY IS A TENT and trailer community with a blown-up canvas bubble serving as an air-conditioned dining room. For soldiers on leave there is a rush-covered discotheque and at the base movies alternate with plays, lectures and concerts. All this is served by an air strip long enough to take 707S. Water comes by tank from a military desalination plant.

To see how geography closes in, with the short line of Saudi Arabia clearly visible across the straits, is to understand the sense of claustrophobia that afflicts the Israelis. Just around the corner from Ras Muhammad, at the very tip of the Sinai, is the Gulf of Uez. Through the shimmering heat haze — temperatures are already 100 and 115 — the enemy is clearly visible.

To reinforce the air of permanence Sharm El-Sheikh is becoming a tourist attraction. Israel's principal tourist organization offers a one-day package tour. The flight down in the morning, back in the evening, a bus trip taking in the ruined cannon. A bedoui settlement under ancient palm trees, lunch in the bubble and a swim in the Red Sea. Thus is this most-distant occupied outpost made part of "our land."

Most of us on the tour are Americans. In the fierce heat and the incessant wind off the Sinai Desert the excursion has a slightly unreal air. The relics of past wars and the threat of a new war — Israeli frog men operating in the straits to insure against the secret planting of mines — belie the smooth professional voice of the tour guide.

We are there on the Jewish Sabbath and the lean, bronzed young men on their day of leave are playing soccer on the beach. Our tour guide points out the army synagogue. It was built by the Egyptians as a mosque for their soldiers.

WHAT THE PAST signifies for these people is the need to dig deeper — to guarantee the "security" borders conquered four years ago. Americans high and low have been telling them in recent weeks that they should put the past behind them and enter into new security arrangements that might advance the cause of peace. That is the counsel of their own elder statesman. David Ben-Gurion, insisting that geography is no insurance of safety.

The Americans contend for a United Nations peace-keeping force that would be protected by the U.N. Security Council where an American veto could stop any order to remove it.

But in Israel the United Nations is a bad joke. The critics call this a Maginot Line psychology — building a wall against an enemy living next door just as France did in the years before World War II. The big radar screens that thrust up against the horizon are Israel's scornful response. They are tied into a network of bases capable of responding instantly to any threat of attack by land or air.

AGAINST THE SETTING sun the jagged mountains that come down so close to the desert coast are like claws cut out of steel by a ruhless giant. This land has been hostile to human life. For several centuries the Ottoman Turk held it and left it virtually untouched. In the brief years of the British imperium & brief by the standards of the Middle East — it was a wasteland patrolled by a few specialists. The interregnum of Camal Abdel Nasser made only a slight impression on a vast empty space where a few wandering tribes of Bedouin moved from water hole to water hole.

Outsiders may be skeptical as to how long the new dispensation will endure. The Israelis permit themselves no doubts whatsoever.

Mexico Takes Leading Role in Promoting Peace

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

For many years a source of pride for the United States in its hemispheric relations has been its unarmed, trouble-free 3,000-mile border with Canada.

Less noted but equally important is the steady growth of similarly equal and friendly ties along the 2,000-mile U.S. Mexican border to the South.

Lending added importance is the increasingly influential role being played by Mexico in both hemispheric and world affairs.

THE PICTURE of a Mexico dozing in the sun with its sombrero pulled down over its eyes no longer is valid nor has it been for the better part of a three and one-half decades.

A large part of Mexico's success may be traced to the fact that of all Latin American nations, Mexico has been the most politically stable, beginning with the Lazaro Cardenas regime in the mid-1930s.

Rounding out the formula for success is Mexico's steady 6 per cent annual rate of economic growth and a great ability to mind its own business.

IN INTERNATIONAL affairs Mexico's most prominent role has been in the field of disarmament.

It was a letter from Mexico's then president Adolpho Lopez Mateo to the presidents of Bolivia, Brazil, Chile and Ecuador that led to the pact establishing Latin America as a nuclear free weapons zone.

The pact, the Treaty of Tlatelolco, has been signed by 22 countries and ratified by 17.

A protocol expressing agreement with the pact has been signed by the United States and last month was ratified.

AT THE 25 NATION disarmament conference in Geneva, it was Mexico that took the lead in demanding that other nations ignore stands taken by the United States and the Soviet Union and work out their own proposals for a total ban on nuclear testing and a ban on chemical and germ warfare.

A Mexican, Alphonso Garcia Robles, is a dark horse candidate to succeed U.N. Secretary General Thant should he decide to step down.

In the hemispheric field, relations between the United States and Mexico have drawn steadily closer despite Mexico's refusal to follow the U.S. lead on such matters of hemispheric concern as the economic and diplomatic embargo on Castro's Cuba.

The Mexicans deem this interference in Cuba's internal affairs.

WHILE MEXICO may view communization of Cuba with some tolerance, there is no such tolerance at home. This spring Mexico expelled five top level Soviet diplomats and recalled its own ambassador to Moscow over alleged Soviet complicity in the training of 50 young Mexicans in guerilla tactics in North Korea.

And such is Mexico's influence among its neighbors that the action brought to a sudden halt negotiations between the Soviet Union and Costa Rica to estabish diplomatic relations.

From Saving Orchard To Catching Thieves

Spring cleaning time is here.

A good place for a newspaperman to start is with the notes in his own pocket.

Here goes:

THE DRIVE FOR funds to restore the old Russian Orthodox Church at Fort Ross — destroyed by fire some months ago — deserves wide support, of course.

While they are about it, let us hope that they give thought to preserving the remnants of the nearby apple orchard planted by the Russians a century and a half ago.

As you leave the old fort, headed south on Highway 1, take the side road to the left. Follow it a mile or so over to where it begins to climb into the hills. Watch closely on the right side of the road among the first clumps of trees. There, almost unrecognizable because of natural moss camouflage, you will see the ancient apple trees. If you get there at the right time of the year, you may be lucky enough to find a ripe apple on a branch hanging almost close enough to reach from the window of your car.

Those ancient apple trees should be taken into public ownership and preserved. They are the last vestiges of the Russians' unsuccessful agricultural efforts in the area.

YOU'VE GOT TO hand it to Joseph G. Alvarez, the San Anselman who runs a jewelry business in San Francisco.

His wife died of a kidney ailment several years ago.

He has devoted himself with single purpose ever since to providing help for kidney sufferers. At times some would have said he almost made a pest of himself — prodding people to do things they really did not wish to do.

Today Marin has an established chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California.

It sponsors several events each year to raise funds for the cause.

The group solicits donations of Betty Crocker coupons which ultimately will be exchanged for an artificial kidney machine. At present, more than a dozen Marin residents must depend for their survival on periodic visits to such a machine.

Alvarez's first efforts to persuade Marin General Hospital to install such a machine fell on deaf ears. Finally, the hospital's administration came 'round. One of these days Marin General will be able to accomodate all Marin residents in need of the services of the machine.

Bully for the Kidney Foundation and the sometimes irritating fellow who wouldn't quit pestering people until "something was done" — Joe Alvarez.

THE DESERTED COURTHOUSE is still a growing eyesore in the center of San Rafael, despite efforts to put together some kind of arrangement for its sale and redevelopment by private interests. So far, we have failed.

We just cannot continue without action. We must forget the failures so far and renew efforts to solve the problem of what to do with the property so as to benefit San Rafael and the whole county.

And, whatever happened to plans and pledges for action to increase the number of one-way streets in San Rafael so as to alleviate traffic tie-ups?

BURGLARY VICTIMS complain that they are told by police, "We cannot keep watch on every house in town to protect it against burglary." When a victim of neighborhood vandalism in San Rafael was told this, he asked, "Then how come the police can put a car across the street with two cops in it watching my place when I have a late-hour party?"

One might deduce that the police are more intent on catching late-hour revelers than they are dedicated to catching burglars.

What protection is there against burglary, really?

The best available is neighborly mutual concern. If you know your neighbors are away and you see something suspicious, ask the police to investigate.

Our pseudo-sophisticated attitude that we should not concern ourselves with what goes on at our neighbor's house certainly provides aid and comfort to burglars.

Incidentally, this is what the I-J's "Secret Witness" project is all about. Experienced crime detectors say that every mysterious crime could be solved if some one who saw something a bit out of the ordinary took note of it and reported it to authorities. Somewhere in the mass of such "tips" will be one or two which lead to the solution of otherwise mysterious crimes.

The I-J's "Secret Witness" program has been condemned from some quarters — including a teachers' group or two.

If it is thus wrong to encourage concern for one's neighbors, our society does have a problem. If it is wrong to want to help protect the life and property of a neighbor, we do need some changes. If it is wrong to want to help bring an offender to justice, problems like our skyrocketting rate of burglaries can only get worse.

The note pockets are by no means empty, but at least there is room now for some new notes.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

McCloskey Booster Spreads The Word

We have an opportunity unparalled in America's history to make the Grand Old Party the Grand New Party. Times are changing rapidly. I believe we can show the nation and the world that a man need not be a famous senator, governor, former general or vice president to become the President of the United States.

Congressman "Pete" McCloskey is none of these, yet he is eminently qualified to serve as our chief executive. In addition, he has enough personal integrity and independent spirit to go down in history on a par with Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. He couples an outspoken courage with a humble attitude that says "I make mistakes too but I'm willing to try."

Here is a dynamic public speaker with an impressive record of achievements. Let's get together and elect Congressman McCloskey to the office of President in 1972.

Send your support and encouragement to: Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., House Office Bldg., Rm. 1511, Washington, D.C.

Junk Cars Deface Island Of Oahu

Rozella Owens' letter published in I-J issue of May 17 did not specify which three of the Hawaiian Islands she visited. However, if one of them was Oahu I grossly disagree with her cleanliness analysis.

My wife and I were in Honolulu the first week of May this year. And, like I witnessed in 1965 (only worse now), the derelict automobiles along the roadside constituted the greatest degree of trash I have ever seen. No matter where we went, be it Punchbowl Cemetery, Polynesian Cultural Village, etc., we saw abandoned automobiles. If I can correctly quote the bus driver that drove us from the airport to our hotel the state of Hawaii has over 800,000 inhabitants and over 300,000 automobiles. I think half of the autos are abandoned along the roads.

Marin County has a lot going for it on trash handling compared to Oahu.

VD, Pregnancies Demonstrate Need

How about your editorial gap? On Page 2, May 14, the I-J reports that "nearly 10 per cent of California teen-agers have venereal disease." On page 26 the editorial refers to education regarding advocating birth control does not permit unmarried couples to indulge in "safe" sexual intercourse. If it did the alarming rise in teen-age pregnancies and V.D. would decline.

At present more pregnant girls seek assistance from Planned Parenthood than girls seeking birth control to prevent pregnancy. Out-of-wedlock births continue to increase in proportion to all births. In 1966 about 5 per cent of them in Marin County were to unwed mothers. In 1970 this figure rose to nearly 9 per cent. Most of these births were in the 15 to 19 age bracket.

The common finding is that teens and even college students operate with appalling misinformation, usually obtained solely from peers. It is usually suggested by those opposed to sex education in the schools that the home is the place for such learning. Our experience at Planned Parenthood has shown that such experience just is not overtly taking place. Most homes have a taboo against discussion of sex.

Parents should obtain sex education to help in handling the love ethic of their children through such groups as PTA's, churches and synagogues. Attempts have been made to develop Parent Advisory Committees to Teen Clinics in the Bay Area without any continuing success.

Crystal Ball Reveals Bright New Future For Mail Service

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service in its first report to the nation in 1979 announced that the new postal rates for the country would be $1 for first-class mail, $2 for air mail, and 50 cents for magazines and newspapers. Fourth-class junk mail would remain unchanged.

Elwood Carruthers, the postmaster general, said that these small raises would guarantee the nation's citizens more efficient service and also put the post office on a paying basis.

At a press conference, Mr. Carruthers told reporters that the funds gained by the raises would be used to re-equip present post offices with the latest machinery, which would speed up the mail by 50 per cent.

"WE BELIEVE that once the new equipment is installed it will be possible for a letter mailed in New York to reach someone in Ohio within the same week."

Asked what new equipment the Postal Service would purchase with the money earned from the new raises, Carruthers pulled back a curtain in the Postal Service aduitorium.

On display was a stagecoach and four horses. Sitting on top of the stagecoach was a postman and next to him was a man dressed in a cowboy suit holding a Remington rifle.

"This is our latest post office vehicle," Carruthers told the press. "It was developed by our own engineers. As you see, in the back of the coach is a large area where we can carry first-class mailbags. The top of the coach just beyond the driver and his guard will be used for second, third and fourth-class mail."

"WHAT DO YOU intend to do with the inside of the coach?" a reporter asked.

"We will use it for passengers wishing to go to the same place. We hope the revenues from stagecoach passengers will keep us from having a deficit. We've tested this vehicle, and by changing horses in Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, we found that we can deliver a letter from New York to Washington in less than three days. This is a 48-hour improvement over the mail service people are getting now."

"How many of them do you expect to have in service this year, Mr. Postmaster?"

"We have ordered 2,000 of them. Our main problem will be to set up stables and provide water for the horses. We are also working with the U.S. Cavalry on safe routes for the coaches to avoid unfriendly Indian country. In the West we're hoping the Army will set up a series of forts to assure that our stagecoaches will get through."

"MR. POSTMASTER, that's all well and good for first, second, third and fourth-class mail, but what do you intend to do about air mail?"

Carruthers pulled back another curtain. Mounted on a horse was a mailman in a cowboy hat. On either side of his saddle were two large leather mailbags.

"Gentlemen, this will be our new express service. The Post Office on its own has developed a new system whereby we will load the air mail on this horse. At 50-mile intervals a new rider and horse will be waiting and the mailbags will be tossed to him and he will race off at top speed to the next rider. With fresh horses and riders we can guarantee that a letter in Chicago will reach Houston in two-and-a-half days."

"WHEN DO YOU expect this new express service to go into effect?" a reporter asked.

"As soon as we train enough riders and get delivery of our horses. We in the Postal Service feel that we have to keep up with the times, and while this new sophisticated equipment will be expensive, it should pay for itself in 10 years.

"I am certain when the American people see what they're getting for their money, they will not object to the infinitesimal increases we have had to make on their postage."

Israel Digs In To Prove It Means 'No Compromise'

SHARM EL-SHEIKH, Israeli-Occupied Sinai — This is the sticking point and, however long-drawn-out the search for an eventual peace settlement may be, it is the last point the Israelis will compromise. It commands the 600-yard passage through the Straits of Tiran that is Israel's lifeline for trade.

Twice before Egypt threatened to cut off that lifeline and twice war followed. At nearby Ras Nasrani, ruined Egyptian cannon were trained on all ships passing through the straits. They were destroyed by Egyptian soldiers fleeing before the Israeli 9th Division in the 1956 war.

This time the Israelis are taking no chance. They are digging in with the zeal, the organizing drive, that created the nation in a hostile desert. Here at Sharm El-Sheikh a military base is going up. Plans are on the drawing board for a full-fledged town designed around the present motel and the construction workers' quarters.

NEARBY IS A TENT and trailer community with a blown-up canvas bubble serving as an air-conditioned dining room. For soldiers on leave there is a rush-covered discotheque and at the base movies alternate with plays, lectures and concerts. All this is served by an air strip long enough to take 707S. Water comes by tank from a military desalination plant.

To see how geography closes in, with the short line of Saudi Arabia clearly visible across the straits, is to understand the sense of claustrophobia that afflicts the Israelis. Just around the corner from Ras Muhammad, at the very tip of the Sinai, is the Gulf of Uez. Through the shimmering heat haze — temperatures are already 100 and 115 — the enemy is clearly visible.

To reinforce the air of permanence Sharm El-Sheikh is becoming a tourist attraction. Israel's principal tourist organization offers a one-day package tour. The flight down in the morning, back in the evening, a bus trip taking in the ruined cannon. A bedoui settlement under ancient palm trees, lunch in the bubble and a swim in the Red Sea. Thus is this most-distant occupied outpost made part of "our land."

Most of us on the tour are Americans. In the fierce heat and the incessant wind off the Sinai Desert the excursion has a slightly unreal air. The relics of past wars and the threat of a new war — Israeli frog men operating in the straits to insure against the secret planting of mines — belie the smooth professional voice of the tour guide.

We are there on the Jewish Sabbath and the lean, bronzed young men on their day of leave are playing soccer on the beach. Our tour guide points out the army synagogue. It was built by the Egyptians as a mosque for their soldiers.

WHAT THE PAST signifies for these people is the need to dig deeper — to guarantee the "security" borders conquered four years ago. Americans high and low have been telling them in recent weeks that they should put the past behind them and enter into new security arrangements that might advance the cause of peace. That is the counsel of their own elder statesman. David Ben-Gurion, insisting that geography is no insurance of safety.

The Americans contend for a United Nations peace-keeping force that would be protected by the U.N. Security Council where an American veto could stop any order to remove it.

But in Israel the United Nations is a bad joke. The critics call this a Maginot Line psychology — building a wall against an enemy living next door just as France did in the years before World War II. The big radar screens that thrust up against the horizon are Israel's scornful response. They are tied into a network of bases capable of responding instantly to any threat of attack by land or air.

AGAINST THE SETTING sun the jagged mountains that come down so close to the desert coast are like claws cut out of steel by a ruhless giant. This land has been hostile to human life. For several centuries the Ottoman Turk held it and left it virtually untouched. In the brief years of the British imperium & brief by the standards of the Middle East — it was a wasteland patrolled by a few specialists. The interregnum of Camal Abdel Nasser made only a slight impression on a vast empty space where a few wandering tribes of Bedouin moved from water hole to water hole.

RAP SESSION: Letters From Young And Old

14 THROUGH 17

Solution Must Come On One-To-One Basis

I believe that the most important factor in establishing ties between youth and the older generation is if we are capable of talking on a common basis. All people should be open to hearing diverse comments and opinions contrary to those they have heard and believed for the duration of their lives. No topics should be withheld or treated with kid gloves. Neither should hold back any emotions, for withholding ideas and feelings at this point will create more chasms of difference and doubt that would be surmounted. It is important that those who talk should talk on a one-to-one basis, and not as a group. A group discussion held between dissenting people tends to discourage logical and productive collaborations. A person who volunteers a particularly one-sided idea may receive chastisement, subtle or not so subtle, from those who oppose his opinion.. The end result is that the opinionated person will feel even more bonded to those who share his idea. This can work both ways, with such mutual condemnation at best bringing on more arguments. The answer then is to talk, and to talk with general reciprocation.

It is important that those who talk in order to work together work inside of the system. The danger of working outside the republic (America was established as a republic and is now a democracy) is that in striving to achieve a goal there are those who would justify all means of acquiring it, usually destroying the country and all those in it on the way. (no, Virginia, logic does not predominate.)

In concluding this letter, I wish to say that in writing it I do not agree that there is a generation gap, instead a communication gap; between those who always speak, those who always listen, and those who do neither.

MIKE HELMS

San Rafael.

Add Cooperation And Consideration

To reach a better understanding of one another, we must look at the key word in solving the problem: communication. For if a generation communicates to a point where there is an understanding between them, then we can understand each other.

Today we have a two-way street of conversation. Our problem is that the younger and the older generation are not in the same lanes of conversation to communicate with one another.

To help keep communication alive, we should take a look at the words, cooperation and consideration. If we cooperate with one another while we communicate then we can reach a better understanding of one another. Also, if the younger and the older generation could take into consideration each other's feelings and understand them, then I feel we can bridge the Generation Gap, and we could fill the gap with understanding of one another.

So why don't we give it a try? Follow the three c's of communication, cooperation, and consideration. Let's bridge that gap with understanding!

MARCIA BILLINGS

Tiburon.

Strip All Barriers To Unite Generations

I think there will always be a big gap between youth and the over-30, although there are considerable exceptions of older people who are and have been communicating for a long time, but that is only part of my reason for writing this, I also want to try to give some constructive solutions to the problem.

I know many people, including myself sometimes, that turn off to parents simply because of their attitude and the misunderstanding of their feelings and beliefs and vice versa. First above all you must have mutual trust and respect, also complete stripping of barriers and prejudices, that is hit "gut level" and accept people for what they are, not for what they should or can be. It's really very easy if you're willing to really try, be frank and say what you feel, but also listen and try to comprehend and understand our ideals and how we come to believe in them so strongly. I mean, everybody's always saying what a drag all the kids are, 'cause they've got the guts to get out in the street and tell the truth every day, and it's far out, it's great, but if you resort to violence you lose all, bombing, burning, beating and tear gassing will never win over, and it better be realized right now from both sides or we're in a lot of trouble.

The main thing I think we should realize is that we're all sacred human beings, struggling to stay alive, and that there should be no labels as "hippy," "pig," "longhair," etc. I think there is a lot of wrongs and rights on both sides, but we must have change, and we must bring it about by working together, because for the most part it seems as though we're all becoming parenoid. We also must be given the opportunity and responsibility to do things on our own and we must be listened to. There are a lot of stubborn people that refuse to cooperate or try to do anything, they're closed minded but we must be patient with them too because we owe it to them and ourselves.

"Rap sessions" are something I've seen work successfully and sometimes unsuccessfully, with both adults and parents, gaining each other's trust and deepest thoughts and dreams. Why hassel with clothes and hair etc. and small petty things as such, when we can be free and happy?

I think we have a lot to offer as well as you, but don't brush us off as "young idealist, naive children"; make us feel important, but in a way we can relate to.

The last thing I will say is that through all the recent protests against pollution, war, the draft, we are appealing to you to listen and to take affective action and help us, because if we don't do it nobody else is going to and we need each other to get it together.

COLLEEN WEBER

Novato.

Just Talking Won't Solve The Problem

Much of the gap between kids and adults is because of the Vietnam War. Unfortunately, none of today's youths had to go through the great depression or World War II, otherwise things today might be different. However when I'm told that the kids of today are the first "wild" generation, I have to point out to them the '20s and '30s which were probably the roughest 20 years in this century.

As such I don't think that sitting down and talking is going to do any good. Today's kids are fed up with the "establishment" because that is all they have been doing: sitting and talking. One suggestion would be to set up a governmental agency dedicated to listening and getting results done when those under 30 have legitimate problems and are definitely concerned with poverty, the war, racial discrimination, etc.

Although I am a staunch supporter of people's rights, the news media is one branch of today's scene who aren't helping matters any. They give undue publicity to those few terrorist groups which are bent on destroying the U.S. and imposing their will. One way to improve relations is to try and understand youth's peaceful aspect, which is certainly in the majority. Another way to improve relations between police and students is for junior and senior members of the force who are understanding to hold "rap sessions" to discuss police views, student views, and the world in general.

However, it isn't all up to the adults. Those under 30 must learn to understand the values, both moral, political, and social of those over 30. So in conclusion, I feel that there must be leeway on both sides and not all take.

BRUCE A. ADES

San Rafael.

We Must Let Youth Find Own Truths

My view of the generation gap is that there is a lack of understanding or a fear of change. The older generation doesn't understand the younger and vice versa, and the older generation is afraid of change because the need for it was less when they grew up. Also the older generation doesn't believe that youth is ready or capable of making their own decisions and the younger generation, of course, does.

The whole problem originated with the rapid changes occurring in society today. The older generation is set in a conservative mold and is unready and unwilling to change. They feel that the young people are not mature enough to make their own decisions about how they dress, spend their time, or what they do, and therefore the younger generation feels hopeless about being able to change things they see as bad (wars, laws) and are discouraged with the whole mess.

Also parents are upset with their children, who want to have longer hair or listen to loud music. Since these things are associated with "hippies" and other "bad" influences, this causes another battleground.

I believe the only way to solve the problem is by giving youth more of a voice in government, to let the younger generation find their own truths, not those of others who came before them, because these ethics are now being questioned. Also to listen to the requests of younger people before they turn into demands, and do something about them.

JIM HARRINGTON

Novato.

When We Understand, The Gap Is Bridged

The generation gap has been around as long as man has. In civilization's earliest writings, we find evidence of a gulf between the older and younger generations.

Isn't the generation gap a failure to communicate between two age groups? Communication is a two-way street — the blame for this gap can't be placed solely on either age group.

The gap is caused by both groups, and together both groups are going to have to build the bridge. But a bridge can be built. It's a bridge of understanding, acceptance, and love.

We need to look at people, not as members of either a younger or older generation, but simply as people, sharing the same basic needs. Each person needs to be accepted, to be understood. He needs to feel that he's wanted, that he's loved. We all share these needs, no matter how young or old we may be.

To bridge the gap we need to take time to listen. Stop and talk to your parents or kids. See what they're really trying to say. Really listen — don't just go through the motions. Opinions might differ — they're bound to at times — but try to respect a person's feelings even though they're different from your own.

Practice empathy — putting yourself in someone else's place. The adult seeing things from a young person's point of view; a young person trying to see through the eyes of an adult.

If we try to understand, care, and love a person for what he is —regardless of his age — we'll find that the gap has already been bridged.

Neither Has Found Road To Happiness

It's a small wonder that we are faced with the grim reality of a generation gap. Many people over the age of 30 have lived a life that is radically different from that of their children, and because of that their outlook on life is also different. As a result, one generation seeks material gain as a means of achieving happiness while the other rejects materialism and seeks personal fulfillment to achieve happiness. It is interesting to note that everyone is at one extreme or the other while trying to achieve the same goal.

It is these two extremes, along with the fact that so few families ever really talk to one another, that causes the communication gap among generations. This world, and its problems, is a tribute to the older ideology while Haight-Ashbury, and its pitiful demise, is the result of the younger ideology. And neither has acquired the goal they were seeking. Perhaps the answer is, after all, somewhere between these two extremes. It's about time we all tried looking for the solution together, instead of stubbornly defending our own way of life — unless, of course, your way of life has made you completely happy and contented.

Unfortunately, you cannot bridge that gap if you live in a house full of strangers. To solve that problem it only takes the courage to talk and to listen, but you would have to do it openly, honestly, and without anger. It takes time to build this kind of communication, but a family's unity is worth it. If youths and adults can understand where and why they differ, they might not differ nearly as much. Perhaps then we'll find a different way of life that actually does give us the goal we are all trying to achieve.

You Might Not Have Another Chance

I believe that the main reason for the generation gap is that it's the young people who are excepting the problems of today, and are trying to work them out, but the old won't help or except the youth of today. The old say that there are no problems. Where the youth can turn about and see the problems of today —for example, pollution, war, and population, and a great many more problems of today.

The old are the ones who have been making this world and they just won't let the young try to make a better world. The old are just going to have to face that the young are going to have the world. Let's face it — there's not much left and sooner or later there just won't be much of a world. All we're asking for is to let us try and see what we can do. Is that too much to ask? Remember it's either now or never. Because we might not have another chance.

It's Moral Gap That Divides Nation

The problem confronting America today as a "generation gap" can be understood better when redefined as a "moral gap."

Most of my peers see our country in the hands of those who are in the habit of lying to the public simply by waving the flag and spewing hollow rhetoric. President Nixon tells the nation "we all want peace" and continues ordering the largest mass of bombs dropped on any nation in recorded history in Vietnam. We "pledge allegiance" to have "liberty and justice for all" and continue the genocidal practices against Indians and Asians, and continue our inherited racist attitude of forcing second class citizenship upon Latins, Orientals, Blacks and poor whites. Moral hypocrisy.

Our government is making the world "safe for democracy" by giving aid to brutal and repressive governments like Greece, Brazil, and South Vietnam.

The tide of American sentiment is shifting from moral hypocrisy to moral commitment. If we continue to put "In God We Trust" on our money, then the slogan of American foreign and domestic policy should become one of love — because, God is Love. Guns and money as a means of influence are rapidly becoming obsolete. Universal truth and wisdom will replace nationalism and propaganda. It is not too far-fetched to hope that one day we'll all live under one flag as human beings, and see communism and capitalism melt into a world culture of loving brotherhood?

To you people over 30, I suggest you begin looking within to find answers to moral problems. Will you continue to pay taxes that are used to build empires, weapons, and mass polluters, or will you decide to spend your tax dollars on more humanitarian ventures such as saving the environment, helping the Indians reclaim their land, and changing our stone-age prisons into institutions that give love instead of punishment?

The Declaration of Independence no longer exists as mere rhetoric. It is a moral statement which pursues and outlines a course of action to be taken by each American, regardless of age, race, religion, or financial status, if this nation is to survive as a nation "of the people, by the people, and for the people." In other words, "Power to the people."

Can't Understand, But Can Cooperate

To begin with let's have a beginning! Once trouble has already started, it is impossible to take up the "rap" somewhere in the middle. If you can decide (together) what went wrong in the beginning, then you've got a good basis for further talks.

Here are some "dos" (for the do-ers):

1. Start talking (about anything).
2. Come together. Walking won't hurt you — don't be so shy.
3. If either side has problems, talk about them, but be gentle — remember how much it hurts.
4. Keep intimacies in the family — gossip starts wars, you know.

And some "don'ts" (for the over-aggressive):

5. Fault-naming is stupid! Who cares? Let's just correct whatever has been done.
6. Don't confuse talking with lecturing, OK?
7. Don't ever stop trying. Always leave $2 in your account so you can use it again.
8. Don't be an "I didn't mean to" person. Think before you speak.

Speaking personally folks, my husband and I are in the "under and over 30" categories. There are no cut-and-dried solutions to anything. Here is where our individualism comes in. Try your own methods. If you don't have any, then devise some.

Walking around with your head in a sling (you old sore-head!) and saying "woe is me" doesn't make points with the opposition. But a pat on the head and a doggie biscuit for good behavior works wonders!

Lastly, you will never understand each other. The guy who says, oh, I understand the youth of today, or the "under-30" who says he understands the older generation, has got to be kidding.

Good luck, world!

Christ Showed Way; We Should Try It

The generation gap is not new. Neither is the gap that exists between people limited to the under-over 30 group, but can and does exist within any given age bracket.

Some people believe education is the answer, but today we have masses of people with accumulated knowledge, yet most of them are sadly lacking in vision and understanding, regarding application to their fellow men.

The world down through all history has suffered because of this problem. Here are ways I believe we can bridge any gap between individuals:

1. Find a common ground on which to relate to each other, thus gradually building good communications.
2. Ignore the age, dress, race and so-called "status" of the individual and try to get to know the real person involved.
3. Be concerned about and reaching out to help people who are searching for answers to the problems of life.

The world needs to know the real person of Jesus Christ, and to experience the joy of knowing Him as their personal saviour. Being a Christian does not exempt us from having problems but does enable us to look at and solve them with a different perspective.

Herein lies real love and peace. It can be ours!

Different Values Between Young, Old

There is a generation gap, but only between some of the young and older generation.

I'm sure most of the older generation was brought up in a completely different atmosphere which had different values.

Many of the over-30s feel unless young people are married that it's wrong for them to be living under the same roof. Some people may have financial problems, but want to be independent and have responsibility. Others may care about each other, but feel they aren't ready for marriage. Times are always changing and people should learn to change with them. I'm sure some of the older generation did things when they were young that their parents opposed.

I think youth today is much more aware of what's happening in the world. We are concerned with pollution, ecology and the war. I think if there was more communication between the age groups, there would be a better understanding. This could be accomplished by listening to each other's opinion and trying to be objective. We may not understand why someone over 30 may think the war is justified; whereas the people I know feel it's meaningless — that our men and boys are being wounded and killed for no purpose.

We may disagree with many of the older generation's ideas of life, as they do with ours. By expressing what we feel and the reasoning behind it we may help to understand each other better.

HELEN HALVERSON

Must Bridge Gap Within Family Unit

In our society which is oriented towards technology, science and intellect there exists, more than ever before, the basic need for self-identity. The young and the over-30 alike seek to identify with the family unit, their respective peer groups, and with community norms. For many this is a never-ending battle complete with frustrations, scapegoats and lack of communications.

The presence of discontent, separation and divorce among the over-30 group indicates a failure to identify with the present value system. The younger generation senses this failure and they show indifference towards the established values and life-styles of their parents. Consequently, there is a conflict of interests and a lack of rapport between the generations, while each experiments with alternatives to replace the prevailing norms.

Self-identity for the young and the over-30 should have its foundation in the family unit. The family unit is fundamental, regardless of the times, because it instills the vital elements necessary in forming a constructive life style. These elements are love, faith and understanding. With these ingredients, the young and the over-30 possess the nucleus to build an acceptable value system and a proper perspective towards life. They have the nucleus to cope with the challenges from their respective peer groups and the where-with-all to meet the demands of the community. If the young and the over-30 fail to identify themselves with the family unit, the foundation for communication between the generations will collapse.

There is no substitute for love, faith, and understanding.

Try To Put Yourself In Other's Place

The "generation gap" to me is a term applied to the social and chronological age difference between the young and over-30 group.

It is a difference in attitude, culture and ideals. Perhaps the reason why can be found in the style of living today. The opportunities open to the young are also vast and the value placed on individual identity is great. The young and over-30 group must learn to meet each other halfway. I think each group must stop and think about why each different group feels the way they do about things. I think each group has the right to their own opinions in different circumstances and each group must develop an objective viewpoint of the other. For example, a young individual places a great value on his own identity, he seeks to venture out into the world to find it. An over-30 individual quickly forgets how long it took him to find his own identity and at times becomes irritated and impatient because it seems it takes too long for the young to make important decisions for themselves.

I think a conflict occurs when a group refuses to acknowledge the different values and opinions of the other group. True, the social and chronological age difference is there but one could agree, I think, that better communication and understanding can only be reached by individual cooperation.

The young must try to place himself in the position of the over-30 group and vice versa. It is these thoughts which I mentioned in the content of my letter which I believe can bring desired peace and harmony in the world. I think the young and over-30 group must really try to learn to do "their things" together.

OVER 30 YEARS

Youth Just Didn't Conform To Plan

To reach a better understanding we, the over-30 group, must look back to our own youth, our thoughts, actions, outlooks and visions of the future.

Hard to realize, but realize we must, the present 20s and 30s were born between 1941 and 1951. We over-30s grew up in times of isolationism, depression and peace. The draft was something new in World War I.

We were born in one area, went to grammar and high school in that area. As youngsters we played sandlot ball, coasted down the hills on push-mobiles, played roller skate hockey, and our bikes were our main mode of transportation. As we grew older we rode around in "cut down Fords," or "cords" (trousers) never were washed, we played our radios loud. The girls or young women bobbed their hair, wore rouge, started smoking cigarettes. We drank bootleg gin at speakeasies and every college fraternity house had its home brew crock. We shocked our parents and in their eyes were a generation that was surely going to hell.

The parents of the 20 to 30 group had no post-high school growing-up period, for many it was five or six years of war and another four or five years of hard study at college on the G.I. Bill. This was to achieve the status of "executive, engineer, doctor, lawyer, etc." with attendant transfers and relocations that has given us a mobile population.

Then too, the bomb. Many parents showered their yough with anything they desired — "they are our most precious possession — for in 10 years neither they nor we will be here" was the attitude.

The "let's not get involved" attitude, springing from World War II, has blinded us to realities. It perhaps is the major reason for crime today.

Our pampered youth have not grown up in our imaginary image according to plan. They want to get involved. They, with their loud music, styles of 100 years ago, Dn'l Boone haircuts and wildly painted VW busses shock us — but are they really so different than we were, or are they just youth as it has been through time immemorial growing up in the normal, usual way.

I believe so.

We, the older generation, should be proud of them in their sense of involvement, their different styles, their long hair, whiskers and all, for they are America's most cherished possession.

They are just growing up as did we, only in their different way, as it should be.

How Can We Agree? Can't Even Say Hello

Parents say they feel pride and joy at their children's graduation. Their children say screw the ceremonies and diploma.

My daughter and her friends say we should give them more freedom. Sociologists say this generation of parents was too lenient.

My college nephew says stop the war, government and society. His father says his son keeps writing for more money.

Ralph Nader says everything is unsafe.

The governor says our taxes will go up. The newspapers say he doesn't pay any.

My grocer says he must raise prices because of inflation. Our President says the economy is stabilizing.

Our child says he wants a horse very much. We say they are too expensive, and we buy a new car.

Dr. Spock says children are the only answer to tomorrow. Dr. Erlich says no one should have any more children.

My boss says take over for ⅛ of my salary whilst I play golf. Women's Liberation says we should demand our rights.

My aunt says trust in God. Some theologians say God is dead.

Old people say they are lonely. Younger people say two generations cannot live together.

The public says they object to the quality of movies and television. Hollywood and network television say they give us what we want.

Colleges say they need money to educate everyone. Business says Ph. D's cannot find jobs.

William Buckley says we have to fight for peace. The Bible says the meek shall inherit the earth.

Kids say "don't shoot, we're your children." Parents say don't bomb, we're your parents.

Young people say older people are hung up on sex. Welfare says older people must pay for babies of those not so hung up.

Love people say straight people ruin the atmosphere. Statistics say love people drive cars with no exhaust.

Doctors say men suffer early heart attacks from tension and overwork. Familes say they need many things which cost money.

Kids say they want to make decisions on all levels. Statistics say they do not vote when they are franchised.

The dictionary says generation gap means "begetting a parting." I say — how can we say goodbye when we never learned to say hello?

No Brotherhood Possible Without God

There has always been conflict between parents and youth regarding authority. Communication, understanding, and tolerance is needed in today's society, young and old.

Youth makes it very clear what their objections are. They want to cut through pretenses, the pretense of being something they are not. They are perceptive and see the games people play in today's society. The discrepancies between what people say and what they do. They do not want immunity from the challenge of life, as so many parents have contributed to their eternal damage, denying them nothing except responsibility.

They see the world makes wealth the criterion of success, yet they know that real success in life means the individual's conquest of himself. Life is not "What have I?" but "What am I?" They seek meaning to their life, depth, which is not of surface things, nor of material. But a genuine source of pride comes only from spiritual things, from a glory inside as when true love is experienced. There can be no brotherhood of man, without the Fatherhood of God.

They make their voices heard, and show their disregard for discipline and authority by reckless daring, hoping to outwit opposing forces and bring about a change, but harassing the government and showing their anger in their violent demonstrations will not bring about the changes needed in a society that is bordering on chaos.

We are faced with a moral gap. The words right and wrong are foreign in today's language, so is the definition of eithics as man's normal state, so is conscience as an inward monitor. When right and wrong become one and the same thing there is no defense against the anarchy of evil.

We must arouse our compassion, our cooperation, our finest instincts of succor and solidarity, and our ideas must be freely exchanged.

RAP SESSION: Letters From Young And Old

14 THROUGH 17

Solution Must Come On One-To-One Basis

I believe that the most important factor in establishing ties between youth and the older generation is if we are capable of talking on a common basis. All people should be open to hearing diverse comments and opinions contrary to those they have heard and believed for the duration of their lives. No topics should be withheld or treated with kid gloves. Neither should hold back any emotions, for withholding ideas and feelings at this point will create more chasms of difference and doubt that would be surmounted. It is important that those who talk should talk on a one-to-one basis, and not as a group. A group discussion held between dissenting people tends to discourage logical and productive collaborations. A person who volunteers a particularly one-sided idea may receive chastisement, subtle or not so subtle, from those who oppose his opinion.. The end result is that the opinionated person will feel even more bonded to those who share his idea. This can work both ways, with such mutual condemnation at best bringing on more arguments. The answer then is to talk, and to talk with general reciprocation.

It is important that those who talk in order to work together work inside of the system. The danger of working outside the republic (America was established as a republic and is now a democracy) is that in striving to achieve a goal there are those who would justify all means of acquiring it, usually destroying the country and all those in it on the way. (no, Virginia, logic does not predominate.)

In concluding this letter, I wish to say that in writing it I do not agree that there is a generation gap, instead a communication gap; between those who always speak, those who always listen, and those who do neither.

MIKE HELMS

San Rafael.

Add Cooperation And Consideration

To reach a better understanding of one another, we must look at the key word in solving the problem: communication. For if a generation communicates to a point where there is an understanding between them, then we can understand each other.

Today we have a two-way street of conversation. Our problem is that the younger and the older generation are not in the same lanes of conversation to communicate with one another.

To help keep communication alive, we should take a look at the words, cooperation and consideration. If we cooperate with one another while we communicate then we can reach a better understanding of one another. Also, if the younger and the older generation could take into consideration each other's feelings and understand them, then I feel we can bridge the Generation Gap, and we could fill the gap with understanding of one another.

So why don't we give it a try? Follow the three c's of communication, cooperation, and consideration. Let's bridge that gap with understanding!

MARCIA BILLINGS

Strip All Barriers To Unite Generations

I think there will always be a big gap between youth and the over-30, although there are considerable exceptions of older people who are and have been communicating for a long time, but that is only part of my reason for writing this, I also want to try to give some constructive solutions to the problem.

I know many people, including myself sometimes, that turn off to parents simply because of their attitude and the misunderstanding of their feelings and beliefs and vice versa. First above all you must have mutual trust and respect, also complete stripping of barriers and prejudices, that is hit "gut level" and accept people for what they are, not for what they should or can be. It's really very easy if you're willing to really try, be frank and say what you feel, but also listen and try to comprehend and understand our ideals and how we come to believe in them so strongly. I mean, everybody's always saying what a drag all the kids are, 'cause they've got the guts to get out in the street and tell the truth every day, and it's far out, it's great, but if you resort to violence you lose all, bombing, burning, beating and tear gassing will never win over, and it better be realized right now from both sides or we're in a lot of trouble.

The main thing I think we should realize is that we're all sacred human beings, struggling to stay alive, and that there should be no labels as "hippy," "pig," "longhair," etc. I think there is a lot of wrongs and rights on both sides, but we must have change, and we must bring it about by working together, because for the most part it seems as though we're all becoming parenoid. We also must be given the opportunity and responsibility to do things on our own and we must be listened to. There are a lot of stubborn people that refuse to cooperate or try to do anything, they're closed minded but we must be patient with them too because we owe it to them and ourselves.

"Rap sessions" are something I've seen work successfully and sometimes unsuccessfully, with both adults and parents, gaining each other's trust and deepest thoughts and dreams. Why hassel with clothes and hair etc. and small petty things as such, when we can be free and happy?

I think we have a lot to offer as well as you, but don't brush us off as "young idealist, naive children"; make us feel important, but in a way we can relate to.

The last thing I will say is that through all the recent protests against pollution, war, the draft, we are appealing to you to listen and to take affective action and help us, because if we don't do it nobody else is going to and we need each other to get it together.

COLLEEN WEBER

Novato.

Just Talking Won't Solve The Problem

Much of the gap between kids and adults is because of the Vietnam War. Unfortunately, none of today's youths had to go through the great depression or World War II, otherwise things today might be different. However when I'm told that the kids of today are the first "wild" generation, I have to point out to them the '20s and '30s which were probably the roughest 20 years in this century.

As such I don't think that sitting down and talking is going to do any good. Today's kids are fed up with the "establishment" because that is all they have been doing: sitting and talking. One suggestion would be to set up a governmental agency dedicated to listening and getting results done when those under 30 have legitimate problems and are definitely concerned with poverty, the war, racial discrimination, etc.

Although I am a staunch supporter of people's rights, the news media is one branch of today's scene who aren't helping matters any. They give undue publicity to those few terrorist groups which are bent on destroying the U.S. and imposing their will. One way to improve relations is to try and understand youth's peaceful aspect, which is certainly in the majority. Another way to improve relations between police and students is for junior and senior members of the force who are understanding to hold "rap sessions" to discuss police views, student views, and the world in general.

However, it isn't all up to the adults. Those under 30 must learn to understand the values, both moral, political, and social of those over 30. So in conclusion, I feel that there must be leeway on both sides and not all take.

BRUCE A. ADES

San Rafael.

We Must Let Youth Find Own Truths

My view of the generation gap is that there is a lack of understanding or a fear of change. The older generation doesn't understand the younger and vice versa, and the older generation is afraid of change because the need for it was less when they grew up. Also the older generation doesn't believe that youth is ready or capable of making their own decisions and the younger generation, of course, does.

The whole problem originated with the rapid changes occurring in society today. The older generation is set in a conservative mold and is unready and unwilling to change. They feel that the young people are not mature enough to make their own decisions about how they dress, spend their time, or what they do, and therefore the younger generation feels hopeless about being able to change things they see as bad (wars, laws) and are discouraged with the whole mess.

Also parents are upset with their children, who want to have longer hair or listen to loud music. Since these things are associated with "hippies" and other "bad" influences, this causes another battleground.

I believe the only way to solve the problem is by giving youth more of a voice in government, to let the younger generation find their own truths, not those of others who came before them, because these ethics are now being questioned. Also to listen to the requests of younger people before they turn into demands, and do something about them.

When We Understand, The Gap Is Bridged

The generation gap has been around as long as man has. In civilization's earliest writings, we find evidence of a gulf between the older and younger generations.

Isn't the generation gap a failure to communicate between two age groups? Communication is a two-way street — the blame for this gap can't be placed solely on either age group.

The gap is caused by both groups, and together both groups are going to have to build the bridge. But a bridge can be built. It's a bridge of understanding, acceptance, and love.

We need to look at people, not as members of either a younger or older generation, but simply as people, sharing the same basic needs. Each person needs to be accepted, to be understood. He needs to feel that he's wanted, that he's loved. We all share these needs, no matter how young or old we may be.

To bridge the gap we need to take time to listen. Stop and talk to your parents or kids. See what they're really trying to say. Really listen — don't just go through the motions. Opinions might differ — they're bound to at times — but try to respect a person's feelings even though they're different from your own.

Practice empathy — putting yourself in someone else's place. The adult seeing things from a young person's point of view; a young person trying to see through the eyes of an adult.

If we try to understand, care, and love a person for what he is —regardless of his age — we'll find that the gap has already been bridged.

Neither Has Found Road To Happiness

It's a small wonder that we are faced with the grim reality of a generation gap. Many people over the age of 30 have lived a life that is radically different from that of their children, and because of that their outlook on life is also different. As a result, one generation seeks material gain as a means of achieving happiness while the other rejects materialism and seeks personal fulfillment to achieve happiness. It is interesting to note that everyone is at one extreme or the other while trying to achieve the same goal.

It is these two extremes, along with the fact that so few families ever really talk to one another, that causes the communication gap among generations. This world, and its problems, is a tribute to the older ideology while Haight-Ashbury, and its pitiful demise, is the result of the younger ideology. And neither has acquired the goal they were seeking. Perhaps the answer is, after all, somewhere between these two extremes. It's about time we all tried looking for the solution together, instead of stubbornly defending our own way of life — unless, of course, your way of life has made you completely happy and contented.

Unfortunately, you cannot bridge that gap if you live in a house full of strangers. To solve that problem it only takes the courage to talk and to listen, but you would have to do it openly, honestly, and without anger. It takes time to build this kind of communication, but a family's unity is worth it. If youths and adults can understand where and why they differ, they might not differ nearly as much. Perhaps then we'll find a different way of life that actually does give us the goal we are all trying to achieve.

Can't Understand, But Can Cooperate

To begin with let's have a beginning! Once trouble has already started, it is impossible to take up the "rap" somewhere in the middle. If you can decide (together) what went wrong in the beginning, then you've got a good basis for further talks.

Here are some "dos" (for the do-ers):

1. Start talking (about anything).
2. Come together. Walking won't hurt you — don't be so shy.
3. If either side has problems, talk about them, but be gentle — remember how much it hurts.
4. Keep intimacies in the family — gossip starts wars, you know.

And some "don'ts" (for the over-aggressive):

5. Fault-naming is stupid! Who cares? Let's just correct whatever has been done.
6. Don't confuse talking with lecturing, OK?
7. Don't ever stop trying. Always leave $2 in your account so you can use it again.
8. Don't be an "I didn't mean to" person. Think before you speak.

Speaking personally folks, my husband and I are in the "under and over 30" categories. There are no cut-and-dried solutions to anything. Here is where our individualism comes in. Try your own methods. If you don't have any, then devise some.

Walking around with your head in a sling (you old sore-head!) and saying "woe is me" doesn't make points with the opposition. But a pat on the head and a doggie biscuit for good behavior works wonders!

Lastly, you will never understand each other. The guy who says, oh, I understand the youth of today, or the "under-30" who says he understands the older generation, has got to be kidding.

Good luck, world!

Christ Showed Way; We Should Try It

The generation gap is not new. Neither is the gap that exists between people limited to the under-over 30 group, but can and does exist within any given age bracket.

Some people believe education is the answer, but today we have masses of people with accumulated knowledge, yet most of them are sadly lacking in vision and understanding, regarding application to their fellow men.

The world down through all history has suffered because of this problem. Here are ways I believe we can bridge any gap between individuals:

1. Find a common ground on which to relate to each other, thus gradually building good communications.
2. Ignore the age, dress, race and so-called "status" of the individual and try to get to know the real person involved.
3. Be concerned about and reaching out to help people who are searching for answers to the problems of life.

The world needs to know the real person of Jesus Christ, and to experience the joy of knowing Him as their personal saviour. Being a Christian does not exempt us from having problems but does enable us to look at and solve them with a different perspective.

Herein lies real love and peace. It can be ours!

Different Values Between Young, Old

There is a generation gap, but only between some of the young and older generation.

I'm sure most of the older generation was brought up in a completely different atmosphere which had different values.

Many of the over-30s feel unless young people are married that it's wrong for them to be living under the same roof. Some people may have financial problems, but want to be independent and have responsibility. Others may care about each other, but feel they aren't ready for marriage. Times are always changing and people should learn to change with them. I'm sure some of the older generation did things when they were young that their parents opposed.

I think youth today is much more aware of what's happening in the world. We are concerned with pollution, ecology and the war. I think if there was more communication between the age groups, there would be a better understanding. This could be accomplished by listening to each other's opinion and trying to be objective. We may not understand why someone over 30 may think the war is justified; whereas the people I know feel it's meaningless — that our men and boys are being wounded and killed for no purpose.

We may disagree with many of the older generation's ideas of life, as they do with ours. By expressing what we feel and the reasoning behind it we may help to understand each other better.

Must Bridge Gap Within Family Unit

In our society which is oriented towards technology, science and intellect there exists, more than ever before, the basic need for self-identity. The young and the over-30 alike seek to identify with the family unit, their respective peer groups, and with community norms. For many this is a never-ending battle complete with frustrations, scapegoats and lack of communications.

The presence of discontent, separation and divorce among the over-30 group indicates a failure to identify with the present value system. The younger generation senses this failure and they show indifference towards the established values and life-styles of their parents. Consequently, there is a conflict of interests and a lack of rapport between the generations, while each experiments with alternatives to replace the prevailing norms.

Self-identity for the young and the over-30 should have its foundation in the family unit. The family unit is fundamental, regardless of the times, because it instills the vital elements necessary in forming a constructive life style. These elements are love, faith and understanding. With these ingredients, the young and the over-30 possess the nucleus to build an acceptable value system and a proper perspective towards life. They have the nucleus to cope with the challenges from their respective peer groups and the where-with-all to meet the demands of the community. If the young and the over-30 fail to identify themselves with the family unit, the foundation for communication between the generations will collapse.

There is no substitute for love, faith, and understanding.

Try To Put Yourself In Other's Place

The "generation gap" to me is a term applied to the social and chronological age difference between the young and over-30 group.

It is a difference in attitude, culture and ideals. Perhaps the reason why can be found in the style of living today. The opportunities open to the young are also vast and the value placed on individual identity is great. The young and over-30 group must learn to meet each other halfway. I think each group must stop and think about why each different group feels the way they do about things. I think each group has the right to their own opinions in different circumstances and each group must develop an objective viewpoint of the other. For example, a young individual places a great value on his own identity, he seeks to venture out into the world to find it. An over-30 individual quickly forgets how long it took him to find his own identity and at times becomes irritated and impatient because it seems it takes too long for the young to make important decisions for themselves.

I think a conflict occurs when a group refuses to acknowledge the different values and opinions of the other group. True, the social and chronological age difference is there but one could agree, I think, that better communication and understanding can only be reached by individual cooperation.

The young must try to place himself in the position of the over-30 group and vice versa. It is these thoughts which I mentioned in the content of my letter which I believe can bring desired peace and harmony in the world. I think the young and over-30 group must really try to learn to do "their things" together.

OVER 30 YEARS

Youth Just Didn't Conform To Plan

To reach a better understanding we, the over-30 group, must look back to our own youth, our thoughts, actions, outlooks and visions of the future.

Hard to realize, but realize we must, the present 20s and 30s were born between 1941 and 1951. We over-30s grew up in times of isolationism, depression and peace. The draft was something new in World War I.

We were born in one area, went to grammar and high school in that area. As youngsters we played sandlot ball, coasted down the hills on push-mobiles, played roller skate hockey, and our bikes were our main mode of transportation. As we grew older we rode around in "cut down Fords," or "cords" (trousers) never were washed, we played our radios loud. The girls or young women bobbed their hair, wore rouge, started smoking cigarettes. We drank bootleg gin at speakeasies and every college fraternity house had its home brew crock. We shocked our parents and in their eyes were a generation that was surely going to hell.

The parents of the 20 to 30 group had no post-high school growing-up period, for many it was five or six years of war and another four or five years of hard study at college on the G.I. Bill. This was to achieve the status of "executive, engineer, doctor, lawyer, etc." with attendant transfers and relocations that has given us a mobile population.

Then too, the bomb. Many parents showered their yough with anything they desired — "they are our most precious possession — for in 10 years neither they nor we will be here" was the attitude.

The "let's not get involved" attitude, springing from World War II, has blinded us to realities. It perhaps is the major reason for crime today.

Our pampered youth have not grown up in our imaginary image according to plan. They want to get involved. They, with their loud music, styles of 100 years ago, Dn'l Boone haircuts and wildly painted VW busses shock us — but are they really so different than we were, or are they just youth as it has been through time immemorial growing up in the normal, usual way.

I believe so.

We, the older generation, should be proud of them in their sense of involvement, their different styles, their long hair, whiskers and all, for they are America's most cherished possession.

They are just growing up as did we, only in their different way, as it should be.

How Can We Agree? Can't Even Say Hello

Parents say they feel pride and joy at their children's graduation. Their children say screw the ceremonies and diploma.

My daughter and her friends say we should give them more freedom. Sociologists say this generation of parents was too lenient.

My college nephew says stop the war, government and society. His father says his son keeps writing for more money.

Ralph Nader says everything is unsafe.

The governor says our taxes will go up. The newspapers say he doesn't pay any.

My grocer says he must raise prices because of inflation. Our President says the economy is stabilizing.

Our child says he wants a horse very much. We say they are too expensive, and we buy a new car.

Dr. Spock says children are the only answer to tomorrow. Dr. Erlich says no one should have any more children.

My boss says take over for ⅛ of my salary whilst I play golf. Women's Liberation says we should demand our rights.

My aunt says trust in God. Some theologians say God is dead.

Old people say they are lonely. Younger people say two generations cannot live together.

The public says they object to the quality of movies and television. Hollywood and network television say they give us what we want.

Colleges say they need money to educate everyone. Business says Ph. D's cannot find jobs.

William Buckley says we have to fight for peace. The Bible says the meek shall inherit the earth.

Kids say "don't shoot, we're your children." Parents say don't bomb, we're your parents.

Young people say older people are hung up on sex. Welfare says older people must pay for babies of those not so hung up.

Love people say straight people ruin the atmosphere. Statistics say love people drive cars with no exhaust.

Doctors say men suffer early heart attacks from tension and overwork. Familes say they need many things which cost money.

Kids say they want to make decisions on all levels. Statistics say they do not vote when they are franchised.

The dictionary says generation gap means "begetting a parting." I say — how can we say goodbye when we never learned to say hello?

No Brotherhood Possible Without God

There has always been conflict between parents and youth regarding authority. Communication, understanding, and tolerance is needed in today's society, young and old.

Youth makes it very clear what their objections are. They want to cut through pretenses, the pretense of being something they are not. They are perceptive and see the games people play in today's society. The discrepancies between what people say and what they do. They do not want immunity from the challenge of life, as so many parents have contributed to their eternal damage, denying them nothing except responsibility.

They see the world makes wealth the criterion of success, yet they know that real success in life means the individual's conquest of himself. Life is not "What have I?" but "What am I?" They seek meaning to their life, depth, which is not of surface things, nor of material. But a genuine source of pride comes only from spiritual things, from a glory inside as when true love is experienced. There can be no brotherhood of man, without the Fatherhood of God.

They make their voices heard, and show their disregard for discipline and authority by reckless daring, hoping to outwit opposing forces and bring about a change, but harassing the government and showing their anger in their violent demonstrations will not bring about the changes needed in a society that is bordering on chaos.

We are faced with a moral gap. The words right and wrong are foreign in today's language, so is the definition of eithics as man's normal state, so is conscience as an inward monitor. When right and wrong become one and the same thing there is no defense against the anarchy of evil.

We must arouse our compassion, our cooperation, our finest instincts of succor and solidarity, and our ideas must be freely exchanged.

Aaron's Panel Backs Crime Lab

Marin County should establish a centralized crime laboratory for such services as analysis of drugs, ballistics tests, and blood alcohol tests, the county community relations committee decided Thursday.

The committee, headed by Bella H. Aaron, voted unanimously for a resolution presented by Sausalito Police Chief James Wright, chairman of the Centralized Police Services Council of Marin.

Wright said his group has been trying for three years to get state funding for the crime lab, but so far, no state funds are available. On his motion, the committee asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors to set up a crime lab in the county sheriff's department at the Hall of Justice. Such a lab would have two criminalists plus various equipment, and would cost more than $100,000 to install.

Mrs. Aaron reported that the police community relations program in Marin received $130,307 from the California Council on Criminal Justice to finance the 1971-72 program. The grant will permit the police cadet program to expand from the present 10 cadets to 15 cadets next year, said Mrs. Aaron.

The first soybeans were brought to America in 1804.

Budget Session On Wednesday

Directors of the Strawberry Recreation District have set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to review a preliminary budget for 1971-72.

Also on the agenda is consideration of leasing district-owned swimming facilities to the Strawberry Swim Club at a sixfold increase in rent. A lease prepared for board action will be for $3,000 per year. The club currently pays $500 per year.

In other business, the board will consider amending its contract with Mill Valley Refuse Service for garbage pickup to provide for collection of debris for recycling by Whole Systems, Inc.

On a typical week-day about 2.6 million long distance telephone calls originate in Los Angeles.

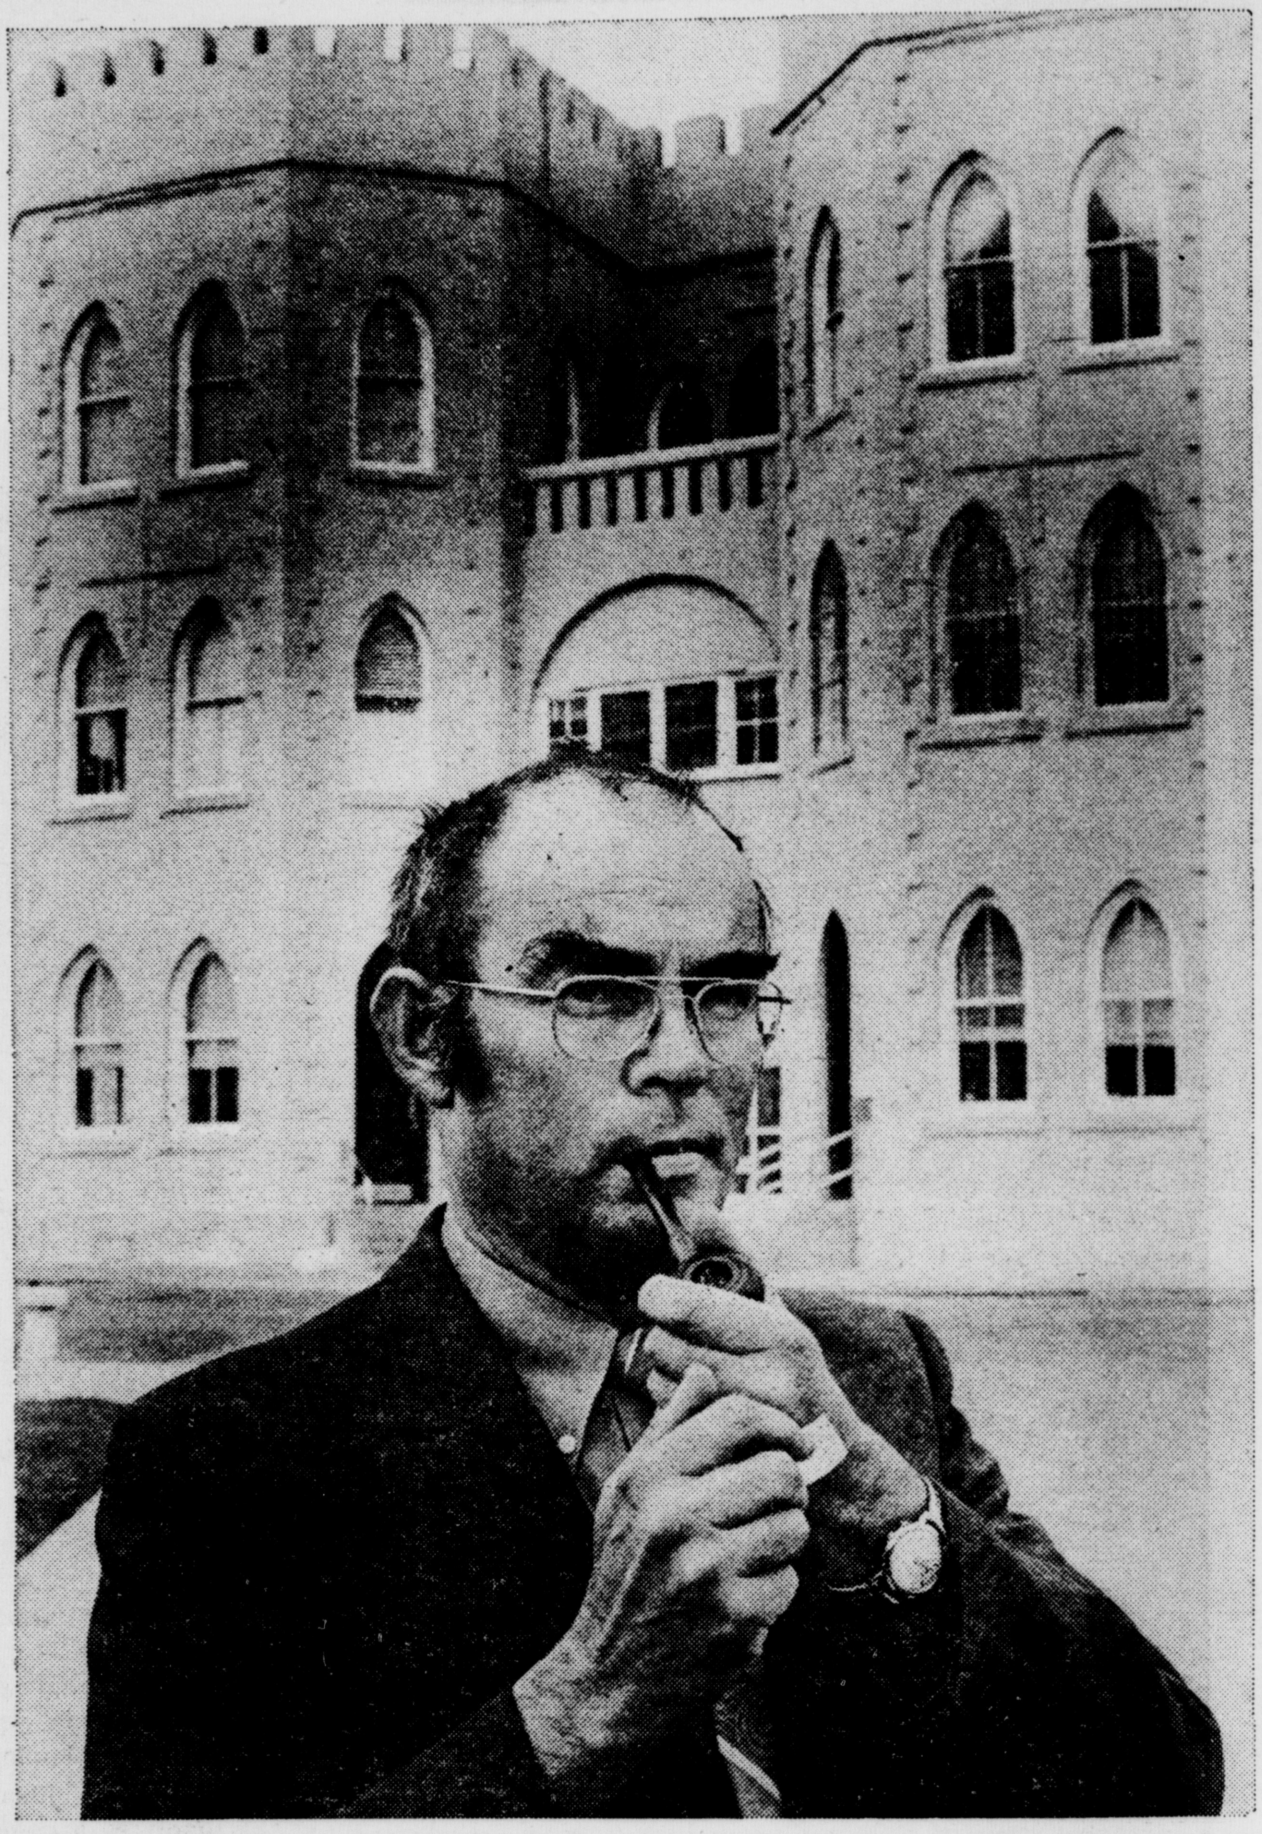
San Quentin's Jim Park Enjoys His Work With 'People Full of Life'



JAMES W. L. PARK, associate warden at San Quentin Prison since 1964, says he has never regretted the decision he made to give up his earlier profession of clinical psychologist to go into prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he says. And he finds the people with whom he works at San Quentin "full of life."

By MARY LEYDECKER

James W. L. Park, associate warden at San Quentin, has never regretted giving up clinical psychology for prison work "because our people are so full of life."

"Even the best-run mental hospitals are depressing," he said, in contrast to the prison "where the people are alert — thinking all the time."

The biggest problem he has in walking through the yard is that "everyone wants to stop me to talk," Park said.

THE MAN WHO "got into prison work by accident" was born in Niagara Falls, N.Y., in 1922. When he was 3-years-old, his family moved to Southern California, where his father was a conductor on the old Los Angeles railway.

"It was a typical story of the 1920s," Park said. His father bought a chicken ranch but found he needed more income to support his family.

In 1932 his father became involved in "a bitter strike" with the railway and the "family fortunes declined considerably."

"I CAN'T TELL a story of great suffering," Park said. "It was just a case of a middle-class family fallen on hard times." His family was on welfare for awhile and his mother worked on WPA projects. "Relief kept us from starvation, and I mowed lawns for what money I needed," Park said.

After attending schools in Pasadena and El Monte High School, Park was in his second year at Pasadena Junior College in 1941 when he signed up with the Air Force.

Following training in Texas, Park was sent to Italy, where he flew 51 missions over Europe as a pilot of a Liberator bomber.

FLYING THE big plane was like "driving a truck," Park said, quoting, "someone once said it's hours of utmost tedium punctuated by seconds of terror."

"It was a different war from now," Park said, adding that, "I grew up and found direction while in military service."

Returning to Occidental College after the war, Park, who had been a mediocre student in junior college, earned a Phi Beta Kappa key in clinical psychology. He went on to fulfill all the requirements for a Ph.D. Degree except the thesis "when I got tired of going to school."

BY THAT TIME he and his wife, Betty, whom he married in 1945, also had one child. (Their oldest son, Roger, 21, was killed in an auto accident last year. The Parks, who live on the prison grounds, have two other teen-age boys.)

"I got into the prison business purely by accident," Park said. He heard that the prison at Chino needed a psychologist, so he applied for and landed the job.

After three and a half years working at the reception center at Chino interviewing and diagnosing incoming prisoners, Park was transferred to Sacramento, where he held an administrative job approving transfers of prisoners.

THERE FOLLOWED an administrative job at Soledad. Then in 1964 he was appointed associate warden at San Quentin with responsibilities of administering Death Row and dealing with the news media.

Respected and liked by the press with whom he talks daily, Park said that his policy is "to give unembellished facts — not stack the deck against the inmates."

His years behind prison walls have given Park many ideas and theories about prisons and prisoners, but one of the strongest is that "there are no panaceas" that will correct wrongs in the penal system.

"OUR CRITICS think there is some magic cure that we're either too stupid or too malicious to recognize," Park said.

"All the programs help someone," he said, speaking of education, vocational training and counseling.

"We're still wrestling with the concepts of the reform movement of the 1930s," Park replied, when asked about new directions that may be taken in prisons.

CHANGES THAT were then cited as being humanitarian advances are now being criticized, he said.

The indeterminate sentence, intended to eliminate inconsistencies among sentencing judges as well as give prisoners a chance to be freed if then seemed rehabilitated, is now called "archaic," Park noted. The prison industries, started to reduce idleness and boredom, are called slave labor.

During the years, because of the state's emphasis on increased use of probation, the prison population has changed, too, he said.

"WE NOW GET either the very difficult persons — who commit crimes of violence — or we get the habitual criminal," he said.

Park smilingly explained that by "habitual criminal," he meant chronic offenders, "not professional criminals."

Such men are likely to have good intentions but "foul up and get into trouble again" as soon as they get out of prison, he said. He added that he could only recall "four or five Mafia members" who had been in San Quentin since he has been there.

"I guess that professional criminals don't get caught very often," he added.

THE PRISONERS are, however, "people whom the community can't tolerate any more," Park said.

"What do you do about a guy who is just a persistent thief? Park asked. "It costs more to keep him locked up than he takes in loot, but I don't have the answer."

"The roots of crime are in the community — the solution has to be found there," Park concluded.

PARK TRIES IN his private life to "work within the system to make needed changes" and has been active in ecumenical housing projects.

Park's job, however, is really his life, and he has never regretted giving up pure psychology for prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he concluded.

"Why Is There So Much Fuss Over Garment Tags?"

The reason is, sorry to say, that some manufacturers have used garment tags to mislead customers. Therefore the government has required that garment tags be more specific and truthful.

Some tags skirt the truth in describing fibers in garments. Now the law requires that tags give the generic name of the fiber; that is, nylon, polyester, triacetate, cotton, wool, etc. and the percentage, by weight, that the fabric contains.

Further, fiber trademarks may not be used in such a way as to imply that a fabric is made solely of a specific fiber, unless it is. Nor may a trade name be used that might infer that a particular fiber has been used, if it has not been used. For instance, a fabric could not be named "Nylonic" if it does not contain nylon. It is illegal, also, to picture a lamb on a tag if the fabric does not contain wool.

Tags must be truthful in every respect so that they may assist a customer in deciding whether or not she wants the fabric. And that, Mrs. C. H. N., is the reason for the "fuss" over tags.

San Quentin's Jim Park Enjoys His Work With 'People Full of Life'

By MARY LEYDECKER

James W. L. Park, associate warden at San Quentin, has never regretted giving up clinical psychology for prison work "because our people are so full of life."

"Even the best-run mental hospitals are depressing," he said, in contrast to the prison "where the people are alert — thinking all the time."

The biggest problem he has in walking through the yard is that "everyone wants to stop me to talk," Park said.

THE MAN WHO "got into prison work by accident" was born in Niagara Falls, N.Y., in 1922. When he was 3-years-old, his family moved to Southern California, where his father was a conductor on the old Los Angeles railway.

"It was a typical story of the 1920s," Park said. His father bought a chicken ranch but found he needed more income to support his family.

In 1932 his father became involved in "a bitter strike" with the railway and the "family fortunes declined considerably."

"I CAN'T TELL a story of great suffering," Park said. "It was just a case of a middle-class family fallen on hard times." His family was on welfare for awhile and his mother worked on WPA projects. "Relief kept us from starvation, and I mowed lawns for what money I needed," Park said.

After attending schools in Pasadena and El Monte High School, Park was in his second year at Pasadena Junior College in 1941 when he signed up with the Air Force.

Following training in Texas, Park was sent to Italy, where he flew 51 missions over Europe as a pilot of a Liberator bomber.

FLYING THE big plane was like "driving a truck," Park said, quoting, "someone once said it's hours of utmost tedium punctuated by seconds of terror."

"It was a different war from now," Park said, adding that, "I grew up and found direction while in military service."

Returning to Occidental College after the war, Park, who had been a mediocre student in junior college, earned a Phi Beta Kappa key in clinical psychology. He went on to fulfill all the requirements for a Ph.D. Degree except the thesis "when I got tired of going to school."

BY THAT TIME he and his wife, Betty, whom he married in 1945, also had one child. (Their oldest son, Roger, 21, was killed in an auto accident last year. The Parks, who live on the prison grounds, have two other teen-age boys.)

"I got into the prison business purely by accident," Park said. He heard that the prison at Chino needed a psychologist, so he applied for and landed the job.

After three and a half years working at the reception center at Chino interviewing and diagnosing incoming prisoners, Park was transferred to Sacramento, where he held an administrative job approving transfers of prisoners.

THERE FOLLOWED an administrative job at Soledad. Then in 1964 he was appointed associate warden at San Quentin with responsibilities of administering Death Row and dealing with the news media.

Respected and liked by the press with whom he talks daily, Park said that his policy is "to give unembellished facts — not stack the deck against the inmates."

His years behind prison walls have given Park many ideas and theories about prisons and prisoners, but one of the strongest is that "there are no panaceas" that will correct wrongs in the penal system.

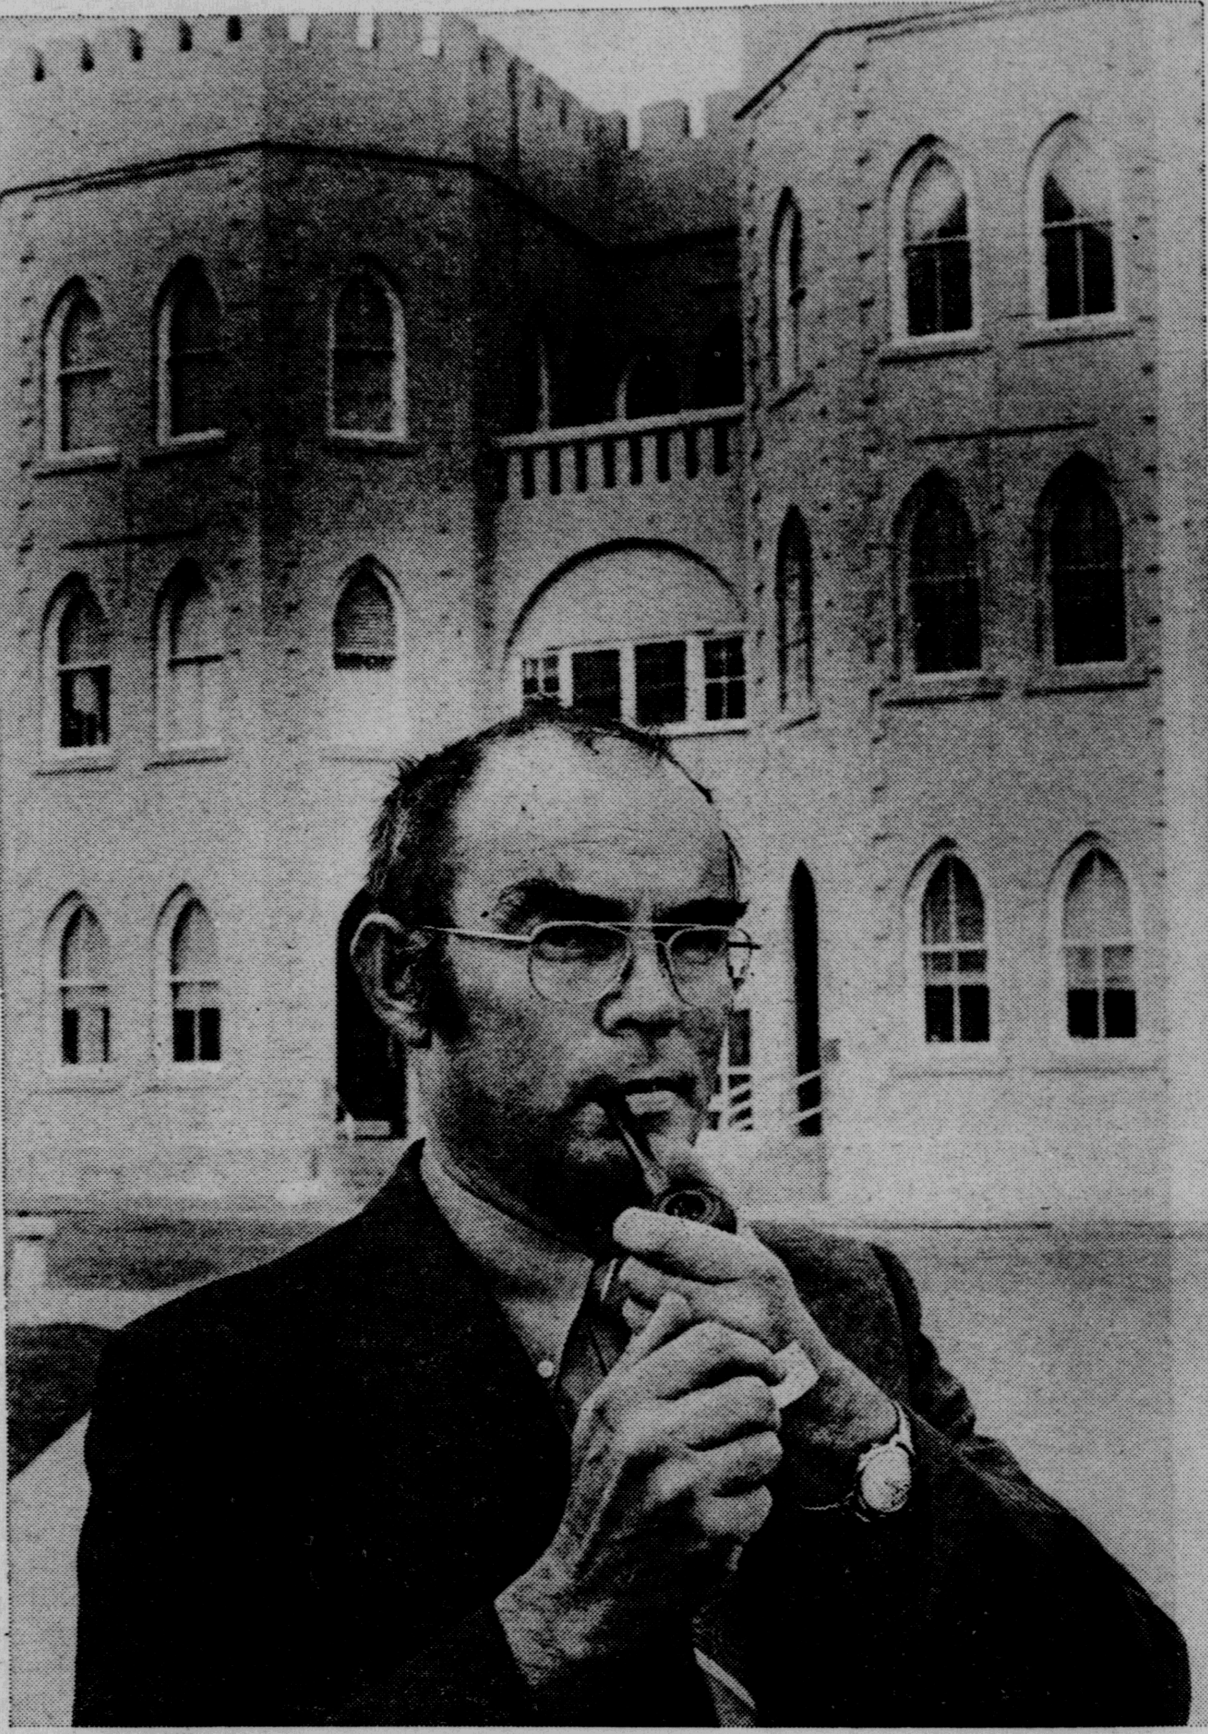
"OUR CRITICS think there is some magic cure that we're either too stupid or too malicious to recognize," Park said.

"All the programs help someone," he said, speaking of education, vocational training and counseling.

"We're still wrestling with the concepts of the reform movement of the 1930s," Park replied, when asked about new directions that may be taken in prisons.

CHANGES THAT were then cited as being humanitarian advances are now being criticized, he said.

The indeterminate sentence, intended to eliminate inconsistencies among sentencing judges as well as give prisoners a chance to be freed if then seemed rehabilitated, is now called "archaic," Park noted. The prison industries, started to reduce idleness and boredom, are called slave labor.



JAMES W. L. PARK, associate warden at San Quentin Prison since 1964, says he has never regretted the decision he made to give up his earlier profession of clinical psychologist to go into prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he says. And he finds the people with whom he works at San Quentin "full of life."

During the years, because of the state's emphasis on increased use of probation, the prison population has changed, too, he said.

"WE NOW GET either the very difficult persons — who commit crimes of violence — or we get the habitual criminal," he said.

Park smilingly explained that by "habitual criminal," he meant chronic offenders, "not professional criminals."

Such men are likely to have good intentions but "foul up and get into trouble again" as soon as they get out of prison, he said. He added that he could only recall "four or five Mafia members" who had been in San Quentin since he has been there.

"I guess that professional criminals don't get caught very often," he added.

THE PRISONERS are, however, "people whom the community can't tolerate any more," Park said.

"What do you do about a guy who is just a persistent thief? Park asked. "It costs more to keep him locked up than he takes in loot, but I don't have the answer."

"The roots of crime are in the community — the solution has to be found there," Park concluded.

PARK TRIES IN his private life to "work within the system to make needed changes" and has been active in ecumenical housing projects.

Park's job, however, is really his life, and he has never regretted giving up pure psychology for prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he concluded.

Most creative artists feel a pride and a fondness for their finished work.

But Evans and Elaine Burke hold a special affection for their musical revue, "Burlesque Ain't Dead — Bump! Bump! Bump!"

For it was during their initial collaboration upon the show that a romance developed between Evans Burke and Elaine Fink and led to their marriage in 1956.

The following year they saw portions of the revue produced on CBS network television under the title "Party of Five" on the Repertoire Workshop series.

Through the years the married Burkes continued to polish and add to their script, Elaine doing the music, Evans the book and lyrics.

IT WAS NOT until last fall that the Burkes witnessed a complete, on-stage production of their revue, by the Novato Community Players in the Novato Community House.

And now, next Friday and Saturday, and again on June 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. in the Corte Madera Recreation Center, the Novato Community Players,

Developing Marin's Abundant Talent

Evans Burke Finds This Satisfying

with some cast changes and with new additions to the script, will again perform "Burlesque Ain't Dead," this time as a benefit for the Marin unit of the American Cancer Society.

Nor will those performances mark the demise of the revue.

"IT IS ONE of those things we will probably go on adding to and improving upon, for years to come," says Evans Burke. "Whenever we have the time, we sit down and go to work on 'Burlesque Ain't Dead'."

The Burkes moved to Marin County two years ago, and brought with them impressive backgrounds in the entertainment field.

Evans made his first film appearance in a Coast Guard documentary while in service. After his discharge he studied at the National Academy of Broadcasting and the Louis Thompson School of Music, both in Washington D.C. There, too, he acted with little theater groups, made radio and television appearances in nearby Baltimore, and with the help of his teachers rid himself of his South Carolina accent.

IN 1958 HE studied at the Gubi Mann School of Theater Arts while supporting himself as a nightclub singer and hotel clerk.

There followed several years of varied experience in show business including parts in such movies as "Once a Thief" and "In Harm's Way," work on television shows such as "Divorce Court," "Chance for Romance" and "The Pitts Showroom of Hits," television commercials, off-Broadway and summer stock acting, more nightclub singing and the operation of his own drama studio plus teaching at the Dartmouth Summer School of Theater Arts.

MUSIC NOT ONLY plays a major role in the professional lives and in the hobbies of the Evans Burkes, but it is also a big thing in their family life. In their Santa Venetia home, Evans and son Mike, 3, strum their guitars, while Elaine Burke and twin daughters Laura and Lisa, 1½, make up their appreciative audience.

He formed his own troupe, the Random Walkers, to play the coffee house circuit.

IT WAS AFTER he had moved to Los Angeles that he met talented Elaine Fink while they were both appearing in the musical show, "Dakota." Then followed the collaboration upon their own musical revue — and marriage.

Elaine Burke is an Illinois girl who attended the University of Michigan for two years, majoring in music education, singing with a college dance band and appearing in musical shows.

She graduated from the University of Illinois with a Bachelor's Degree in Music, and wrote original musicals while there.

COMING TO California, she studied film scoring with Leith Stevens of UCLA and arranging with Hal Johnson in Hollywood, while teaching choral music.

With the "Hootenanny" the rage at the time, she left teaching to play guitar and sing with a folk music quartet called The Villagers. They played in virtually all the major concert halls of the country including a sell-out performance in New York City's Carnegie Hall, and toured military bases and colleges as well as clubs.

Elaine did the musical and vocal arrangements for an album recorded by the group for RCA Victor.

WHEN THE Villagers disbanded, Elaine joined a nightclub act and continued to travel, doing comedy as well as singing and dancing.

Then came the part in "Dakota" and the meeting with Evans Burke.

Following their marriage, the two formed a cocktail lounge act with Elaine at the piano and with both singing. They played principally in Southern California and Nevada.

IT WAS THE arrival of first child Mike, now 3, that caused a change in the Burke life style. As a father with family responsibilities, Evans decided to settle down to a more regular employment. Fortunately he was able to find a job that allowed him to keep his hands in the entertainment field — doing promotional shows on tourism for the flourishing Uni-

A Musical Revue That Is Still Growing

tours Travel Agency.

After a year of work for Unitours in Los Angeles, he transferred to Northern California and its Sausalito office.

The Burkes now make their home in Santa Venetia, and along with son Mike have two other children, twin daughters Laura and Lisa, 18 months old.

EVANS' UNITOURS job and the family's home life now come first with the Burkes. But "show business" and music remain very active hobbies with the two parents.

Thus their continued collaboration on "Burlesque Ain't Dead" until it now totals 25 musical productions, blackouts and skits, performed with a nine-piece orchestra which Elaine conducts and for which she has done all the arrangements.

There has been other music-writing, too.

"WE HAVE stacks of songs at home," says Evans.

And he has written the musical score for a stage adaptation by Howard Richardson and Frances Goforth of "God's Little Acre" entitled "Honey in the Rock."

The original production plays for "Honey in the Rock" failed to materialize, but Burke still has high hopes for the show.

"THE MUSIC," he says, "is hillbilly, and I really think it is quiet good. The show is for a cast of six, and I believe it has terrific possibilities."

Elaine Burke gives piano lessons in her home.

She plays the French horn in the Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Non-Marching Band, from which organization most of the musicians in the orchestra for the Corte Madera performances of "Burlesque Ain't Dead" will be drawn.

THE BURKES have also formed a singing group called Generation Gap, composed of Marinites "a bit over 30."

Elaine, the director, describes them as "Johnny Mann-type singers." They sing such songs as "Up, Up and Away" and "Monday, Monday." And their next big date comes up in the fall when they will sing at the annual Ski Swap show in the new auditorium at the Marin Civic Center.

The group "does it just for the fun of singing," says Elaine, and holds no high professional aspirations.

DOESN'T THEIR Marin residency put the Burkes out of touch with the centers of show business in Southern California and New York?

Perhaps, they admit. But neither has any desire to return to Los Angeles or to the East — "to the rat race."

"We are simply wild about Marin," says Evans. And Elaine agrees.

Along with scenery, climate and culture, one of the facets of Marin living that the Burkes find most appealing is the creative talent that abounds here.

"THERE IS more talent in Marin County than in any place I have ever been," says Evans. "Much of it is undeveloped. But it is there, waiting to be developed."

He does just that in a drama workshop he conducts every Friday night under Novato Community Players auspices.

"My big stick in life is directing and teaching," he says. And he feels doubly fortunate in being able to realize those ambitions during both his Unitours "office hours" and his after-work activities. But he would like to see a county-wide repertory company in Marin that would perform the year-around.

As for Elaine, "my home comes first with me now. But I find time for teaching piano, for writing music and for the Generation Gap."

OF HIS WIFE'S musical compositions, Evans says: "While I can write music, and have done so, she is the expert composer in the family."

The Burkes take an interest in community affairs, too, and Evans serves on the board of the Gallinas Village Community Services District, and edits its bulletin, the Village Voice.

It's a service that Evans Burke particularly enjoys "because it gives you a feeling that you have roots in your community."

THIS ABSENCE of roots can be one of the occupational hazards of the entertainer, he notes.

A determination that young Mike and his little twin sisters shall never be confronted by this problem that has plagued so many offspring in show business families is one big reason why the Burkes are so content as regular residents of a typical Marin community. The bright lights of Hollywood and Broadway no longer hold any allure. They'll settle for their work with the Generation Gap or the Novato Community Players. And for evenings spent in the comfort of their own living room, their children at the sides or seated comfortable in their laps.

A Musical Revue That Is Still Growing

tours Travel Agency.

After a year of work for Unitours in Los Angeles, he transferred to Northern California and its Sausalito office.

The Burkes now make their home in Santa Venetia, and along with son Mike have two other children, twin daughters Laura and Lisa, 18 months old.

EVANS' UNITOURS job and the family's home life now come first with the Burkes. But "show business" and music remain very active hobbies with the two parents.

Thus their continued collaboration on "Burlesque Ain't Dead'' until it now totals 25 musical productions, blackouts and skits, performed with a nine-piece orchestra which Elaine conducts and for which she has done all the arrangements.

There has been other music-writing, too.

"WE HAVE stacks of songs at home," says Evans.

And he has written the musical score for a stage adaptation by Howard Richardson and Frances Goforth of "God's Little Acre" entitled "Honey in the Rock."

The original production plays for "Honey in the Rock" failed to materialize, but Burke still has high hopes for the show.

"THE MUSIC," he says, "is hillbilly, and I really think it is quiet good. The show is for a cast of six, and I believe it has terrific possibilities."

Elaine Burke gives piano lessons in her home.

She plays the French horn in the Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Non-Marching Band, from which organization most of the musicians in the orchestra for the Corte Madera performances of "Burlesque Ain't Dead" will be drawn.

THE BURKES have also formed a singing group called Generation Gap, composed of Marinites "a bit over 30."

Elaine, the director, describes them as "Johnny Mann-type singers." They sing such songs as "Up, Up and Away" and "Monday, Monday." And their next big date comes up in the fall when they will sing at the annual Ski Swap show in the new auditorium at the Marin Civic Center.

The group "does it just for the fun of singing,'' says Elaine, and holds no high professional aspirations.

DOESN'T THEIR Marin residency put the Burkes out of touch with the centers of show business in Southern California and New York?

Perhaps, they admit. But neither has any desire to return to Los Angeles or to the East — "to the rat race."

"We are simply wild about Marin,'' says Evans. And Elaine agrees.

Along with scenery, climate and culture, one of the facets of Marin living that the Burkes find most appealing is the creative talent that abounds here.

"THERE IS more talent in Marin County than in any place I have ever been," says Evans. "Much of it is undeveloped. But it is there, waiting to be developed."

He does just that in a drama workshop he conducts every Friday night under Novato Community Players auspices.

"My big stick in life is directing and teaching," he says. And he feels doubly fortunate in being able to realize those ambitions during both his Unitours "office hours" and his after-work activities. But he would like to see a county-wide repertory company in Marin that would perform the year-around.

As for Elaine, "my home comes first with me now. But I find time for teaching piano, for writing music and for the Generation Gap."

OF HIS WIFE'S musical compositions, Evans says: "While I can write music, and have done so, she is the expert composer in the family."

The Burkes take an interest in community affairs, too, and Evans serves on the board of the Gallinas Village Community Services District, and edits its bulletin, the Village Voice.

It's a service that Evans Burke particularly enjoys "because it gives you a feeling that you have roots in your community."

THIS ABSENCE of roots can be one of the occupational hazards of the entertainer, he notes.

A determination that young Mike and his little twin sisters shall never be confronted by this problem that has plagued so many offspring in show business families is one big reason why the Burkes are so content as regular residents of a typical Marin community. The bright lights of Hollywood and Broadway no longer hold any allure. They'll settle for their work with the Generation Gap or the Novato Community Players. And for evenings spent in the comfort of their own living room, their children at the sides or seated comfortable in their laps.

The Man At The Piano Bar At Rubini's

Career Of Lowell Hawk Covers 48-Year Span

Sitting in a silent movie palace playing the piano accompaniment to the antics of Charles Chaplin or the emoting of Rudolph Valentino may seem a million light years removed from today's quiet, sophisticated piano bar music of Rubini's restaurant in Fairfax.

But Lowell Hawk, long-time Larkspur resident, has done them both.

And he remains an entrenched favorite with literally thousands of Marin residents who continue to visit the Fairfax restaurant, not only for fine food, but for good music as well.

HIS YOUNGISH looks belie a background of experience that includes not only the silent pictures, but vaudeville, entertainment on board steamships on romantic cruises through the Panama Canal into the Atlantic, and concerts as well.

"I started playing when I was 10," Hawk remembers, "and I studied with various piano teachers. But I really learned music at the Army-Navy 'Y' in Des Moines, Iowa, during World War I.

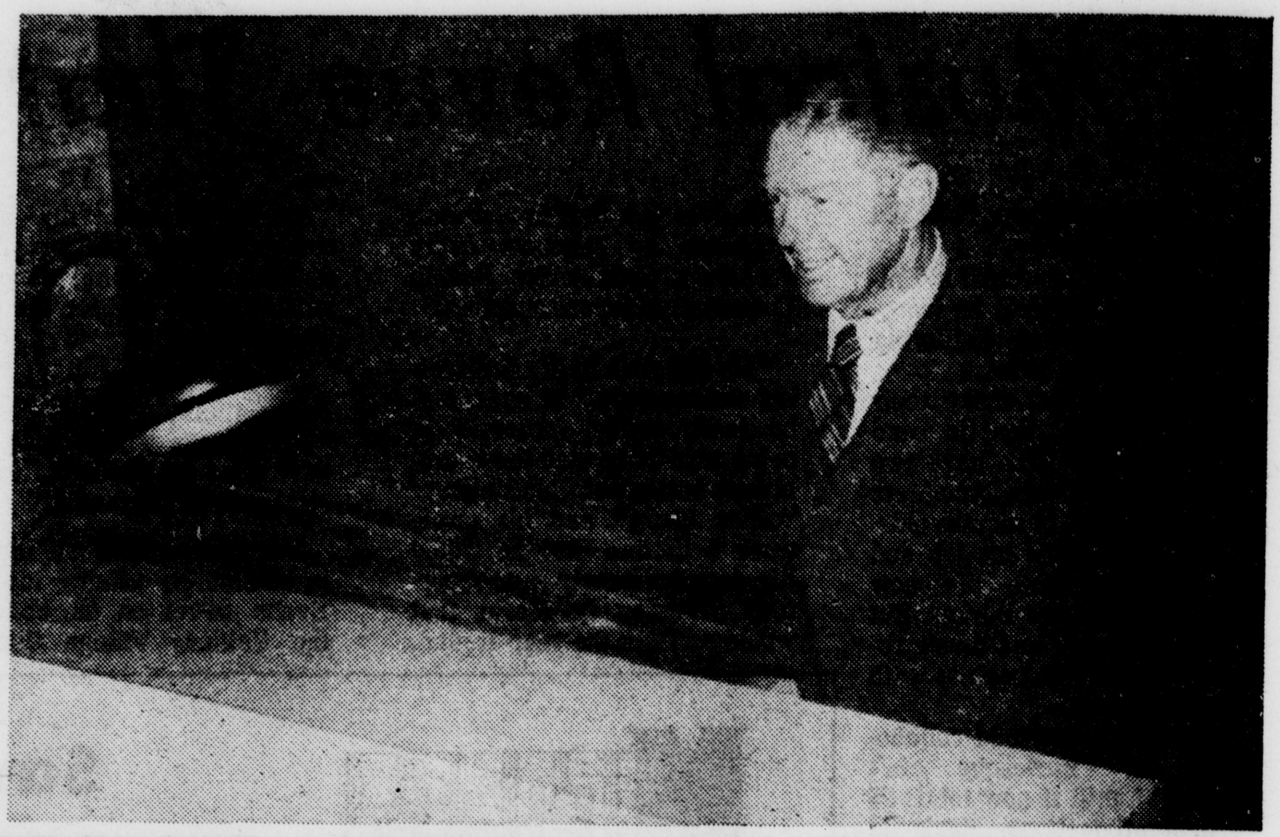
"I used to spend hours there hunting for tunes and chords on the beat-up old upright. Mother wouldn't let me play by ear at home. But the soldiers, sailors and employees were very tolerant, letting me, the only kid in the joint, whack away at the piano."

THAT "WHACKING away" led to a 48-year career in music that started with his first job playing at a little hotel on the Russian River in 1923. Hawk played the piano and worked with two of his brothers, one on the violin and the other on sax.

Two other brothers also enjoyed music, one playing bass, the other tuba, although all the five Hawk brothers never played together at the same time.

Following the Russian River engagement, Hawk attended the University of California, majoring in music, of course, and working his way through school by appearing at various campus functions with the Horace Heidt Band.

It was following college that he played aboard the steamship Manchuria, as she slowly sailed between San Francisco and New York via the Panama Canal. Hawk served as the orchestra leader on ship and made nearly 15 trips through the canal.



SINCE 1960 PIANIST Lowell Hawk has been a fixture at the piano bar in Rubini's restaurant in Fairfax, and he has built up a loyal following that comes to the eatery as much for his pleasing music as for the fine food.

"I LEFT THE steamship one year in New York," Hawk related, "and joined some vaudeville units, then played in the last year of the silent films. That was very rugged because you had to play all kinds of music, very quickly, keeping your eye on the screen and trying to get your timing just right."

Later Lowell went to Europe and started to study painting in Paris at the famed Beaux Arts. His art and music took him throughout Europe, Mexico, and even to Hawaii where he roamed about, meeting people, learning customs and always trying to entertain with his music.

During World War II, Hawk joined the Coast Guard band in Alameda, played at many service functions and even recorded special records for the Office of War Information.

"Then in 1951, playing at a church dance in Oakland, it really happened," Hawk said. "I met this girl named Margo who was singing and who wanted to play the piano with me."

THE TWO WERE married and almost immediately went to work at Seigler's Hot Springs where they entertained together.

Lowell joined the Eddie Fitzpatrick Band in Reno in the early 1950s, and while he entertained at the gambLing clubs Margo would sing solo at the Christian Science Church in Reno.

"When Fitzpatrick moved to Chicago I decided to stay in Reno and played at many clubs in that area. I remember one night at the Riverside when an old, grizzled miner came in and spent an hour or two just listen-

AT AN EARLIER STAGE in his musical career, Lowell Hawk, on the right, was photographed as a member of three-member Andy Potter Band. The year was 1926 and the band was playing in the famed Pantages vaudeville revue. It was but one stop in Hawk's long and varied musical experience.

Return Of Big Band Is Foreseen

Prediction By Lowell Hawk

LOWELL HAWK was playing in the piano bar of a Reno club when this photograph was taken in the early 1950s. For a time he was a member of the Eddie Fitzpatrick Band in that gambling capital. And when the Fitzpatrick Band departed for Chicago, Hawk decided to remain in Nevada and performed as a "single" in many of the clubs of that area, before coming to Marin in 1960.

ing to me play. When he left, he plunked down a silver dollar and said, 'Son, if you ever learn to play that thing, it ain't gonna sound no better than it sounds right now.' "

THE HAWK family returned to Marin in 1960 and he immediately went to work at Rubini's where he has become as prominent as the restaurant's cuisine and monthly art shows. Margo now sings solo with the Christian Science Church in Mill Valley. And on numerous occasions, the two have given concerts for Marin organizations.

"I also have continued my interest in painting," he added, "and have had two exhibitions at Rubini's. I never put my name on the paintings at the restaurant so, sitting at the pianobar, I can hear comments from the public. It's quite an interesting social study."

Hawk holds many ideas about the music world including one that today's rock style is "a healthy development."

"FOR A TIME, some of the big bands, like Stan Kenton, had become too elaborate and too sophisticated," he explains. "Then, as it always seems to happen, the public swung back and reacted to sounds a bit more down to earth."

Hawk compares Elvis Presley to Leadbelly, who was popular in the 1900s, and the Beatles music to the best folk music of nearly a century ago.

Looking toward the future, Hawk sees a gradual return to the big band sound, but in a more modern form.

"The bands used to play at hotels," he says, "but now

Requests Have Never Stumped Lowell Hawk

they'll probably play in concerts. One of the greatest developments in modern music is the Broadway musical with song and music as a major part of the production. Such shows as 'Fiddler on the Roof,' 'Cabaret' and 'West Side Story' rate as our American opera."

OF HAWK'S playing at Rubini's, co-owner Gordon Jones says: "He probably knows more than 10,000 different songs, and he has never been stumped by a request."

But Hawk prepares his music carefully.

He says: "It is at Rubini's piano bar that I use everything I have ever learned in music. It is a real challenge. And yet it is most enjoyable. With the intimate atmosphere and relaxed style, it's very much like playing in your own home.

Once with the Giant Boosters meeting at the restaurant and baseball's Chub Feeney present as the special guest, Feeney began to voice a request.

BEFORE HE was well into his sentence, Lowell Hawk was already pounding out a spirited rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

Once again the pianist had been equal to the challenge. And Hawk's fans roared with merriment while Feeney beamed his approval.

BEFORE REPORTING for work, Lowell Hawk relaxes with his wife, Margo, in front of Rubini's. They met in 1951 in Oakland and were married that same year. And since Margo was a singer, the two began almost immediately working together. The two still make joint appearances from time to time.

He says: "It is at Rubini's piano bar that I use everything I have ever learned in music. It is a real challenge. And yet it is most enjoyable. With the intimate atmosphere and relaxed style, it's very much like playing in your own home.

Once with the Giant Boosters meeting at the restaurant and baseball's Chub Feeney present as the special guest, Feeney began to voice a request.

BEFORE HE was well into his sentence, Lowell Hawk was already pounding out a spirited rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

Once again the pianist had been equal to the challenge. And Hawk's fans roared with merriment while Feeney beamed his approval.

DURING A break from the piano bar, Lowell Hawk enjoys a chat with Dick Templeton, one of the co-owners of Rubini's restaurant with which Hawk has enjoyed a pleasant relationship as "house pianist" for more than a decade.

BEFORE REPORTING for work, Lowell Hawk relaxes with his wife, Margo, in front of Rubini's. They met in 1951 in Oakland and were married that same year. And since Margo was a singer, the two began almost immediately working together. The two still make joint appearances from time to time.

PERFORMANCES of "Playboy of the Western World" in Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais tomorrow and again May 30 at 2 p.m. mark the 54th annual production of the Mountain Play, making it not only one of Marin's oldest traditional events but one of the Bay Area's longest-running spectacles. And throughout its history, colorful costuming has played a major part in the success of the outdoor play, as evidenced by three photographs on this page taken in the 1920s. At upper left are Jo Hamilton and Marion Brune of the 1925 production — "Drake." At upper right, Marion Brune and Sam Hayes emote in "Flamenca" in 1928. And at lower left, Sam Hayes is seen as "Peer Gynt" in 1929. The Marin 'On The Other Side Of The Mountain'

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on Marin County history completed for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by historian Florence Donnelly prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

In splendid isolation and amidst great natural beauty, the fortunate residents of three Marin communities — Muir Beach, Stinson Beach and Bolinas — live on what they and others refer to as "the other side of the mountain and on the coast."

Few resent the separation that Mount Tamalpais provides them from the pressures of a growing county population.

And all revel in the granduer of their surroundings — a surf that can be alternately wild and tranquil, rugged ridges of barren rock, green and forested hillsides, lush wildflower beds, valley meadows, sandy beaches and attractive cottages.

Sally Carrighar took note of it in her booklet, "Exploring Marin," published in 1941 by the Marin Conservation League.

"THIS ISOLATION of Marin's coast makes it especially inviting to those with the instinct to explore," she wrote. "Besides remoteness they will find variety of landscape: mountain-sides and meadows, a rocky shore and sheltered bays, forests and bare headlands. An explorer could reasonably ask for nothing more except rare wildlife, interesting natives and some outlaws for adventure. These, too, have been furnished by the west shore of Marin.

It is ironic that all this beauty made no impression upon the first white man to gaze upon it.

"Yet the first white man to see the scenic show was not impressed by it," wrote Miss Carrighar.

HE WAS LT. Don Felipe de Goycoechea, dispatched by California's provisional governor, as part of a two-prong effort to explore the Marin peninsula and determine the feasibility of placing a settlement on Bodega Bay. Juan Bautista Matute had set off by boat for Bodega, while De Goycoechea was given the more arduous tast of surveying the inland route with a party of 11 men.

The lieutenant's laconic reaction to what he was to see was indicated early by his appraisal of the hills west of Richardson Bay: "Fit only for cattle."

Farther north, the expedition apparently took the party of explorers through what became known as Frank Valley to Steep Ravine, past some of Northern California's most beautiful redwood stands and along some of its most grandiose coastal cliffs.

YET AS THIS point the young Mexican soldier was moved to comment only: "On the 13th, endeavoring to shorten my return route . . . I made little progress, as not only were the animals tired, but there was a pine forest we could not penetrate."

"Most modern Marin-ers will feel that De Goycoechea had extreme regard for understatement," observed Miss Carrighar with considerable irony and understatement herself. "But (we) may remember that soldiers consider scenery professionally as something to surmount, to rest on, or be fed by."

And: "His business was not beauty."

This tone by De Goycoechea was to continue, and yet farther north he was to describe the marshland at the end of Tomales Bay as "a muddy little valley crossed with some labor."

STILL, HIS DIARY stands as the first recorded description of the unspoiled country that he traversed, except for notations concerning one small area, probably near Drake's Bay, by Sir Francis Drake's chaplain.

But if the natural beauty of Marin's coastline failed to impress Lieutenant De Goycoechea, it nonetheless had a lasting effect upon its development.

In 1793, De Goycoechea and his party found an Indian settlement thriving on the sandspit along the Stinson Beach lagoon. That beach was to play the key role in the community's later character.

Wrote Sally Carrighar: "On few shores has nature furnished a happier marine playground than here. The wide clean sandspit (formed by currents northbound along the adjacent cliff) is a fine place to swim, to hike, to ride a bicycle at low tide, to cook a supper, to play games, to dive into the breakers, to fish, or to lie in the lee of one of the little dunes and sun-bathe with the encircling hills absorbing the glare."

SAN FRANCISCANS, in particular, became aware of these natural attributes, and many began to build their summer cottages there. A certain number, particularly the retired and the artists, chose to make it their full-time home.

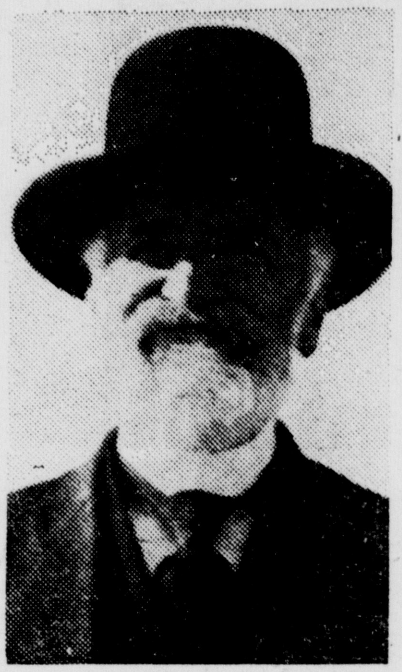
The private ownerships began to threaten public access to the splendid beach, but the voters reacted through the county's board of supervisors by reacquiring a portion of the sandspit. This became first a county park and then Stinson Beach State Park, still one of Northern California's finest and most popular outdoor playgrounds.

A stagecoach that traveled from San Rafael to Stinson Beach over the old Alpine-Fairfax Road across a grade so steep that often the passengers had to get out and walk to lessen the load for the horses, furnished the isolated community's principal tie with the outside in its early years.

AT THE END of the ride were inns — two of which were called Dipsea after the trail that ended at the water's edge — charming cottages with lush gardens, the splendid beach and sulphur springs that bubbled up at the surf's edge from, it was said, six miles below the surface.

"This is the only spot in the world where hot sulphur water, cold salt water and fresh water all meet," claimed an old brochure for C. E. Stewart's Fern Court Apartments.

The community had a number of early names, among them Willow Camp, Willow Beach and Willow Springs, attributable to the willow trees that thrived near the sandspit. But ultimately it was to be known as Stinson Beach after Nathan Stinson, the man most responsible for its promotion as a summer colony.



NATHAN STINSON, pioneer land-owner, was the man for whom Stinson Beach was named.

STINSON AND his partners owned and leased large acreages, including, according to a newspaper report, "the ranch which controls Willow Beach."

Stinso's son-in-law, N. L. Fitzhenry, was yet another great promoter of the beach.

It was colorful Capt. A. D. Easkoot who gave Stinson Beach its tallest legend, as related by Miss Carrighar in her booklet.

With the death of his dear wife in 1800, Easkoot became an embittered eccentric. He would sit all day upon the stoop of his fine white house with telescope and shotgun. And whenever a picnicker dared to as much as touch a piece of driftwood, all of which he claimed as his, Easkoot would fire a warning volley from his gun.

ONLY AN INVITATION for a drink at Brown's nearby bar would soften his belligerence.

The captain had a withered hand. After his death, local raconterus transformed the crippled hand into a golden hook and fabricated a story in which the hook mysteriously disappeared during Captain Easkoot's wake. One version was that a flod tide washed coffin and body out to sea as they were being driven to the Bolinas cemetery for burial. Anyway, it was told around campfires and hearths, the captain's ghost returns on stormy nightsto haunt his house while searching for the hook.

Most Stinson Beach residents were, of course, of a less volatile or colorful character, with the wealthier settling in the exclusive Seadrift colony.

MUIR BEACH had a history similar to that of Stinson Beach, although on a smaller scale. It, too, developed as a resort and summer colony.

Many San Franciscans and Marinites first saw it — and were charmed by it — while hiking on Mount Tamalpais through Frank Valley along the route probably taken by Don Felipe de Goycoechea past lupines, California poppies, Indian paint brushes, willows, madrones, live oaks and buckeyes, to the trail's end at Muir Beach.

At the time Miss Carrighar was writing, she described Muir Beach as "a small resort where campsites and a few cabins may be rented."

And she took special note of a natural phenomenon that still attracts attention:

"OF INTEREST to geographers and timid bathers is the unusual performance of Redwood Creek here. During the rainy season the stream is strong enough to push through the sandbar to the ocean, but as summer weakens its force, it winds up a warm lagoon, two to five feet deep."

Muir Beach had held steadfast to its character as a relatively sparsely-settled and quiet beach resort and summer home colony through decades. In April, 1962, the sale of the resort area including 1,000 feet of beach front and 12 acres of flatland — "not including the home of Dr. John P. O'Brien, the former owner of the beach property" — was revealed, with Robert N. Royston, spokesman for the buyers, also announcing plans to improve the place and to develop the lagoon for swimming.

A Muir Beach Community Services District was formed in 1957 and devoted much of its attention to the solution of the area's chronic water service problem.

A MORE RECENT development was the acquisition by the state of 15 acres at Muir Beach as an addition to Mount Tamalpais State Park — the big beach, a parking area and the willow groves nearby, omitting principally "little beach" —, thus as occured at Stinson Beach, assuring a continued park-like character for the waterfront with a well-maintained recreation area.

The residents of the area enjoy along with the great natural beauty and tranquility around them such sports as horseback riding, hiking and picnicking. And only an occasional flurry about "skinny-dipping" visitors to the beach has marred the serenity of the rural community.

Bolinas has had a somewhat different history than its sister communities of Stinson Beach and Muir Beach.

HERE, TOO, ITS waterfront location has been a major factor, and its name probably came from Francisco Bolanos, ship's pilot for Spanish explorers.

But tourism and summer vacationers had a somewhat later impact there, not being felt fully until the 1890s. It was agriculture and industry that first influenced Bolinas' development.

Bolinas' "first citizen" was Rafael Garcia who located on the Baulinas Rancho grant of 8,911 acres in 1834 and began to raise cattle, although his home was actually at Olema. He had been born in San Diego in 1790, a descendant of a member of the Anza Expedition, and served as a professional soldier. It was after his retirement that he was rewarded for his service with the Baulinas Grant.

IN FEBRUARY of 1846 he disposed of the Baulinas property to his brother-in-law, Don Gregorio Briones, and moved to the adjoining Tomales y Baulinas Rancho where he built an adobe ranch house. Briones and his family became the first white residents of what actually became Bolinas.

Both Garcia and Don Gregorio accumulated herds of cattle, and also raised horses and other livestock.

But the two factors that had the greatest significance in Bolinas' early growth were the great forests, principally redwood, fir and pine, that covered the countryside in the vicinities of Bolinas and Olema, and the navigability of the harbor at Bolinas.

Sawmills sprang up around Bolinas between 1850 and 1855 and it was estimated that 13 million feet of lumber was harvested and processed there.

THE LUMBER was hauled by oxen to Bolinas' wharf from where it was shipped to San Francisco to be used in the construction of that city's first wharves as well as its homes and businesses. Thomas and William Johnson, brothers, built a number of the vessels used in the trade at Bolinas.

One report says that upon the arrival of the first white settlers, Bolinas Lagoon "was navigable to most vessels and schooners." But silting soon forced the use of lighters to carry the timber out to ships waiting offshore.

After the larger trees near Bolinas had been cut, smaller stands were felled for a time and shipped to San Francisco as cordwood. But the lumber heyday was over.

EFFORTS WERE made to grow potatoes commercially and there were flurries of excitement over supposed coal, copper, oil and asbestos deposits, but none proved out.

Bolinas' brief fling in the industrial spotlight was over. It settled down to a less hectic role as a trade center for ranchers, and then as a resort for tourists and holidayers.

At the time the Frank Waterhouses of Sacramento bought the tract upon which the village stood, in 1882, it consisted of the Seabreeze Hotel, the Flagstaff Inn, a store, a livery stable for the stages and about a dozen houses, the largest of which was John Gibson's mansion, later a hotel.

The 1890s saw a larger influx of both holiday visitors and seasonal and year-around residents.

WROTE SALLY Carrighar in 1941: "The distinction of Bolinas today is the way it consciously ignores commercial progress."

But there are other distinctions, particularly in the beauty of its site and an abundance of teeming natural life — marine and tidal specimens in its lagoons, waterfowl along its shores, herons and egrets in the nearby Audubon Canyon Ranch sanctuary, and wildflowers, trees, birds and animals everywhere.

The motorist driving the Shoreline Highway from Muir Beach past Stinson Beach to Bolinas, or better yet, the hiker who walks through its valleys, cannot help but be struck by the beauty of the area, and to wonder how Lt. Don Felipe de Goycoechea could have failed to have been impressed, professional soldier though he was. For 180 years ago, it must have been even more impressive.

GENERATIONS OF Marinites and others have enjoyed relaxation and recreation upon the sweeping, sandy shoreline of Muir Beach, now part of the Mount Tamalpais State Park.

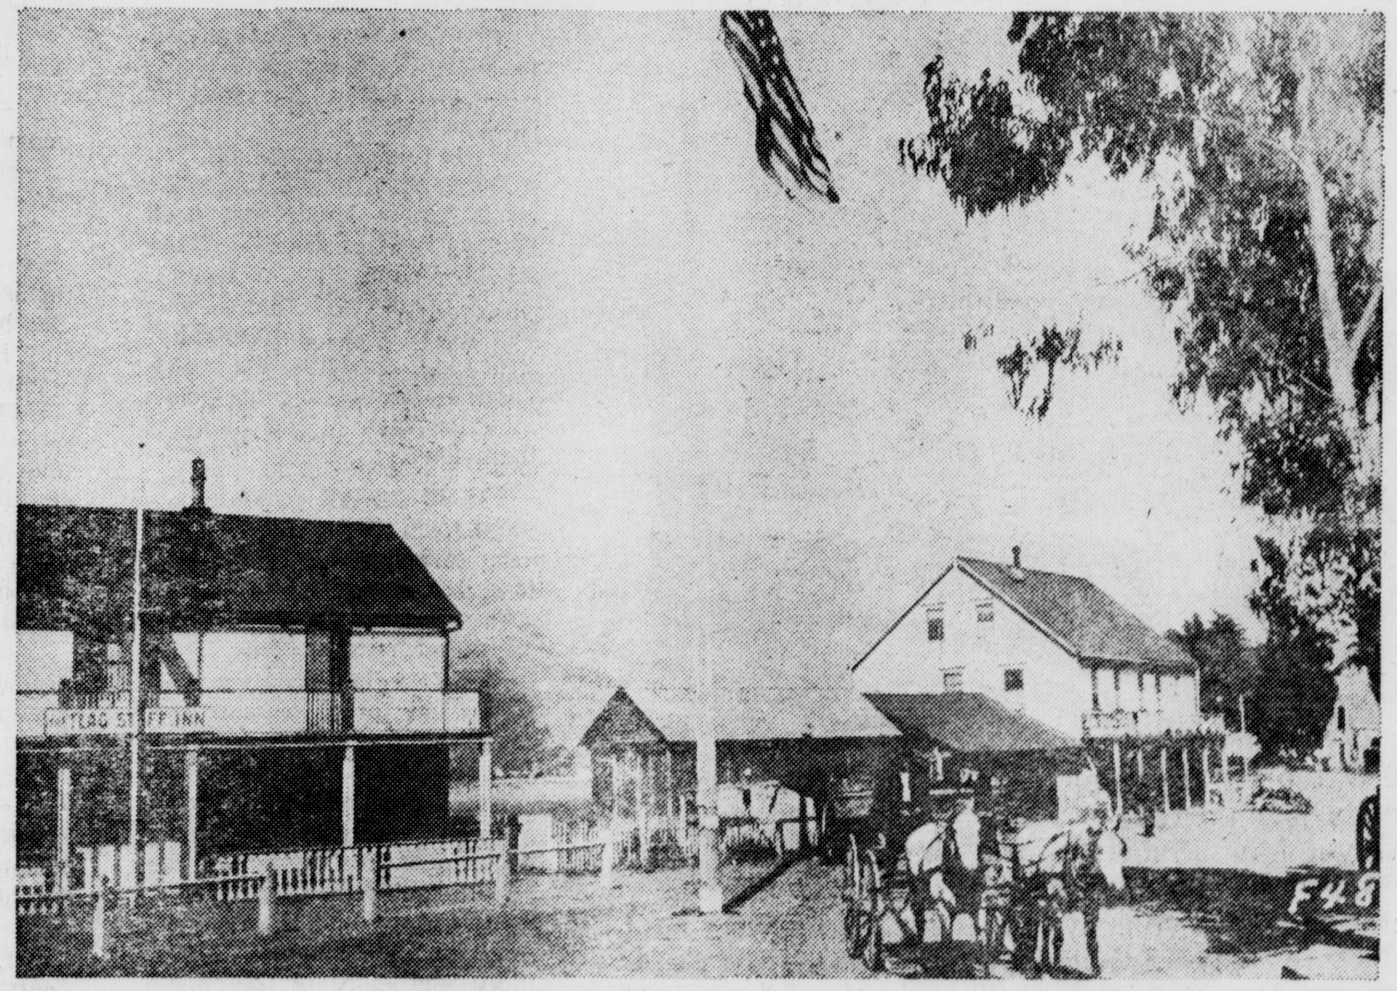
ITS LOCATION on the waterfront played an important role in Bolinas' early history. Lumber cut and sawed around Bolinas was loaded onto lighters at the wharf and carried out to ships that transported it to San Francisco.



THE FLAGSTAFF INN, shown here in the Bolinas of the 1880s, was a long-time landmark of that community, popular with visitors and residents alike. It was first known as Ocean House, and was destroyed by the 1906 earthquake.

Sights Of Seattle Are Many, Varied And Easily Reached

Busy Waterfront Offers Visitor Good Starting Point For Touring

Fascinating though it is, Marinites can tire of San Francisco as the source of their cosmopolitan pleasures and relaxations.

When that occurs, they can always turn their attentions to the north — to such cities as Portland, Seattle and Vancouver.

The waterfront city of Seattle, built on a neck of land between Puget Sound and freshwater Lake Washington, is an especially fascinating place to visit.

With its 200-million-dollar port and 189 miles of docks and shoreline, Seattle offers tangy salt air, the cries of gulls and the romantic promise of faraway places.

THE CENTRAL waterfront is only a casual walking distance from the downtown hotels.

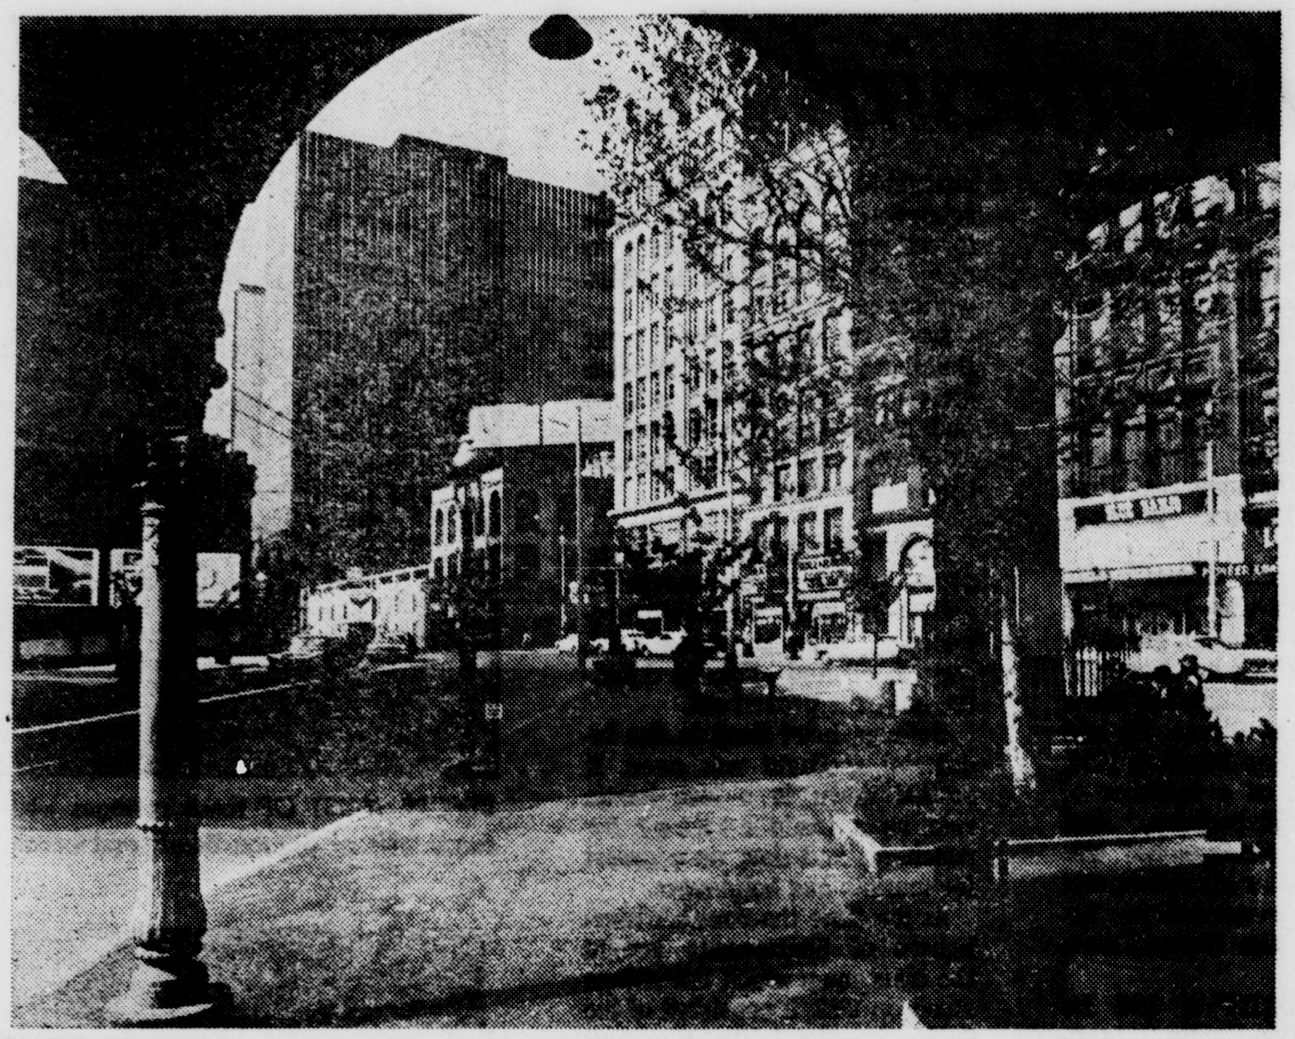
Seattle also offers some of the best seafood restaurants in the world, shops filled with gifts and goods from the Far East, and the Seattle Public Aquarium which from mid-May through September features daily shows with a cast of killer whales, seals and dolphins.

The largest salmon and halibut fishing fleets in the world move in and out of the harbor, and flags of dozens of nations fly from freighters and tankers. Giant rafts of lumber line the shores.

A HARBOR TOUR by boat is especially recommended for the Seattle visitor. The two-and-a-half-hour trip covers 26 miles and passes through two locks.

Ferryboats operating out of Seattle are yet another attraction. Their routes may go all the way to Canada's British Columbia, or simply to nearby Bremerton where the battleship USS Missouri is moored and open to visitors.

Northern Californians may not be willing to grant Seattle equal status with San Francisco. But a visit will convince them that the Washington state metropolis is, nonetheless, a fascinating place to visit and a blessed change of pace.



PIONEER SQUARE is one of Seattle's most colorful landmarks, and is located only a short distance from the bustling waterfront, and from some of the finest seafood restaurants in the world.

Tokyo Has Something For Everyone, Including Smog

By ROBERT C. MILLER

Tokyo today offers a little something for everybody.

There's smog for the Southern Californians, exorbitant prices for the New Yorkers, discrimination for the Dixiecrats, traffic jams for the Washingtonians and action for everyone.

The mini-skirt has replaced the kimona and they are now seen only in old Japanese paintings. The bowed "rice legs" are longer, prettier and straighter from the improved post-war diet, and all that Australian wool has ended up in smart gray business suits.

TOKYO SWINGS as do few other world capitals —for a price. And the prices are among the highest in the world.

The regal splendor of snow-capped Mount Fuji used to be a backdrop to the Tokyo landscape on practically every sunny day. The smog is so bad now, few natives even get to see the famed Tokyo tower for weeks on end. Windshield wipers are used in every tunnel to sweep away the soot and exhaust fumes that saturate the air.

Los Angeles residents arrive in Tokyo, sniff the local distillates and break into sobs of homesickness.

If you think talk is cheap, try a Tokyo bar. The starting price for a girlish giggle and beer pouring is $4 an hour — in the scrubby joints. Plus, of course, the $7 to $10 cover charge, plus the drinks at $2 a thimbleful. Providing, of course, the broad-minded owners allow foreigners into the place — and many of them don't.

TOKYO IS AN expense account town. There are no high-salaried executives; but plenty of big-expense-account types.

To escape the high taxes, Japanese corporations pay their brass low salaries, but give them lavish expense accounts, all of which are tax deductible.

The local publicans much prefer the trade of a Mitsui bookkeeper to a Texan and the Texan usually threatens to tear up the check and the nightery when he gets his bill. Hence, more and more of the Tokyo watering holes politely but firmly tell the tourists to take their thirsts elsewhere.

PEDESTRIANS are fair game whenever caught off the curb. Tokyo once attempted a traffic safety campaign with awards for safe driving. They junked the idea when there were no contenders for the prizes.

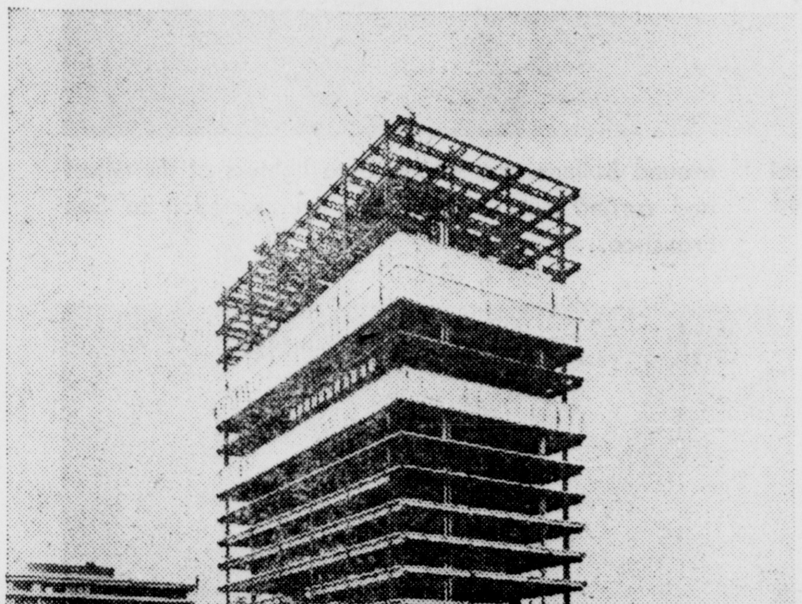
The brake-lining concession in Tokyo has to be one of the biggest money-makers in the country as every taxi driver is a frustrated drag racer who can go from zero to 60 miles per hour and back again in a city block.

The tourists weren't the only ones who read the ads about the delights of the Japanese hotsy baths. The bathhouse proprietors read them too, and correctly figured that such joyous pleasures should be priced accordingly.

A visitor today can just about install his own bathhouse for the price of a couple of visits to a Tokyo massage parlor.

AND AS FOR sin, the women's liberation movement attempted to outlaw it by abolishing legalized prostitution. They didn't eliminate it, they just about priced it out of existence. Pre-war Tokyo had a red light district of some 5,000 girls and no pimps. Today it has about 5,000 pimps and no red light district.

Three approaches per block in the famed Ginza are about average for today's tourist.



NEW ON THE TOKYO skyline is the fast-rising 28-million-dollar Hotel Grand Palace, scheduled for completion in December and for its opening next Feb. 20. Located on the north side of the Imperial Palace grounds near Yasukuni Shrine, it will stand 23 stories and will total 500 "American-sized" guest rooms.

The Leisurely Way To See England

New cruises on the River Thames and on canals through Britain's dreamy Shakespeare and West countries are in operation this year.

Two new companies sponsor these leisurely water-borne vacations from the work-a-day world.

One week jaunts run from London to Oxford, staying at country inns and at a stately home near the river.

J. Johns and Co. operate a fleet of standard draught inland waterway boats, each carrying four passengers and crew. They fly the flag of Lord Angus Montagu, who will personally escort many of the tours.

The final day of the cruise is spent sightseeing in Oxford. Cost is $278 per person for the week.

A second series of cruises is operated by Hotel Holidays Afloat along canals between Chester and in the general vicinity of London. These canals move through some of the loveliest countryside in Britain.

Cruises may be picked up along the route of the boats, with the entire trip from Chester to Hemel Hampstead (near London) taking approximately four weeks.

Sleeping accommodations include two single cabins, two double cabins with single upper and lower berths. Weekly costs: approximately $70.

Hotel Holidays Afloat is at The Boatyard, Market Drayton, Shropshire 2641, England.

ERE, TOO, ITS waterfront ıtion has been a major fac- and its name probably ıe from Francisco Bolanos, ›'s pilot for Spanish explorut tourism and summer va- ıoners had a somewhat later ıact there, not being felt ful- ıntil the 1890s. It was agri- :ure and industry that first uenced Bolinas' develop- nt.

olinas' "first citizen" was ʼael Garcia who located on Baulinas Rancho grant of 1 acres in 1834 and began to se cattle, although his home s actually at Olema. He had n born in San Diego in 1790, lescendant of a member of Anza Expedition, and ved as a professional sol- r. It was after his retirement t he was rewarded for his vice with the Baulinas ant.

N FEBRUARY of 1846 he posed of the Baulinas prop- y to his brother-in-law, Don egorio Briones, and moved to : adjoining Tomales y Bauli- s Rancho where he built an ɔbe ranch house. Briones and family became the first ite residents of what actually came Bolinas.

Both Garcia and Don Grego- accumulated herds of cattle, d also raised horses and oth- livestock.

But the two factors that had ɛ greatest significance in Bol- ɪs' early growth were the eat forests, principally red- ɒod, fir and pine, that covered e countryside in the vicinities Bolinas and Olema, and the ıvigability of the harbor at ɔlinas.

Sawmills sprang up around ɔlinas between 1850 and 1855 ıd it was estimated that 13 illion feet of lumber was har- ɛsted and processed there.

THE LUMBER was hauled ⁄ oxen to Bolinas' wharf from here it was shipped to San rancisco to be used in the ɔnstruction of that city's first harves as well as its homes ɪd businesses. Thomas and /illiam Johnson, brothers, uilt a number of the vessels sed in the trade at Bolinas.

One report says that upon the rrival of the first white set- ers, Bolinas Lagoon "was navigable to most vessels and schooners." But silting soon forced the use of lighters to carry the timber out to ships waiting offshore.

After the larger trees near Bolinas had been cut, smaller stands were felled for a time and shipped to San Francisco as cordwood. But the lumber heyday was over.

EFFORTS WERE made to grow potatoes commercially and there were flurries of excitement over supposed coal, copper, oil and asbestos deposits, but none proved out.

Bolinas' brief fling in the industrial spotlight was over. It settled down to a less hectic role as a trade center for ranchers, and then as a resort for tourists and holidayers.

At the time the Frank Waterhouses of Sacramento bought the tract upon which the village stood, in 1882, it consisted of the Seabreeze Hotel, the Flagstaff Inn, a store, a livery stable for the stages and about a dozen houses, the largest of which was John Gibson's mansion, later a hotel.

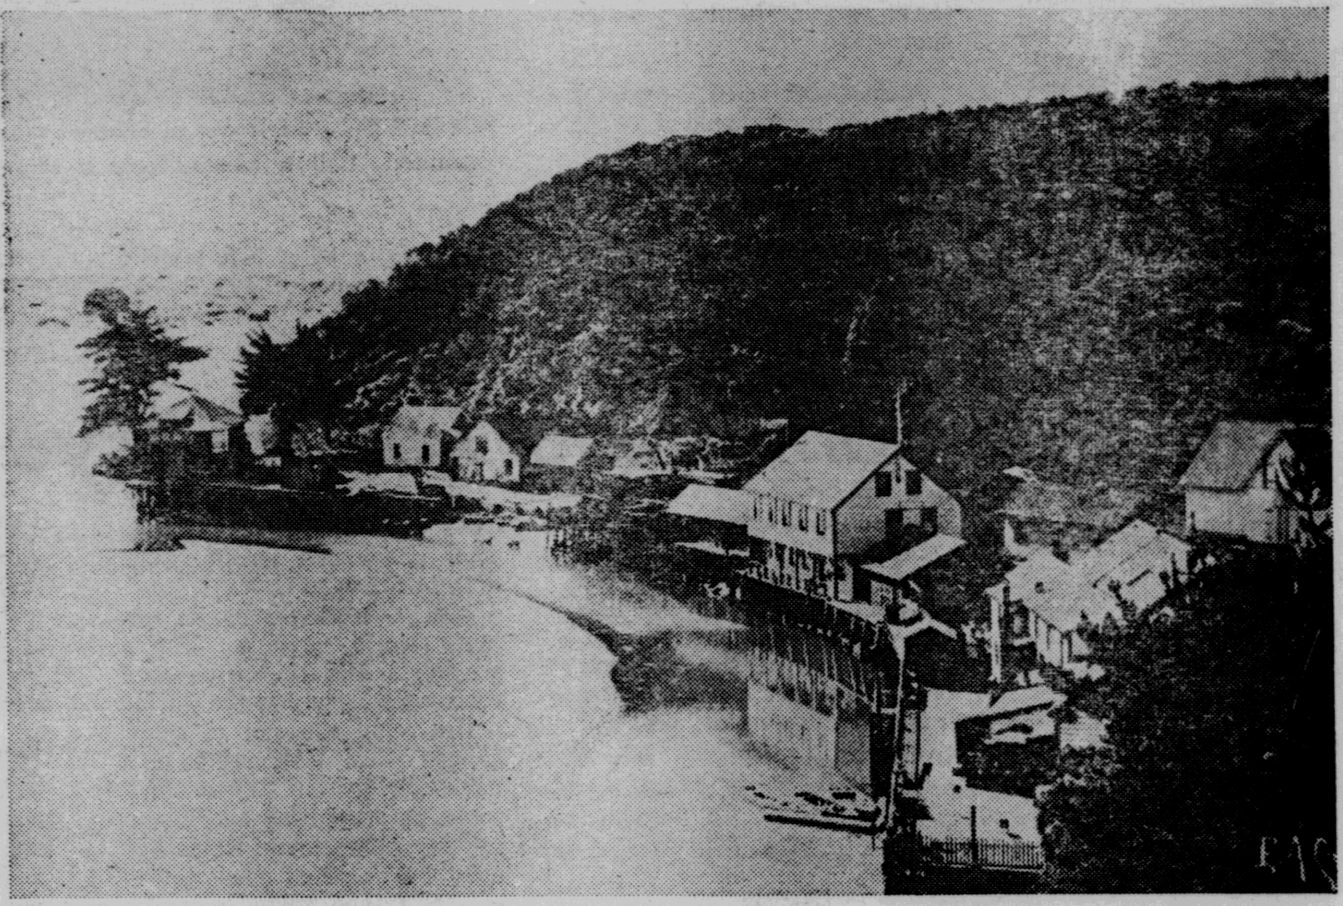
The 1890s saw a larger influx of both holiday visitors and seasonal and year-around residents.

WROTE SALLY Carrighar in 1941: "The distinction of Bolinas today is the way it consciously ignores commercial progress."

But there are other distinctions, particularly in the beauty of its site and an abundance of teeming natural life — marine and tidal specimens in its lagoons, waterfowl along its shores, herons and egrets in the nearby Audubon Canyon Ranch sanctuary, and wildflowers, trees, birds and animals everywhere.

The motorist driving the Shoreline Highway from Muir Beach past Stinson Beach to Bolinas, or better yet, the hiker who walks through its valleys, cannot help but be struck by the beauty of the area, and to wonder how Lt. Don Felipe de Goycoechea could have failed to have been impressed, professional soldier though he was. For 180 years ago, it must have been even more impressive.

BEFORE MOST OF these cottages were built on the sandy hills of Stinson Beach and became the summer homes of San Franciscans, the resort area was known as Willow Camp. The year was about 1900. (Photo from Mrs. James Jenkins' collection)



ITS LOCATION on the waterfront played an important role in Bolinas' early history. Lumber cut and sawed around Bolinas was loaded onto lighters at the wharf and carried out to ships that transported it to San Francisco.

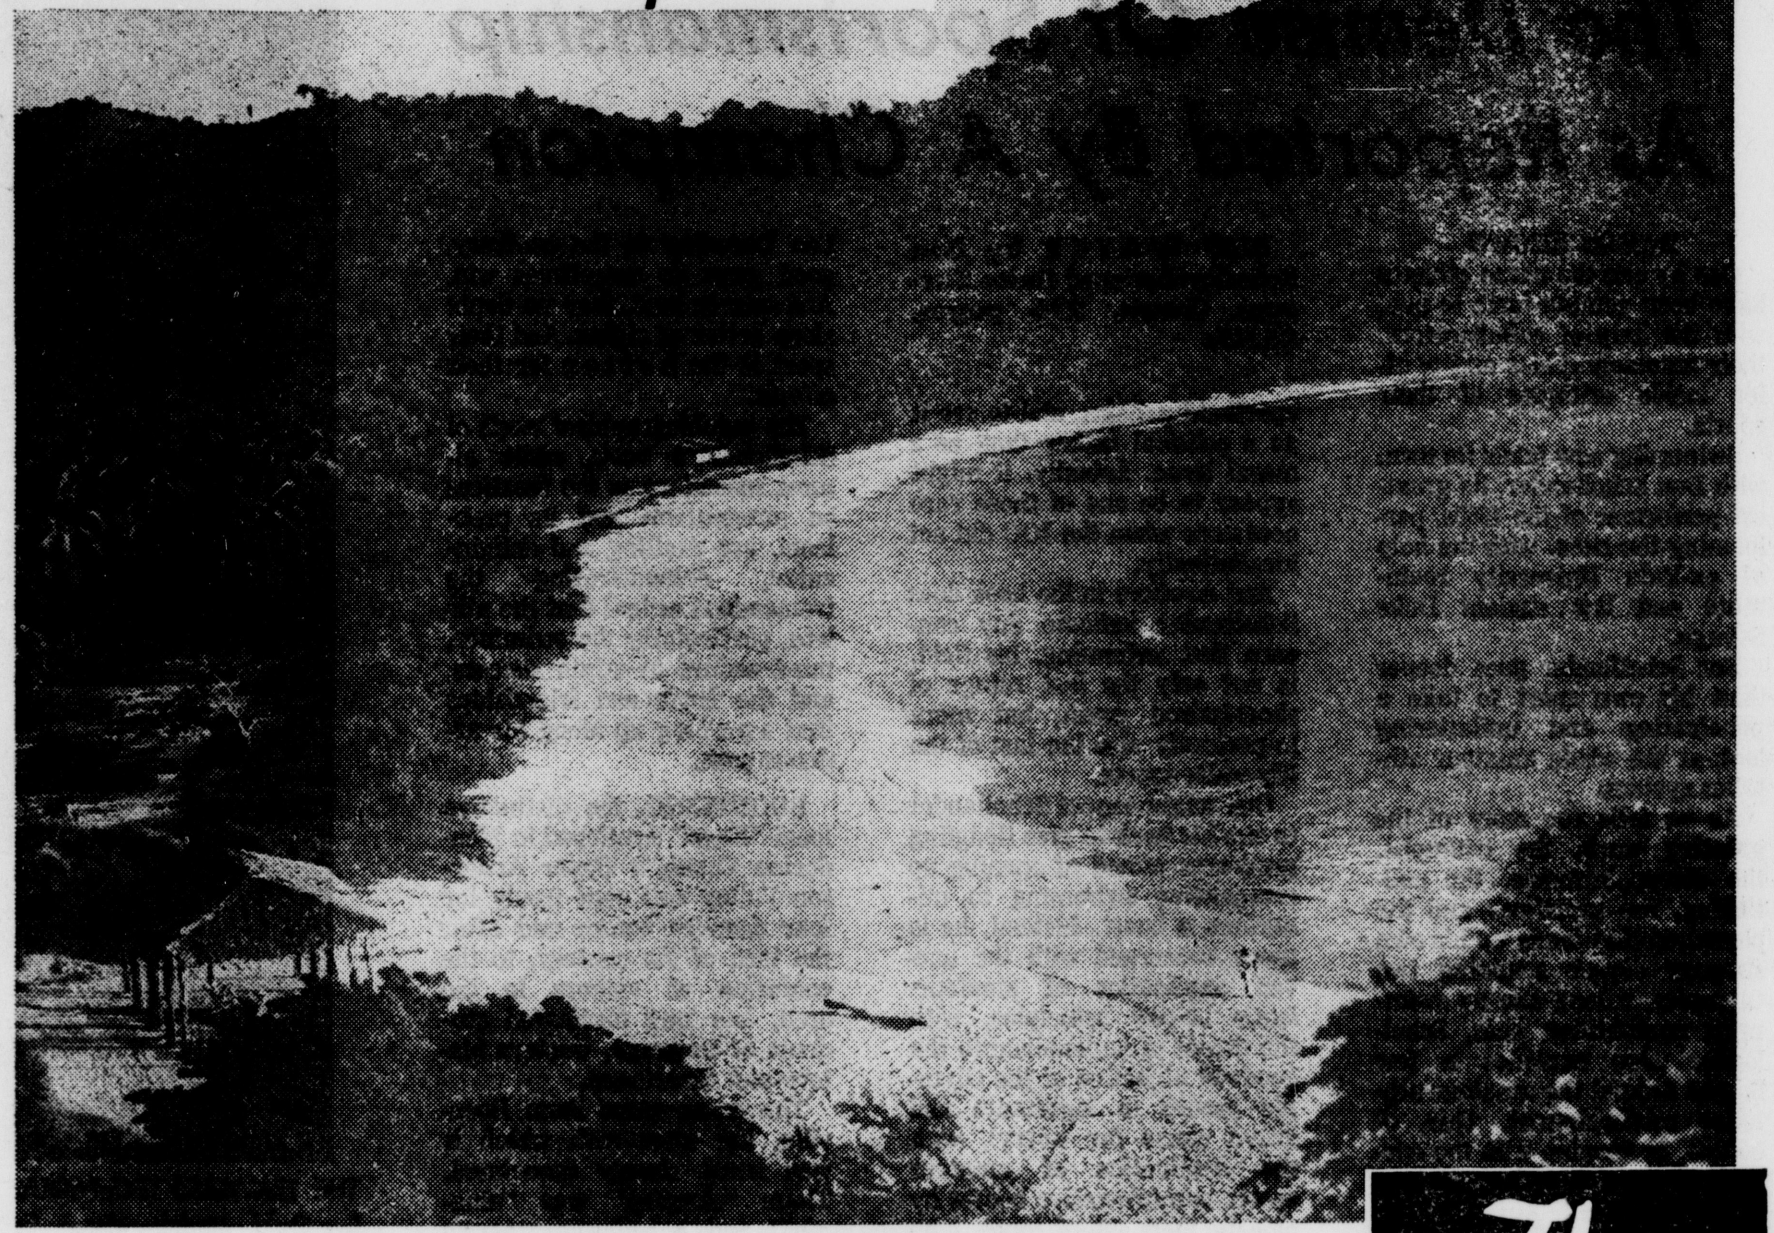
THE FLAGSTAFF INN, shown here in the Bolinas of the 1880s, was a long-time landmark of that community, popular with visitors and residents alike. It was first known as Ocean House, and was destroyed by the 1906 earthquake.

Zihuatanejo: The Next Acapulco?

Cruise Line 'Discovers' New Port



THE BEACH AT Zihuatanejo is as rustic and unspoiled as the shoreline of any South Sea island, and fringed with coconut trees with mountains in the background. The town of 3,000 is often compared to the Acapulco of 30 years ago. In December, the 420-passenger liner Princess Italia will become the first cruise ship ever to visit the picturesque port.

Contrary to the popularly-held belief of many tourists from the States, Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan are not the only resort-ports located along Mexico's Riviera coast.

It is just that they are the most accessible. And the ones most practiced in accommodating tourists.

BUT THEIR very popularity spells change, and many a visitor to the jewel-like Pacific Ocean coastline of our neighbor to the north has longed for a look at a truly unspoiled Mexican seaside town.

Some fortunate travelers will be getting just such a treat in late 1971 and 1972.

Princess Cruises has announced that the picturesque port of Zihuatanejo has been added as a port-of-call for a number of cruises by its Princess Italia, beginning with the gala Christmas and New Year's sailings that will depart Los Angeles in December.

The Princess Italia will thus become the first luxury liner ever to call at Zihuatanejo.

THE SCENIC, semi-tropical village lies 147 miles north of Acapulco, nearly surrounded by mountains. But for those who wish to savor it in its natural state, time could be running short. The town of 3,000, with one of the finest beaches in the Western Hemisphere, is already being eyed by the tourist industry as "the next Acapulco."

Its romantic-sounding name has a most unromantic meaning — "dirty woman" — bestowed upon it for unknown reasons centuries ago by a Tarascan Indian chief.

And it was once a pirate base from which buccaneers picked off Spanish galleons following the coast.

There's a distinct Polynesian appearance to Zihuatanejo with its clean sand beach fringed by coconut trees. And it even has a Polynesian segment in its population — the descendants of islanders brought to Mexico by Spain for labor in the colonial days.

STANLEY B. McDonald, president of Princes Cruises, points out that his line was the first to permit its passengers to explore Puerto Vallarta, and adds that still other Mexican ports will be added as stopping points in the future.

Calls at Zihuatanejo during the 1970-71 travel season will include Princess Italia sailings for Mexico from Los Angeles on Dec. 15, Dec. 29, Jan. 14, Feb. 11 and March 17 — all 14-day voyages.

Shorter cruises will continue to make Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan their stopping points.

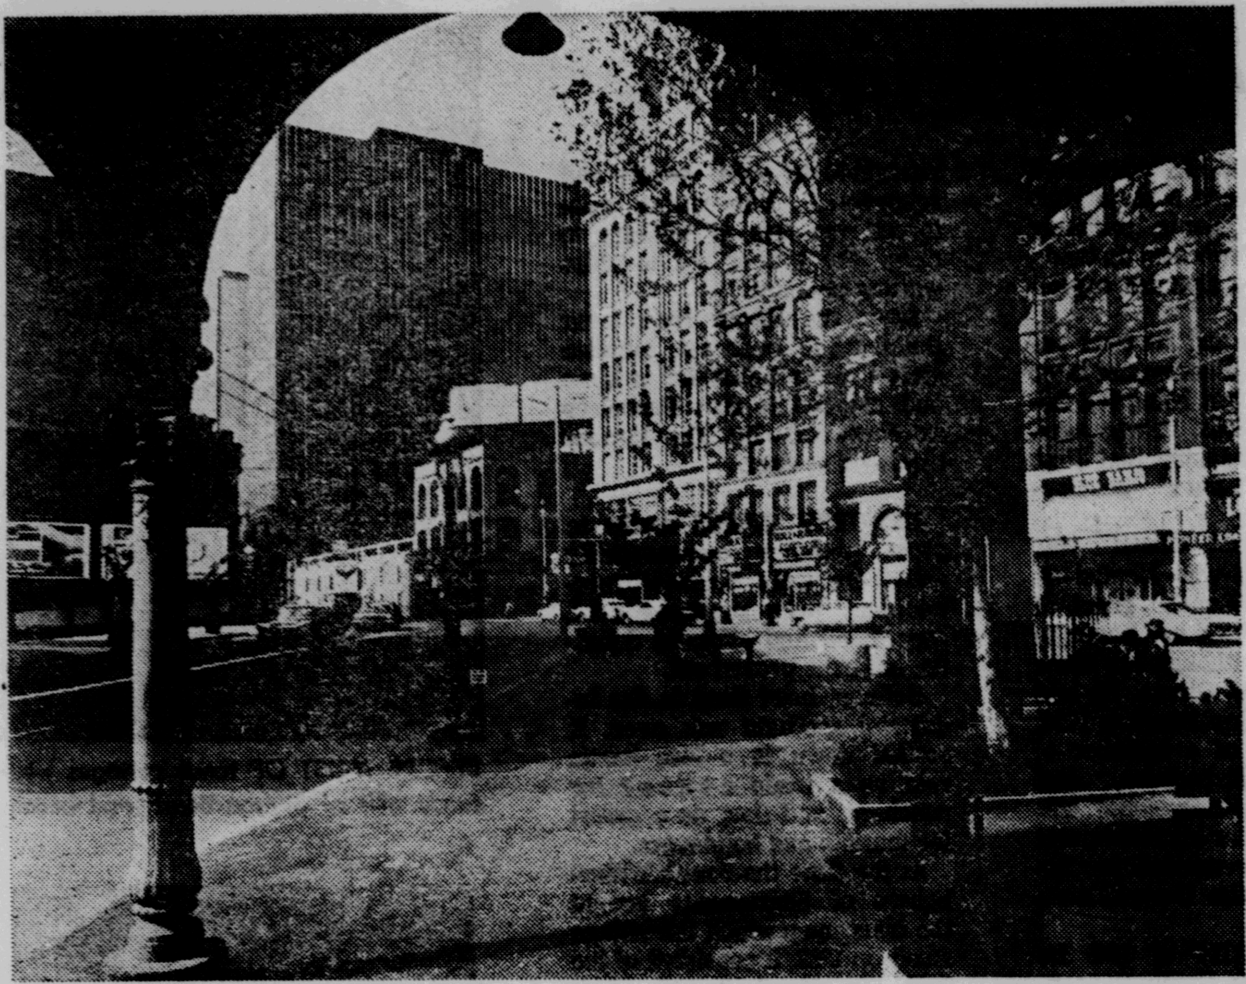
Sights Of Seattle Are Many, Varied And Easily Reached

Busy Waterfront Offers Visitor Good Starting Point For Touring



PIONEER SQUARE is one of Seattle's most colorful landmarks, and is located only a short distance from the bustling waterfront, and from some of the finest seafood restaurants in the world.

Fascinating though it is, Marinites can tire of San Francisco as the source of their cosmopolitan pleasures and relaxations.

When that occurs, they can always turn their attentions to the north — to such cities as Portland, Seattle and Vancouver.

The waterfront city of Seattle, built on a neck of land between Puget Sound and fresh-water Lake Washington, is an especially fascinating place to visit.

With its 200-million-dollar port and 189 miles of docks and shoreline, Seattle offers tangy salt air, the cries of gulls and the romantic promise of faraway places.

THE CENTRAL waterfront is only a casual walking distance from the downtown hotels.

Seattle also offers some of the best seafood restaurants in the world, shops filled with gifts and goods from the Far East, and the Seattle Public Aquarium which from mid-May through September features daily shows with a cast of killer whales, seals and dolphins.

The largest salmon and halibut fishing fleets in the world move in and out of the harbor, and flags of dozens of nations fly from freighters and tankers. Giant rafts of lumber line the shores.

A HARBOR TOUR by boat is especially recommended for the Seattle visitor. The two-and-a-half-hour trip covers 26 miles and passes through two locks.

Ferryboats operating out of Seattle are yet another attraction. Their routes may go all the way to Canada's British Columbia, or simply to nearby Bremerton where the battleship USS Missouri is moored and open to visitors.

Northern Californians may not be willing to grant Seattle equal status with San Francisco. But a visit will convince them that the Washington state metropolis is, nonetheless, a fascinating place to visit and a blessed change of pace.

Tokyo Has Something For Everyone, Including Smog

By ROBERT C. MILLER

Tokyo today offers a little something for everybody.

There's smog for the Southern Californians, exorbitant prices for the New Yorkers, discrimination for the Dixiecrats, traffic jams for the Washingtonians and action for everyone.

The mini-skirt has replaced the kimona and they are now seen only in old Japanese paintings. The bowed "rice legs" are longer, prettier and straighter from the improved post-war diet, and all that Australian wool has ended up in smart gray business suits.

TOKYO SWINGS as do few other world capitals —for a price. And the prices are among the highest in the world.

The regal splendor of snow-capped Mount Fuji used to be a backdrop to the Tokyo landscape on practically every sunny day. The smog is so bad now, few natives even get to see the famed Tokyo tower for weeks on end. Windshield wipers are used in every tunnel to sweep away the soot and exhaust fumes that saturate the air.

Los Angeles residents arrive in Tokyo, sniff the local distillates and break into sobs of homesickness.

If you think talk is cheap, try a Tokyo bar. The starting price for a girlish giggle and beer pouring is $4 an hour — in the scrubby joints. Plus, of course, the $7 to $10 cover charge, plus the drinks at $2 a thimbleful. Providing, of course, the broad-minded owners allow foreigners into the place — and many of them don't.

TOKYO IS AN expense account town. There are no high-salaried executives; but plenty of big-expense-account types.

To escape the high taxes, Japanese corporations pay their brass low salaries, but give them lavish expense accounts, all of which are tax deductible.

The local publicans much prefer the trade of a Mitsui bookkeeper to a Texan and the Texan usually threatens to tear up the check and the nightery when he gets his bill. Hence, more and more of the Tokyo watering holes politely but firmly tell the tourists to take their thirsts elsewhere.

PEDESTRIANS are fair game whenever caught off the curb. Tokyo once attempted a traffic safety campaign with awards for safe driving. They junked the idea when there were no contenders for the prizes.

The brake-lining concession in Tokyo has to be one of the biggest money-makers in the country as every taxi driver is a frustrated drag racer who can go from zero to 60 miles per hour and back again in a city block.

The tourists weren't the only ones who read the ads about the delights of the Japanese hotsy baths. The bathhouse proprietors read them too, and correctly figured that such joyous pleasures should be priced accordingly.

A visitor today can just about install his own bathhouse for the price of a couple of visits to a Tokyo massage parlor.

AND AS FOR sin, the women's liberation movement attempted to outlaw it by abolishing legalized prostitution. They didn't eliminate it, they just about priced it out of existence. Pre-war Tokyo had a red light district of some 5,000 girls and no pimps. Today it has about 5,000 pimps and no red light district.

Three approaches per block in the famed Ginza are about average for today's tourist.

NEW ON THE TOKYO skyline is the fast-rising 28-million-dollar Hotel Grand Palace, scheduled for completion in December and for its opening next Feb. 20. Located on the north side of the Imperial Palace grounds near Yasukuni Shrine, it will stand 23 stories and will total 500 "American-sized" guest rooms.

The Leisurely Way To See England

New cruises on the River Thames and on canals through Britain's dreamy Shakespeare and West countries are in operation this year.

Two new companies sponsor these leisurely water-borne vacations from the work-a-day world.

One week jaunts run from London to Oxford, staying at country inns and at a stately home near the river.

J. Johns and Co. operate a fleet of standard draught inland waterway boats, each carrying four passengers and crew. They fly the flag of Lord Angus Montagu, who will personally escort many of the tours.

The final day of the cruise is spent sightseeing in Oxford. Cost is $278 per person for the week.

A second series of cruises is operated by Hotel Holidays Afloat along canals between Chester and in the general vicinity of London. These canals move through some of the loveliest countryside in Britain.

Cruises may be picked up along the route of the boats, with the entire trip from Chester to Hemel Hampstead (near London) taking approximately four weeks.

Sleeping accommodations include two single cabins, two double cabins with single upper and lower berths. Weekly costs: approximately $70.

Hotel Holidays Afloat is at The Boatyard, Market Drayton, Shropshire 2641, England.

The Lord Angust Montagu Cruises are J. Johns, 125 Pall Mall, London S.W.1, England.

The Demise Of Sportsmanship As Reported By A Champion

By DON KEOWN

DEEP WATER by Don Schollander and Duke Savage; Crown, 276 pages, $5.95.

One by one the name athletes have been coming forth to pen, with the help of collaborators, their autobiographies and to offer inside critiques of their sports.

Swimming now takes its turn, with Don Schollander, its greatest performer of the 1960s, performing the rites, with the help of ex-Yale University roommate and law student Duke Savage.

But Schollander goes deeper than his own sport to take a penetrating and unflattering look at the whole amateur athletics system.

As he tells the story of the grueling work, the triumphs, the disappointments, the politicking, the sacrifices and the pleasures that made up his own six-year career spanning two Olympics, a long one as swimming competition goes, Schollander also explodes a few bombs around the amateur athletics establishment. This, of course, in keeping with the current trend that has seen a whole list of athletes, amateur and professional, expose the foibles and the fakeries of the games in which they won their fame.

Inevitably, such an undertaking also tells us considerably about the athlete himself, often more than we learn from the strictly autobiographical sections of these books. And, athletes being human, some of it is good, and some of it is bad.

Don Schollander, the Oregon-born, Santa Clara-trained golden boy of swimming, emerges from "Deep Water" as a decent young man, intelligent and to a degree, but not a great degree, idealistic. And intensely dedicated and self-disciplined.

On the other hand, he also appears to have been — and to still be — extremely thin-skinned and overly-sensitive . . . to harbor more than his share of the jealousy that is one of the less attractive aspects of the competitive spirit.

His flashes of idealism are unevenly applied. Thus he could tour South Africa and be far more offended by a too rigorous schedule and by poor accommodations than by the racial segregation of his audiences.

It is not surprising, then, that he should criticize sharply the International Olympic Committee for banning South Africa from the games because of its apartheid policies, and to see it as a political rather than as a moral issue. Actually, it might appear to be one of those rare occasions when the IOC did act idealistically.

And nowhere in the book does Schollander indicate any concern that swimming, his field, is not only the last refuge of short-haired youth, but more importantly also the last of the lily-white sports.

One might expect Schollander to use his book to give fledgling programs aimed at opening up competitive swimming to minorities a boost. Instead, he is more concerned with the uneven application of amateurism's no-pay principles, with the threat of nationalism to the goodwill objective of the Olympic games (a legitimate and grave cause for worry), with the domination of amateur sports administrative bodies by elderly men out of touch with the needs of today's athletes.

The Olympic games, he claims, are on the point of collapse because of excessive nationalism and the intrusion of international politics.

"I do not think the IOC, as presently constituted, will ever undertake the necessary reforms," he writes. "I think the impetus must come from all over the world, from the athletes themselves."

But there are indications that largely as a result of prodding by Schollander, now a dean at Lewis and Clark College and a member of the United States Olympic Committee Board of Directors and the Amateur Athletic Union's Men's Swimming Committee, by ex-track star Billy Mills, and by others like them, the governing bodies are beginning a glacier-like movement in the direction of reform.

Schollander's points seem to be well made, and one is only disappointed that he did not dig — and think — deeper.

At the roots of the difficulties of all sports seems to be the erosion of that old-fashioned principle, sportsmanship. It is virtually gone in professional sports, where the objective now is to win at any cost including outright cheating. And it has been greatly diminished among amateurs.

Winning swimming, says Schollander, is 80 per cent psychological, 20 per cent physical. And a big part of that 80 per cent is a matter of "psyching out" opponents — and often teammates as well — before and during the race. The tactics used in this "psyching" are sometimes questionable at best, as Schollander freely admits.

It is entirely possible that what we need now is a de-emphasis of competitiveness and a revival of sportsmanship, from age-group swimming and Little League baseball on up. Leo Durocher to the contrary, good guys do sometimes win. And win or lose, they no doubt sleep better at nights. And their sport is the better for their efforts.

The autobiographical parts of Schollander's book, while almost secondary to the treatises on amateurism and its problems, are exciting and enlightening, demonstrating the tremendous ordeal that the athlete, particularly the swimmer, must endure to attain success, and the feuds and friendships that spring up along his arduous path.

BOONTLING, the distinctive local "lingo" developed in Mendocino County's Upper Anderson Valley and used freely for four decades before and after the turn of the century, to the confusion of visitors to the area, has long fascinated students of language, western history and Americana.

The name came from Boonville, the town with which it was most closely associated. There "sleeping" was "sluggin'" and a bedroom was "a sluggin' nook." A pay telephone was a "buckey walter," a dime a "deem," a peach a "fuzzeek," a chamber pot a "tipin moshe" and a preacher a "skipe."

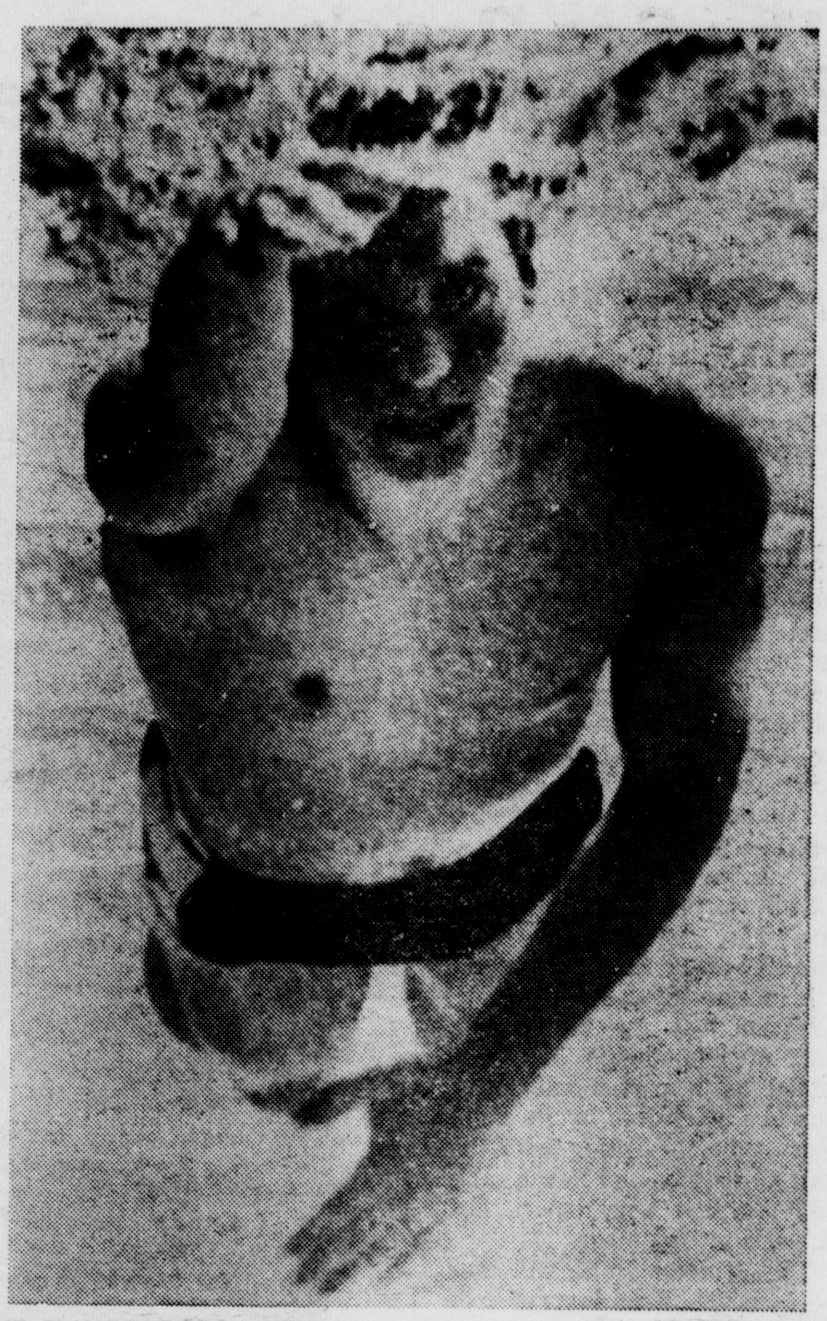
Charles C. Adams, chairman of the Department of English at Chico State College, has compiled "Boontling: An American Lingo With a Dictionary of Boontling."

Strangely enough, the publisher is noe one of the California University of history-minded presses, but the University of Texas Press in Austin, and the well printed and well bound book is priced at $7.50.

The book is more than just a glossary as Adams explores the origins of the jargon and its terms. Even the Boonvillers who spoke Boontiling in its heyday, 1880 to 1920, could not agree upon any one origin, and Adams makes it plain that the lingo sprang up from many sources and for a number of reasons, not the least of them the desire of insiders to exclude outsiders from their conversations. Not surprisingly, a good many terms were on the ribald side, dealing with subjects considered taboo at the time. With their own "tongue," the Boonville funsters could, as one boasted, "discuss just about anything" without giving offense to the uninitiated.

If terms like "yink" and "Belk" catch your ears and twit your curiosity, Adams' book, a readable study that catches both the more serious and the lighter implications of Boontling, will interest and enlighten you.

KEN MURRAY enjoyed a brief fling on television with his "home movies" of Hollywood celebrities, with much of the footage filmed at William Randolph Hearst's opulent San Simeon estate.



THE FLAWLESS TECHNIQUE that made swimmer Don Schollander a five-Gold Medals winner in Olympic competition is shown in this underwater photograph, one of the illustrations from the book "Deep Water" by the champion athlete and co-author Duke Savage.

In "The Golden Days of San Simeon" Murray mines that rich vein again, with a book that exploits his personal knowledge of the place and the people who frequented it. Naturally, it is a record-breaking performance in the grand old sport of name-dropping. And many of the names are those older Americans remember with fond nostalgia, and around whom the younger generations have in some instances developed cults. And San Simeon itself demands at least equal billing with the celebrities. The photographs — Murray's own candid snapshots — focus upon both people and place.

And finally there's a foreword by Ronald Reagan that adds not a whit to the book except for one more name.

Doubleday is the publisher of the $10 book, and it should more than please the many fascinated by this splendid monument to one man's vanity.

Sleuths & Suspense

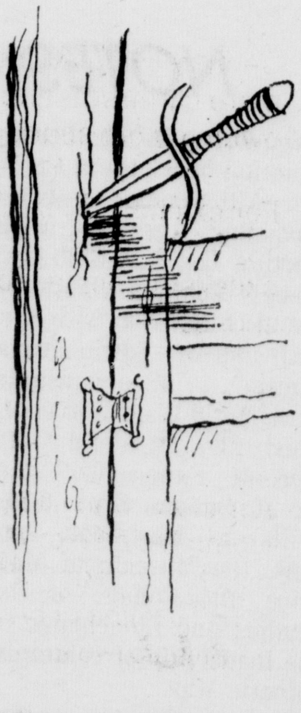
THE BAXTER LETTERS by Dolores Hitchens; Putnam, 189 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

The heroine of this new mystery is cast in the old mold of the country girl who comes to the big city and is taken in by a slicker.

Jennifer Hamilton is modern enough to share the Now Generation's outlook on marriage, or lack of it, but she is dreadfully taken in the the aspiring playwright she moves in with.

Not only is she supporting this bum by pounding a typewriter all day, but she manages to get mixed up in a very complicated plot which begins with a letter from a black-sheep uncle who is in Mexico.

The $300 he sends in exchange for delivering a letter seems like manna (even if the playwright spends most of it for a tape recorder), but Jennifer finds she has become caught up in a frightening and complicated web that includes murder.



Despite Jennifer's seeming inability to take care of herself in the most rudimentary fashion, the book is quite entertaining and a tidy little suspense story.

Zihuatanejo: The Next Acapulco?

Cruise Line 'Discovers' New Port

THE BEACH AT Zihuatanejo is as rustic and unspoiled as the shoreline of any South Sea island, and fringed with coconut trees with mountains in the background. The town of 3,000 is often compared to the Acapulco of 30 years ago. In December, the 420-passenger liner Princess Italia will become the first cruise ship ever to visit the picturesque port.

Contrary to the popularly-held belief of many tourists from the States, Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan are not the only resort-ports located along Mexico's Riviera coast.

It is just that they are the most accessible. And the ones most practiced in accommodating tourists.

BUT THEIR very popularity spells change, and many a visitor to the jewel-like Pacific Ocean coastline of our neighbor to the north has longed for a look at a truly unspoiled Mexican seaside town.

Some fortunate travelers will be getting just such a treat in late 1971 and 1972.

Princess Cruises has announced that the picturesque port of Zihuatanejo has been added as a port-of-call for a number of cruises by its Princess Italia, beginning with the gala Christmas and New Year's sailings that will depart Los Angeles in December.

The Princess Italia will thus become the first luxury liner ever to call at Zihuatanejo.

And it was once a pirate base from which buccaneers picked off Spanish galleons following the coast.

There's a distinct Polynesian appearance to Zihuatanejo with its clean sand beach fringed by coconut trees. And it even has a Polynesian segment in its population — the descendants of islanders brought to Mexico by Spain for labor in the colonial days.

STANLEY B. McDonald, president of Princes Cruises, points out that his line was the first to permit its passengers to explore Puerto Vallarta, and adds that still other Mexican ports will be added as stopping points in the future.

Calls at Zihuatanejo during the 1970-71 travel season will include Princess Italia sailings for Mexico from Los Angeles on Dec. 15, Dec. 29, Jan. 14, Feb. 11 and March 17 — all 14-day voyages.

Shorter cruises will continue to make Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan their stopping points.

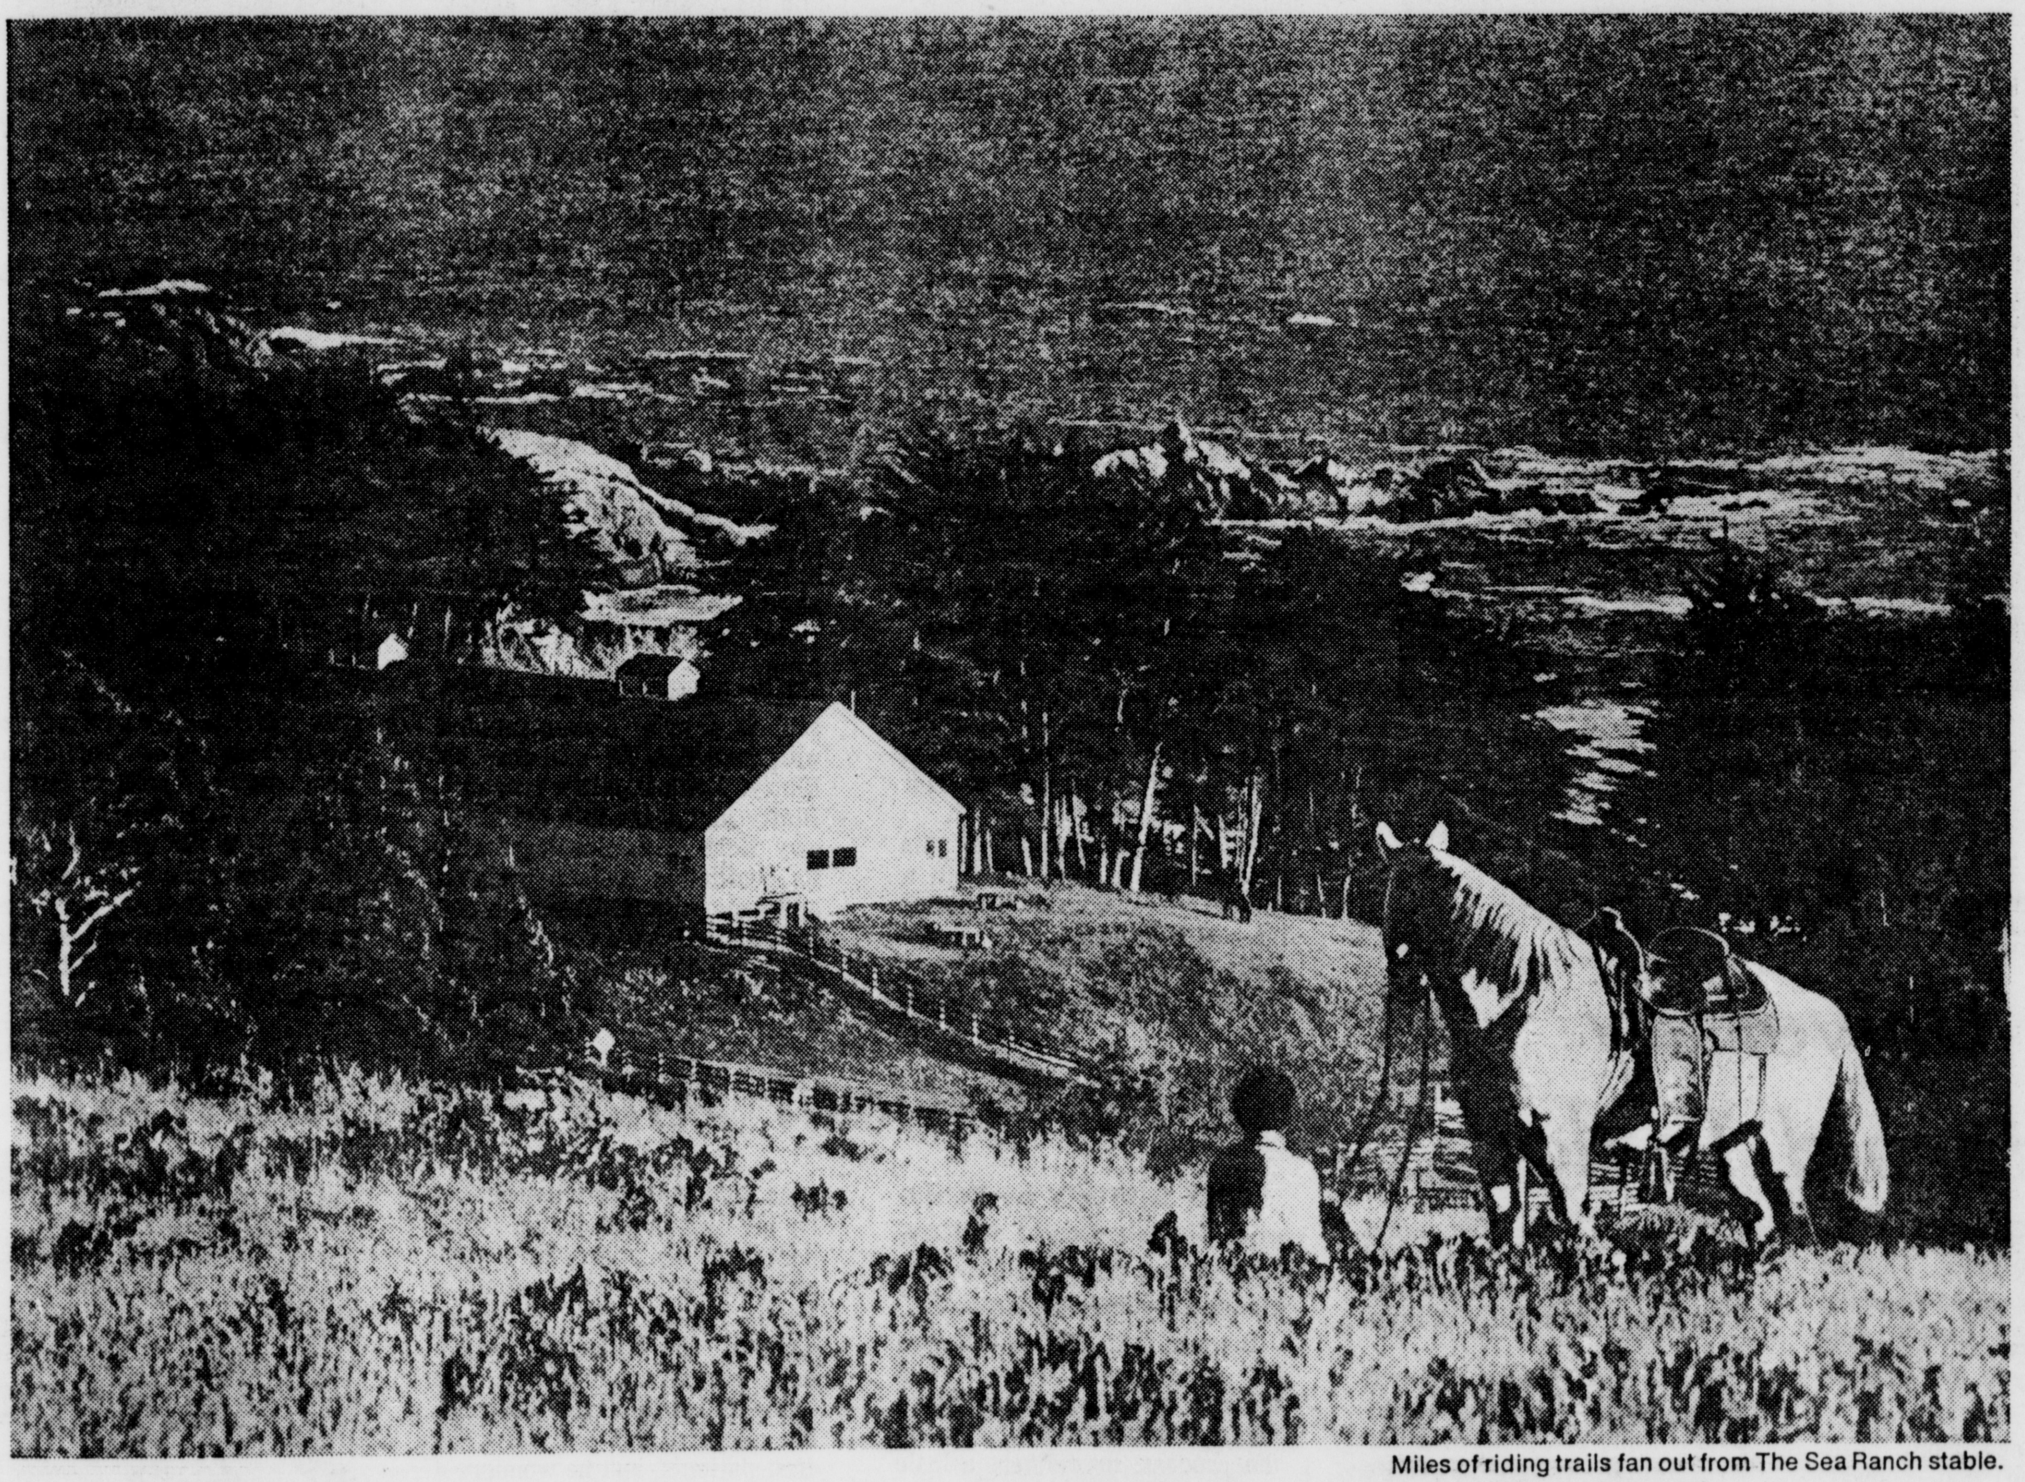
The Sea Ranch

Beautiful country home colony on the Sonoma coast

It gives you the pleasures of a country estate —without the cost



Miles of riding trails fan out from The Sea Ranch stable. An Ernest Braun photograph.

Country living at The Sea Ranch is far more carefree—and far less costly—than owning most country property.

For example, there's no need to plan an expensive pool. Sea Ranch residents have excellent pool facilities, complete with saunas.

If you enjoy a game of tennis, The Sea Ranch has courts of exhibition quality.

For those who like to ride, The Sea Ranch maintains an excellent stable where horses may be boarded or rented. And there are over 16 miles of bridle trails through forests and meadows to explore.

There is even a private Sea Ranch landing strip for residents who wish to fly to their country homes.

Guests? There's no need to build special accommodations. Your friends can plan an overnight stay at the handsome Sea Ranch Lodge overlooking the Pacific.

Another thing to consider is security. And here it is good to remember that a security patrol protects Sea Ranch property, admitting only residents and their guests.

With all these obvious advantages, Sea Ranch living also gives you all the privacy and freedom of large country acreage. The Sea Ranch master plan reserves hundreds of acres for preservation in their natural state. Meadow homes are grouped around great open land areas. You can go for long walks, explore the headlands and quiet sea coves, and hardly meet a soul.

Find out why a country home at The Sea Ranch—just 2½ hours north of San Francisco—should be part of your life. Send the coupon today for further information.

The Demise Of Sportsmanship As Reported By A Champion

By DON KEOWN

DEEP WATER by Don Schollander and Duke Savage; Crown, 276 pages, $5.95.

One by one the name athletes have been coming forth to pen, with the help of collaborators. their autobiographies and to offer inside critiques of their sports.

Swimming now takes its turn, with Don Schollander, its greatest performer of the 1960s, performing the rites, with the help of ex-Yale University roommate and law student Duke Savage.

But Schollander goes deeper than his own sport to take a penetrating and unflattering look at the whole amateur athletics system.

As he tells the story of the grueling work, the triumphs, the disappointments, the politicking, the sacrifices and the pleasures that made up his own six-year career spanning two Olympics, a long one as swimming competition goes, Schollander also explodes a few bombs around the amateur athletics establishment. This, of course, in keeping with the current trend that has seen a whole list of athletes, amateur and professional, expose the foibles and the fakeries of the games in which they won their fame.

Inevitably, such an undertaking also tells us considerably about the athlete himself, often more than we learn from the strictly autobiographical sections of these books. And, athletes being human, some of it is good, and some of it is bad.

Don Schollander, the Oregon-born, Santa Clara-trained golden boy of swimming, emerges from "Deep Water" as a decent young man, intelligent and to a degree, but not a great degree, idealistic. And intensely dedicated and self-disciplined.

On the other hand, he also appears to have been — and to still be — extremely thin-skinned and overly-sensitive . . . to harbor more than his share of the jealousy that is one of the less attractive aspects of the competitive spirit.

His flashes of idealism are unevenly applied. Thus he could tour South Africa and be far more offended by a too rigorous schedule and by poor accommodations than by the racial segregation of his audiences.

It is not surprising, then, that he should criticize sharply the International Olympic Committee for banning South Africa from the games because of its apartheid policies, and to see it as a political rather than as a moral issue. Actually, it might appear to be one of those rare occasions when the IOC did act idealistically.

And nowhere in the book does Schollander indicate any concern that swimming, his field, is not only the last refuge of short-haired youth, but more importantly also the last of the lily-white sports.

One might expect Schollander to use his book to give fledgling programs aimed at opening up competitive swimming to minorities a boost. Instead, he is more concerned with the uneven application of amateurism's no-pay principles, with the threat of nationalism to the goodwill objective of the Olympic games (a legitimate and grave cause for worry), with the domination of amateur sports administrative bodies by elderly men out of touch with the needs of today's athletes.

The Olympic games, he claims, are on the point of collapse because of excessive nationalism and the intrusion of international politics.

"I do not think the IOC, as presently constituted, will ever undertake the necessary reforms," he writes. "I think the impetus must come from all over the world, from the athletes themselves."

But there are indications that largely as a result of prodding by Schollander, now a dean at Lewis and Clark College and a member of the United States Olympic Committee Board of Directors and the Amateur Athletic Union's Men's Swimming Committee, by ex-track star Billy Mills, and by others like them, the governing bodies are beginning a glacier-like movement in the direction of reform.

Schollander's points seem to be well made, and one is only disappointed that he did not dig — and think — deeper.

At the roots of the difficulties of all sports seems to be the erosion of that old-fashioned principle, sportsmanship. It is virtually gone in professional sports, where the objective now is to win at any cost including outright cheating. And it has been greatly diminished among amateurs.

Winning swimming, says Schollander, is 80 per cent psychological, 20 per cent physical. And a big part of that 80 per cent is a matter of "psyching out" opponents — and often teammates as well — before and during the race. The tactics used in this "psyching" are sometimes questionable at best, as Schollander freely admits.

It is entirely possible that what we need now is a de-emphasis of competitiveness and a revival of sportsmanship, from age-group swimming and Little League baseball on up. Leo Durocher to the contrary, good guys do sometimes win. And win or lose, they no doubt sleep better at nights. And their sport is the better for their efforts.

The autobiographical parts of Schollander's book, while almost secondary to the treatises on amateurism and its problems, are exciting and enlightening, demonstrating the tremendous ordeal that the athlete, particularly the swimmer, must endure to attain success, and the feuds and friendships that spring up along his arduous path.

BOONTLING, the distinctive local "lingo" developed in Mendocino County's Upper Anderson Valley and used freely for four decades before and after the turn of the century, to the confusion of visitors to the area, has long fascinated students of language, western history and Americana.

The name came from Boonville, the town with which it was most closely associated. There "sleeping" was "sluggin'" and a bedroom was "a sluggin' nook." A pay telephone was a "buckey walter," a dime a "deem," a peach a "fuzzeek," a chamber pot a "tipin moshe" and a preacher a "skipe."

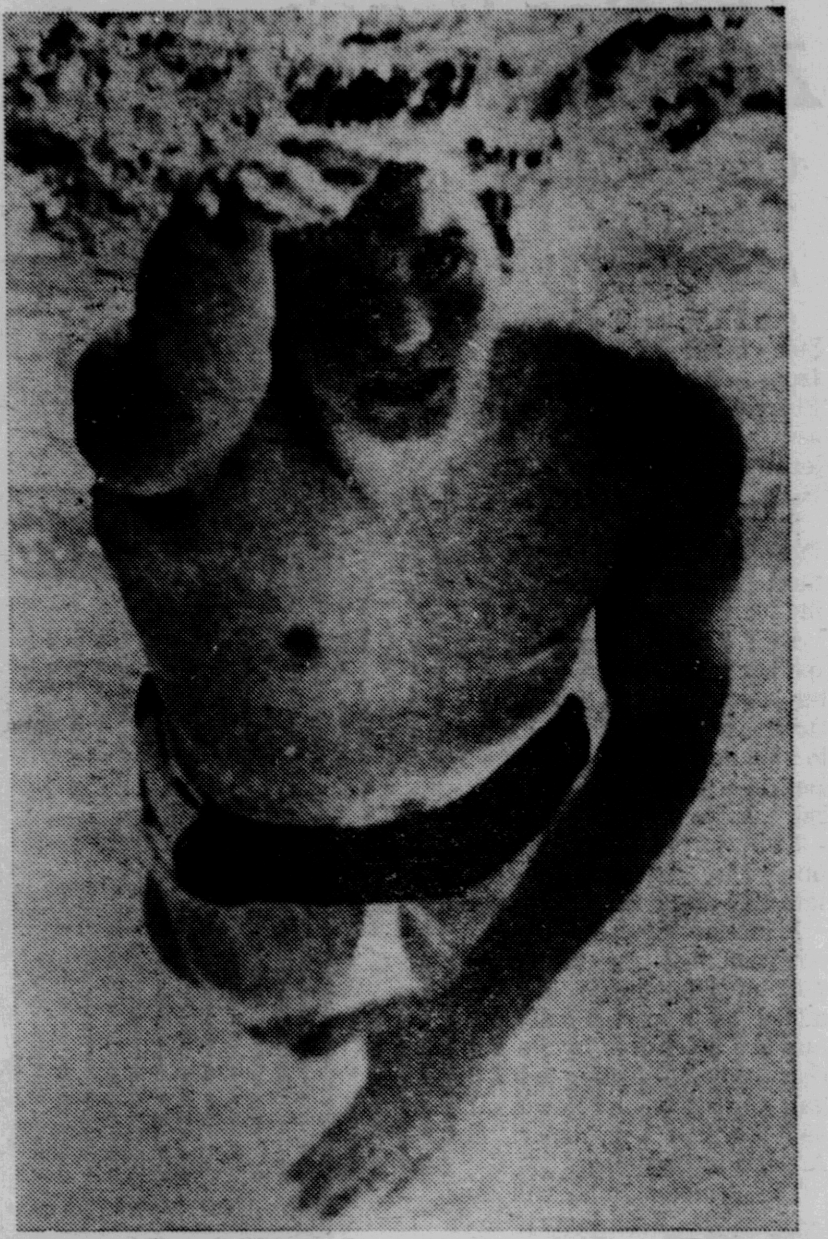
Charles C. Adams, chairman of the Department of English at Chico State College, has compiled "Boontling: An American Lingo With a Dictionary of Boontling."

Strangely enough, the publisher is noe one of the California University of history-minded presses, but the University of Texas Press in Austin, and the well printed and well bound book is priced at $7.50.

The book is more than just a glossary as Adams explores the origins of the jargon and its terms. Even the Boonvillers who spoke Boontiling in its heyday, 1880 to 1920, could not agree upon any one origin, and Adams makes it plain that the lingo sprang up from many sources and for a number of reasons, not the least of them the desire of insiders to exclude outsiders from their conversations. Not surprisingly, a good many terms were on the ribald side, dealing with subjects considered taboo at the time. With their own "tongue," the Boonville funsters could, as one boasted, "discuss just about anything" without giving offense to the uninitiated.

If terms like "yink" and "Belk" catch your ears and twit your curiosity, Adams' book, a readable study that catches both the more serious and the lighter implications of Boontling, will interest and enlighten you.

KEN MURRAY enjoyed a brief fling on television with his "home movies" of Hollywood celebrities, with much of the footage filmed at William Randolph Hearst's opulent San Simeon estate.



THE FLAWLESS TECHNIQUE that made swimmer Don Schollander a five-Gold Medals winner in Olympic competition is shown in this underwater photograph, one of the illustrations from the book "Deep Water" by the champion athlete and co-author Duke Savage.

In "The Golden Days of San Simeon" Murray mines that rich vein again, with a book that exploits his personal knowledge of the place and the people who frequented it. Naturally, it is a record-breaking performance in the grand old sport of name-dropping. And many of the names are those older Americans remember with fond nostalgia, and around whom the younger generations have in some instances developed cults. And San Simeon itself demands at least equal billing with the celebrities. The photographs — Murray's own candid snapshots — focus upon both people and place.

And finally there's a foreword by Ronald Reagan that adds not a whit to the book except for one more name.

Doubleday is the publisher of the $10 book, and it should more than please the many fascinated by this splendid monument to one man's vanity.

Sleuths & Suspense

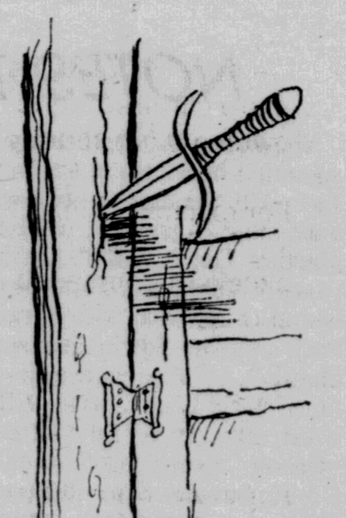
THE BAXTER LETTERS by Dolores Hitchens; Putnam, 189 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

The heroine of this new mystery is cast in the old mold of the country girl who comes to the big city and is taken in by a slicker.

Jennifer Hamilton is modern enough to share the Now Generation's outlook on marriage, or lack of it, but she is dreadfully taken in the the aspiring playwright she moves in with.

Not only is she supporting this bum by pounding a typewriter all day, but she manages to get mixed up in a very complicated plot which begins with a letter from a black-sheep uncle who is in Mexico.

The $300 he sends in exchange for delivering a letter seems like manna (even if the playwright spends most of it for a tape recorder), but Jennifer finds she has become caught up in a frightening and complicated web that includes murder.



Despite Jennifer's seeming inability to take care of herself in the most rudimentary fashion, the book is quite entertaining and a tidy little suspense story.

There has been a fair share of criticism about the state of health care in the United States and soaring medical costs, but when it comes from a practicing physician it has a stronger impact.

Dr. Gerber tells, without mincing words, what's wrong with health care and takes a few healthy raps at the American Medical Association along the way.

He charges there is a critical shortage of doctors for which the AMA "bears a heavy share of responsibility"; a shortage that has resulted in the U.S. depending upon importation of foreign graduates.

"The simple fact is that no real improvement in the quality and availability of medical care can be expected until we come to grips with the critical problem of the shortage of doctors," Dr. Gerber says.

Furthermore, there is a serious maldistribution of physicians, since they aren't enthusiastic about practicing in urban and rural slums.

On medical costs, he contends, the problem is not so much the actual cost but whether the patient is getting his money's worth in quality.

Many unnecessary operations are performed, he claims, "an example among many where our health care has gone terribly wrong."

Dr. Gerber decries clumsily-performed operations by unqualified doctors, fee-splitting and "ghost surgery," where one doctor substitutes for another unbeknownst to the patient.

He calls for expansion of medical schools with substantial federal aid to increase the supply of doctors, tighter policing of doctors and hospitals and compulsory national health insurance.

According to World Health Organization statistics, the U.S., richest country in the world, ranks 18th among nations in infant mortality, 22nd in longevity.

"Why are we not the healthiest?" Dr. Gerber asks.

A Tale Of Demonology

William Peter Blatty's new novel is an assured commercial success, a Literary Guild alternate choice, with both motion picture and paperback reprint rights already sold.

With "demonology" as its central theme, it deals with a subject of considerable popular interest right now.

An 11-year-old girl begins to exhibit the symptoms of being "possessed," so that her desperate actress-mother turns for help first to doctors and psychiatrists, and then to a Jesuit priest and the ritual of exorcism.

The struggle for the child's soul is a grim one, presented with considerable suspense by Blatty. Evident is the research Blatty has down into the shadowy field of demonology with its conflicting roots in religion and superstition. An eerie mood is sustained, with the most jarring and disturbing notes coming from an unnecessary, pretentious indulgence in four-letter words.

"The Exorcist" is a far cry from the farcical "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" and "Which Way to Mecca, Jack?" with which Blatty arrived upon the literary scene. This spooky story of a conflict between Satan and Christianity, between rationalism and the supernatural, makes for somber reading. But it is well-done, and winds up with a surprise ending likely to catch the hypnotized reader off-guard.

Benjamin Siegel has followed his successful "Doctors and Wives" with a stirring novel about a psychiatrist. And, in the process, he delivers a little food for thought on the profession itself.

Each day Dr. Max Norway sat in his office listening to the people who came to him for help — the housewife with the overwhelming urge to kill her children, the teacher with his hidden fears. . .men and women from ordinary walks of life with very unordinary problems.

As he listens, Norway reflects on his own life and suffers doubts of his ability as a psychiatrist, a husband and as a human being. He becomes, himself, the "Case History," both patient and doctor. His thoughts return to hischildhood, his schooling, his marriage, his first patients, and he wonders if everything should have been done differently and where and why he failed. Only through a tragedy involving one of his patients does he find his answers.

Siegel writes with genuine understanding and remarkable perception of the troubled mind and, undoubtedly, has another best-seller.

A Case For The Free University By Harold Taylor

HOW TO CHANGE COLLEGES by Harold Taylor; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 180 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

It seems that everybody these days is writing that radical changes are required in our educational system. But what changes should be made and who should make them are subjects of a wide variety of opinions.

Harold Taylor, who acquired his appreciation of student activism while president of exclusive, female Sarah Lawrence College, has become one of the principal advocates of change to non-structured, non-graded, non-semestered education, with students to have wide choice of their own curriculum.

That is again his theme in "How To Change Colleges."

He sets the theme in his introduction: "If the educators do not wish to be serious about making the university into a place where students can live a rich, rewarding, and lively intellectual life — an engaged life that commits them to the cause of mankind — they should move over and give the students a chance to invent their own university. Some of the students are already trying to do that, and they need help."

They need help, of course, from people like Harold Taylor.

By careful selection, he builds a case in favor of the "free university," emphasizing all the advantages of student activism and student choice, and ignoring or disparaging all the advantages and accomplishments of educational institutions structured to impart knowledge rather than merely to "involve" their students.

Those who agree with his philosophy will like the book.

Invitations To Murder?

THEY ASKED FOR DEATH by Marshall Houts; Cowles, 241 pages $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Frequently when misfortune befalls someone, acquaintances will say, "He asked for it." But that summation is seldom heard when the topic is murder.

In a study of murder victims, Houts, a lawyer who has been a deputy coroner and judge, makes a strong case that there are people who "ask" to be murdered.

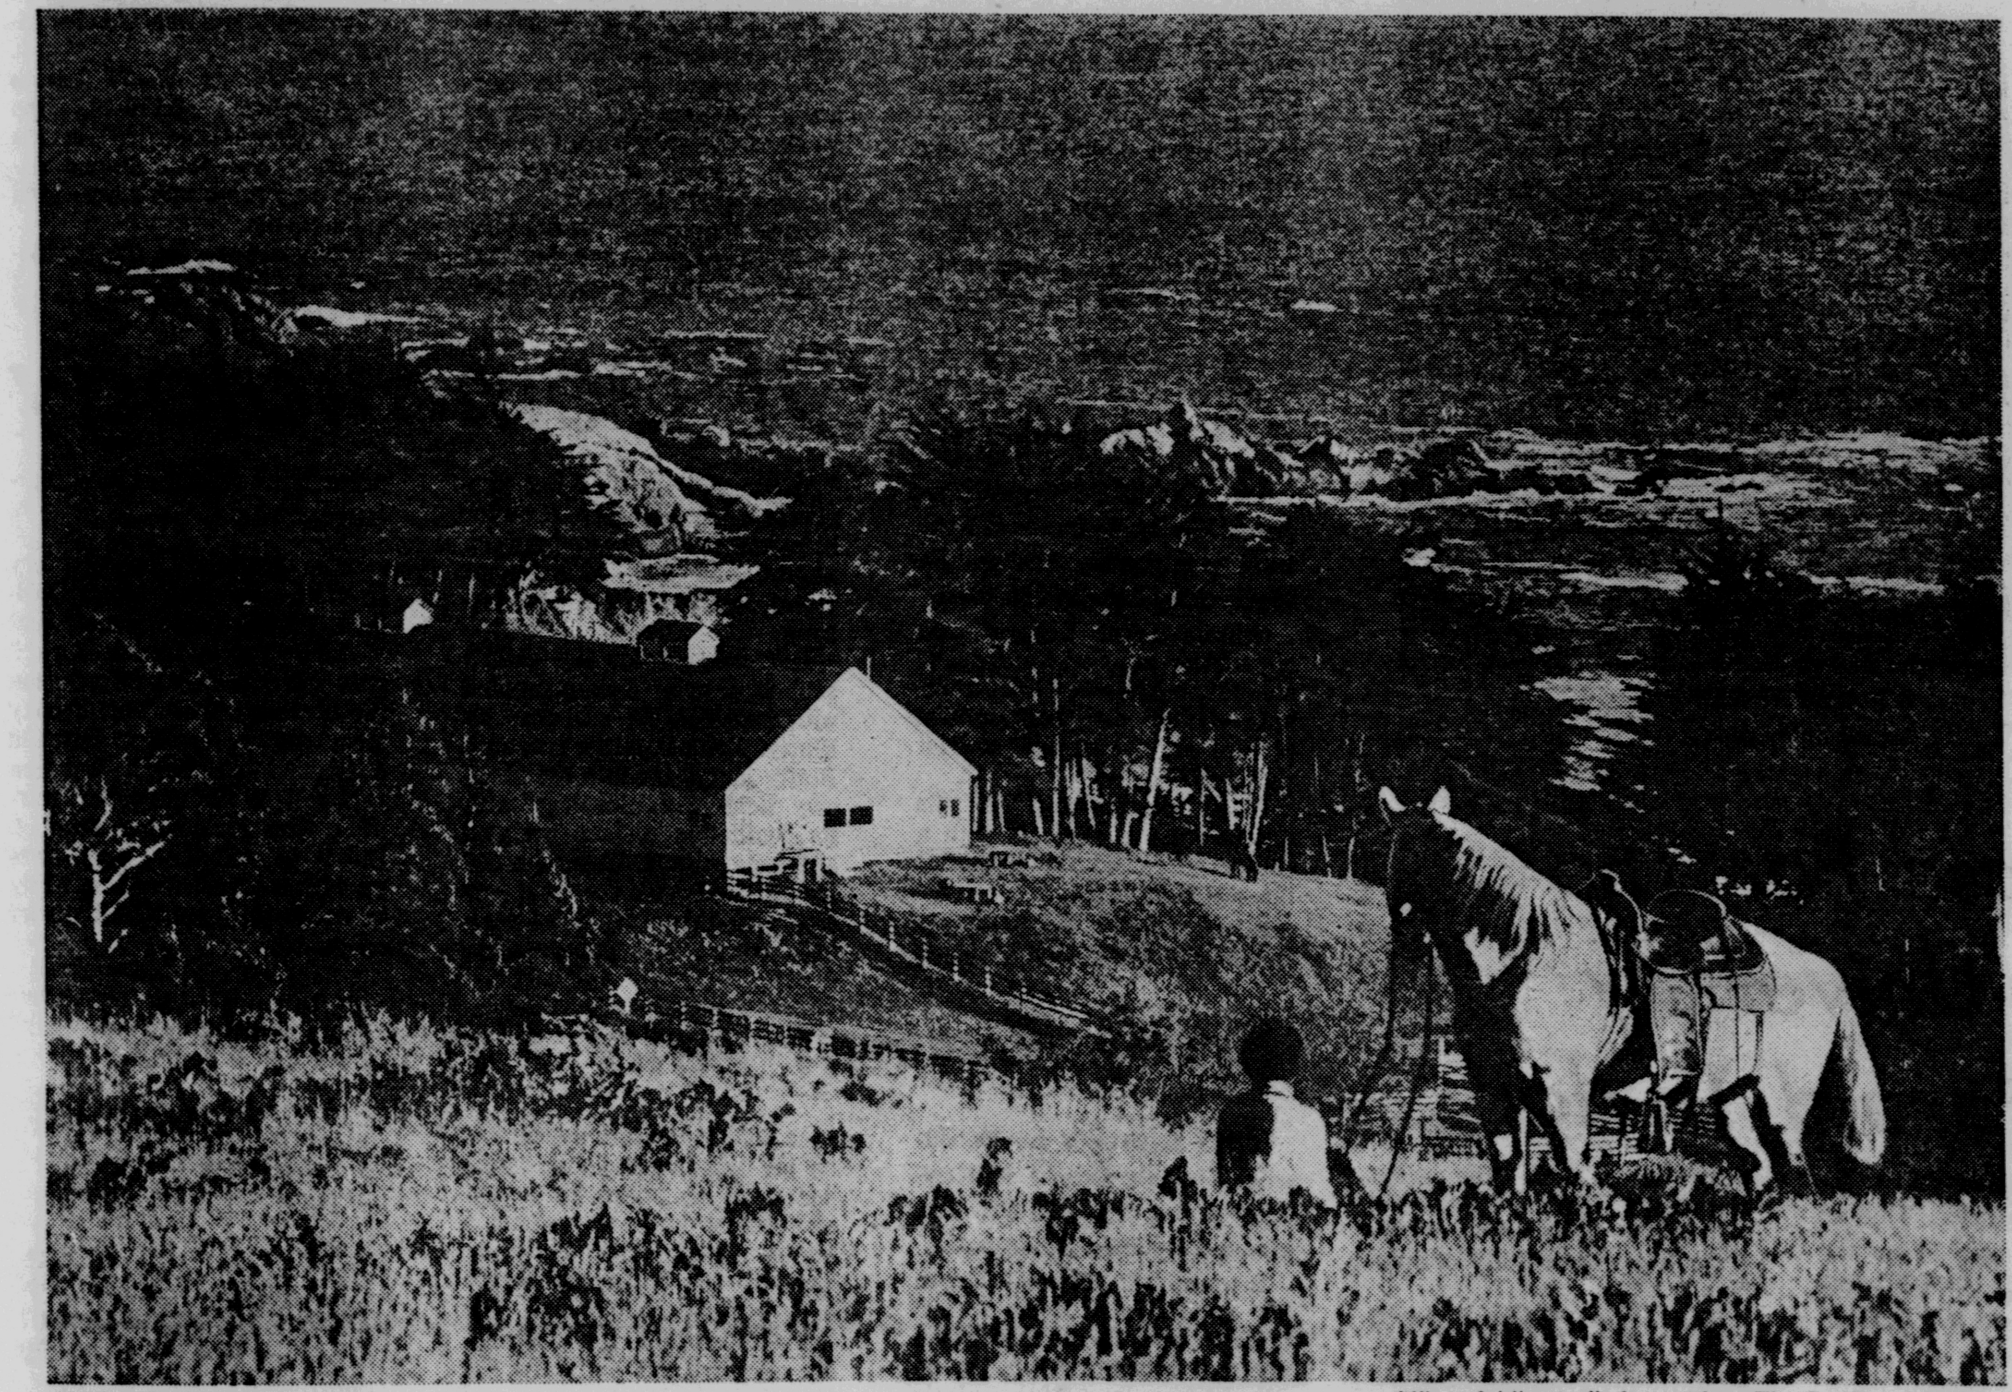
His case histories indicate there are people who are murder-prone as there are people who are accident prone; people who goad others until it ends in murder.

The motives, actions and the attitudes of the victim provide an insight into the act of murder and are more intriguing than those of the murderer, considering that the victim sacrifices his life.

The Sea Ranch

Beautiful country home colony on the Sonoma coast

It gives you the pleasures of a country estate —without the cost



Miles of riding trails fan out from The Sea Ranch stable.
An Ernest Braun photograph.

Country living at The Sea Ranch is far more carefree—and far less costly—than owning most country property.

For example, there's no need to plan an expensive pool. Sea Ranch residents have excellent pool facilities, complete with saunas.

If you enjoy a game of tennis, The Sea Ranch has courts of exhibition quality.

For those who like to ride, The Sea Ranch maintains an excellent stable where horses may be boarded or rented. And there are over 16 miles of bridle trails through forests and meadows to explore.

There is even a private Sea Ranch landing strip for residents who wish to fly to their country homes.

Guests? There's no need to build special accommodations. Your friends can plan an overnight stay at the handsome Sea Ranch Lodge overlooking the Pacific.

Another thing to consider is security. And here it is good to remember that a security patrol protects Sea Ranch property, admitting only residents and their guests.

With all these obvious advantages, Sea Ranch living also gives you all the privacy and freedom of large country acreage. The Sea Ranch master plan reserves hundreds of acres for preservation in their natural state. Meadow homes are grouped around great open land areas. You can go for long walks, explore the headlands and quiet sea coves, and hardly meet a soul.

Water, Fertilizer Work Together

It's a known fact that some people eat more than others, and it's also common knowledge among lawn and garden experts that some grasses have greater appetites for fertilizer than others.

However, much leeway exists in lawn fertilization, depending upon the condition of the soil, individual lawn color preference and, of course, the variety of grass chosen for the lawn.

For example, heavy feeding varieties (such as blue grass) may require on the average of a pound of nitrogen for every 1,000 square feet of growing area for proper leaf development.

GARDEN FERTILIZERS are commonly sold in 50 or 100-pound sacks; a typical bag may contain 12 pounds of nitrogen; 12 pounds of phosphorus nad 12 pounds of potassium. The remaining weight usually consists of some form of filler material.

Nitrogen, as mentioned, promotes leaf growth. Phosphorus encourages root growth.

Potassium strengthens the stock of the plant which connects the two.

Adequate watering is the key to obtaining full value from your investment in lawn fertilizers. In order to do their work, nutrients must reach the root systems. This can be accomplished by watering to a depth of about six inches once a week.

THE WATERING LINE can be greatly reduced by using a large diameter hose.

More fertilizer is required for California's irrigated lawns, and many of the newly developed grasses usually "eat" more than common varieties. It is recommended that light feedings should be the rule for all grasses during warm weather and, as the temperature drops, the fertilization program should be increased.

Low-mowed turfs create situations where the roots are under stress — more closely exposed to heat because there's less grass covering the surface of the ground. If lawns are mowed low, an additional treatment of approximately a half-pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet should be applied during the summer months.

IDEALLY, FERTILIZERS are developed to replace the nutrients missing in the soil. However, it is often difficult to have soil tested before additional nutrients are added. Therefore, practically any reputable turf fertilizer will work.

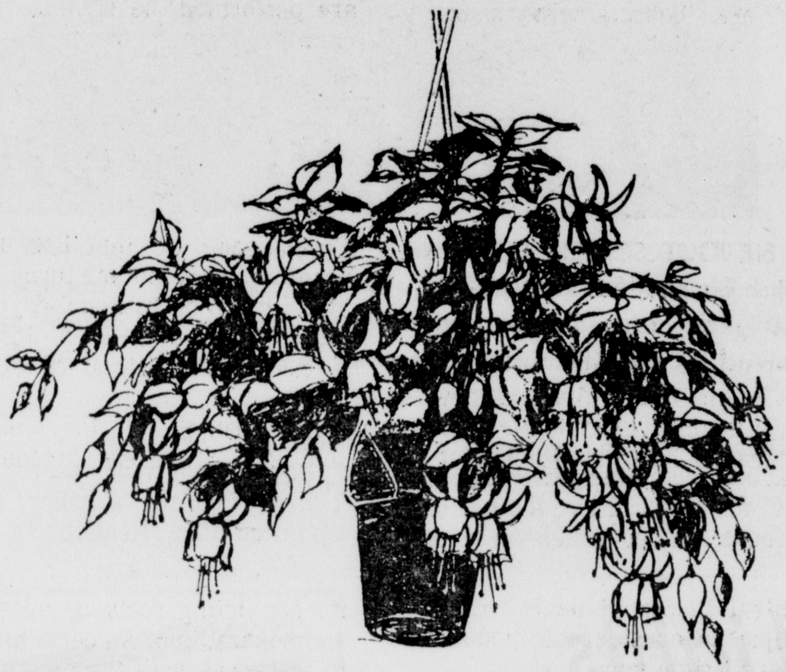
In most cases, it is not necessary to worry about over feeding the soil with additional nutrients.

To coincide with fertilization, many experienced lawn experts incorporate some form of herbicide for weed control.

Some grassy weeds, such as crabgrass, must be treated with pre-emergence product to be really effective. But other weeds, such as the dandelion, plantain, dock and other broad-leaf pests, can be treated while they are growing and even after they have attained their growth.

REMEMBER TO USE the least potent chemical that will do the job for you, and don't over-apply.

Colors You Can Cascade



FUCHSIAS ARE among the most popular hanging basket plants and can be found in a large number of varieties well suited to this kind of growth. (California Association of Nurserymen drawing)

More and more beauty-conscious Marinites are achieving special effects around their homes and gardens by using plants in hanging baskets and letting the colors cascade.

This interest in hanging baskets is reflected in the many varieties of suitable plants now available in local nurseries. There is also a large assortment of handsome containers to use.

Nurseries will have specimens already showing color. These can be taken home and their beauty enjoyed instantly.

TWO POPULAR plants for hanging basket use are Ivy Geraniums and Petunias.

Ivy Geranium's foliage is green and glossy, and during the summer months the pink, red, lavender or white flowers are a delight.

Petunias will tolerate sunnier locations and their prolific, continuous blooming habit will amaze you. The colors cover a wide range — from pure white, pink, rose and red shades to lavender, blue and violet hues.

BASKETS OF Tuberous Begonias and Fuchias are popular choices with Marinites.

Don't overlook Trailing Lantana, the popular lavender-blooming favorite. Or try one of the newer spreading Lantana forms, making certain it receives ample sun, and water. The bright colors — yellow, cerise, orange-red, white — are sure to please.

Parrot's Beak Lotus has soft, needle-like gray foliage and is highlighted by coppery-red blooms. It is another good choice for sunny spots.

In semi-shaded locations, use the brilliantly-marked Hanging Basket Coleus, or Impatiens (Sultanas).

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Plant Hibicus now for spectacular summer bloom. They like plenty of sun and water.

✓ Bedding plants for summer color should go in right away — some, such as Alyssum, Lobelia, Petunias and Marigolds will provide almost instant flowers.

✓ Snails and slugs are practically year-round garden pests, but can be controlled with bait or pellets.

✓ It's time to begin that lawn-water schedule.

✓ Enjoy summer harvests of vegetables by planting these now: Corn, beans, beets, carrots, cucumbers, radishes and squash.

✓ Deep watering and mulching of trees and shrubs is a good summer gardening practice.

Fences are a must for home swimming pools to prevent young non-swimmers from wandering in at unguarded moments.

A handsome fence of wood around a pool also blocks too-cool breezes or dirt-laden winds, and, of course, lends privacy not afforded by a wire or chain fence.

A distinctive solid fence may be built of one-by-four-inch resawn western red cedar boards placed vertically on a frame of four-by-four-inch posts and two-by-four-inch stringers of Douglas fir.

FOR ACCENT, this is topped with three or four rows of horizontal one-by-two-inch spaced slats and a two-by-four-inch fir cap.

Fencing side and back yards offers areas for outdoor living and privacy, but many homeowners shy away from highly functional fences in front for fear of offending neighbors or appearing standoffish.

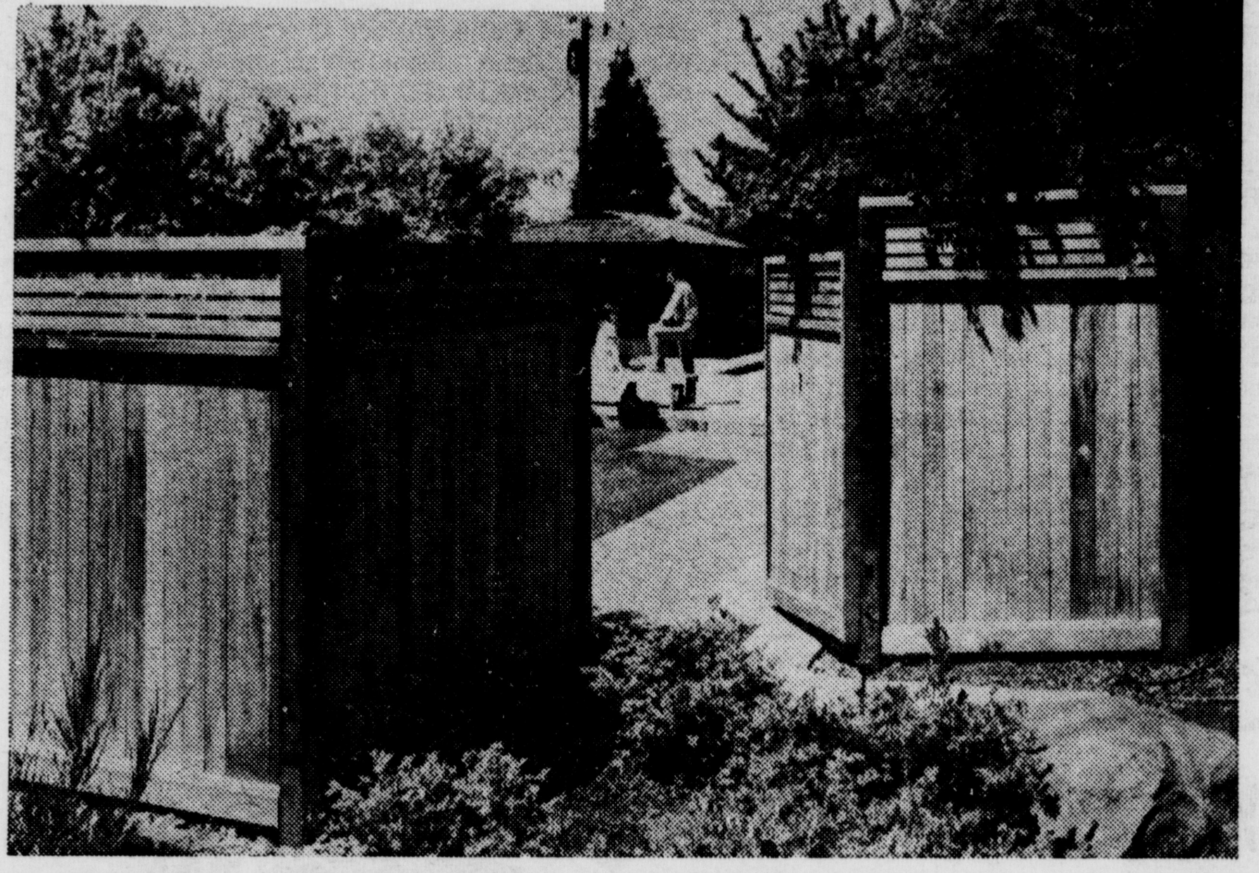
Front yard fences may be low, inconspicuous board-and-batten structures blended with plantings to keep out stray pets, or medium height slat screens to block the glances of passers-by.

A LOUVERED fence or screen combined with a deck can add valuable outdoor living space at the front entry or adjoining another room of the house. This can be especially effective for houses with deep setbacks and too-large lawns.

Western wood screens also may be used as divider "walls" to set off other living or play areas of the yard, much as a divider does inside the house. The screens also make a backdrop for shrubs or flowers.

A service area formed by adding screens out from a fence or the side of a house will hide the clutter of garbage cans, meter boxes, barbecue equipment and clothes lines for wet suits and towels.

A SCREEN OF louvered boards set vertically between two-by-four-inch stringers will block off views of the service area while providing needed air circulation.



A SIX-FOOT SCREEN to seclude and protect this swimming pool has been built of western woods — one-by-four-inch red cedar resawn boards, four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts, decorative two-by-four-inch fir caps over spaced one-by-two-inch slats. Low-maintenance gravel and bark planter areas extend to the street curb.

Douglas fir and western cedar are recommended woods to use for yard dividers or screens, either rough-sawn or surfaced.

Rough-sawn woods supply excellent texture, weather well and need little attention.

For a traditionally-styled house, where the fence is to be painted, surfaced wood is suggested.

Lighting Is More Than Lights, Says An Expert On The Subject

Light is light! Right?

Wrong!

You couldn't put enough light bulbs into your house to duplicate the light out-of-doors on a nice, bright, sunny day.

"But, you don't need that much light inside to do most of the things you do indoors," says Howard Haft who's been lighting American homes and offices for years. "What you need is proper lighting."

THE AVERAGE American home or office, according to Haft, doesn't contain enough lamp bulbs and fluorescent tubes to do the proper job of lighting. And most often what lighting exists is without pattern or much reason.

"With an absence of power and pattern, home color schemes for example, may not be as alive and vital as decorating conscious homemakers might like. And there's every chance that their families can be doing damage to their eyes as well," the president of Chicago-based Art Specialty Co. cautions.

Haft, who manufactures lighting for homes and offices, is ever conscious of the fact that indoor lighting which most enhances color and decorating is often not the most beneficial and effective for doing a variety of indoor tasks.

"FOR EXAMPLE," Haft says, "light itself produces color. When properly balanced, light and color compliment each other and are more effective than either one alone. You react to this at the theater and at motion pictures. Stage sets are painted and lighted to create atmosphere and glamor, intensifying your emotional responses. Color is made more vibrant with lights, and light itself becomes more colorful.

"The first things you look at on entering a room are the light sources. Windows by day, lamps by night. Next, you notice color, then the areas of color — shades and tints; then, composition, and finally, details such as furniture, fabrics, and ornaments.

"All these are influenced and modified by lighting."

"BUT," HE continued, "light changes the colors and the appearance of your home or office. At night the changes are even more marked under artificial light. And, you can control and plan the effect you want to achieve by proper placement, intensity, and color of the light you use."

But, if a home, like model apartments in new building developments, existed just to be looked at, decorator lighting would suffice, Haft says.

"But, we have to work in a home or office as well as look at it. So, we need utilitarian lighting to complement decorator lighting," the Art Specialty Co. president adds.

"FOR EXAMPLE, if a youngster has a desk in his room at which he does his homework, he needs special lighting there. The best lamp for that purpose is one which lights the work surface, with the actual light source being approximately 12 inches from that surface. The light source meaning tube or bulb should be shielded so as to prevent direct glare at eye level.

"An ideal unit for the purpose would be a two-tube fluorescent fixture with a metal shade. This provides good light, freedom from glare, and is in general a highly efficient and economical unit to serve the purpose."

It all seems simple enough, Haft notes, but there's also the problem of placement:

"IF YOUR youngster is right-handed, the lamp should be placed to the left of the work center of the desk, approximately 12 inches back from the front edge of the desk. For study purposes two 15-watt fluorescent tubes are an ideal light source, since light used for reading is reflected light, avoid direct incandescent lighting or high intensity lighting of any type — its like trying to read in the sun without sunglasses," Haft said.

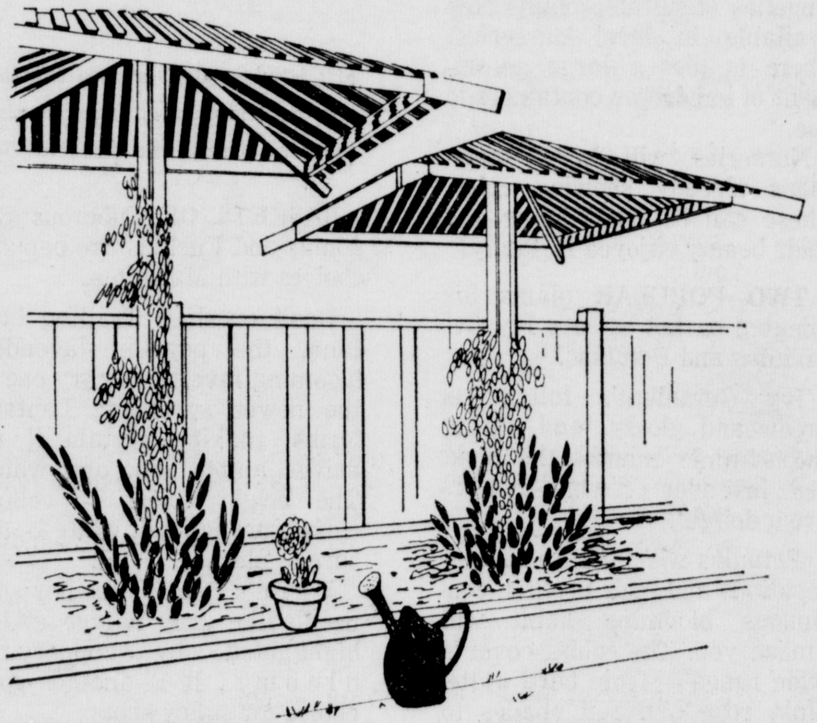
Studying is only one of the things people do at home.

"Think of all the other things, and you can see the variety of lighting that's required in the average home.

"Sure, light is important. But lighting is more important," he concluded.

Dowels Will Hold

A neat way to support bookshelves is to set dowels into wall paneling at right angles. Space three-quarter-inch dowels no more than 20 inches apart and lay shelves over them.



FLOWERS THAT shun the sun will thrive in the shade of graceful parasols built of wood. It's an excellent idea for small gardens where large trees are out of the question. (Homemakers Institute drawing)

Shade Plants With Parasols If Trees Aren't Practical

Some flowers show their true colors only when shielded from the sun's hot rays. Without shade, they may wilt and die.

For areas where the shade of trees or larger structures isn't possible, one or more western wood parasols will provide decorative cover and allow air circulation.

Combined with planter boxes and a fence of vertical boards for a backdrop, these seven- to nine-foot tall parasols lend new personality to a garden.

Another pleasant combination is a bench and fence, providing a shady, restful spot.

The craftsman can build the parasol of four-by-four-inch treated posts, one-by-three-inch rafters and laths. Favored woods are Douglas fir, western pine and western cedar.

Sink the posts below frost level, and rip intersecting slots in the top to hold the slanting hip rafters. Stringers of the same one-by-three-inch boards are nailed on under and about a foot from the tips of the four rafters, forming the square of the parasol.

The laths are nailed to rafters and stringers, with a four-inch overhang. Overall size of the parasols may be adjusted to coverage needed. In a group of three, interest is added if one is smaller than the others.

Water, Fertilizer Work Together

It's a known fact that some people eat more than others, and it's also common knowledge among lawn and garden experts that some grasses have greater appetites for fertilizer than others.

However, much leeway exists in lawn fertilization, depending upon the condition of the soil, individual lawn color preference and, of course, the variety of grass chosen for the lawn.

For example, heavy feeding varieties (such as blue grass) may require on the average of a pound of nitrogen for every 1,000 square feet of growing area for proper leaf development.

GARDEN FERTILIZERS are commonly sold in 50 or 100-pound sacks; a typical bag may contain 12 pounds of nitrogen, 12 pounds of phosphorus nad 12 pounds of potassium. The remaining weight usually consists of some form of filler material.

Nitrogen, as mentioned, promotes leaf growth. Phosphorus encourages root growth.

Potassium strengthens the stock of the plant which connects the two.

Adequate watering is the key to obtaining full value from your investment in lawn fertilizers. In order to do their work, nutrients must reach the root systems. This can be accomplished by watering to a depth of about six inches once a week.

THE WATERING LINE can be greatly reduced by using a large diameter hose.

More fertilizer is required for California's irrigated lawns, and many of the newly developed grasses usually "eat" more than common varieties. It is recommended that light feedings should be the rule for all grasses during warm weather and, as the temperature drops, the fertilization program should be increased.

Low-mowed turfs create situations where the roots are under stress — more closely exposed to heat because there's less grass covering the surface of the ground. If lawns are mowed low, an additional treatment of approximately a half-pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet should be applied during the summer months.

IDEALLY, FERTILIZERS are developed to replace the nutrients missing in the soil. However, it is often difficult to have soil tested before additional nutrients are added. Therefore, practically any reputable turf fertilizer will work.

In most cases, it is not necessary to worry about over feeding the soil with additional nutrients.

To coincide with fertilization, many experienced lawn experts incorporate some form of herbicide for weed control.

Some grassy weeds, such as crabgrass, must be treated with pre-emergence product to be really effective. But other weeds, such as the dandelion, plantain, dock and other broad-leaf pests, can be treated while they are growing and even after they have attained their growth.

REMEMBER TO USE the least potent chemical that will do the job for you, and don't over-apply.

Colors You Can Cascade

More and more beauty-conscious Marinites are achieving special effects around their homes and gardens by using plants in hanging baskets and letting the colors cascade.

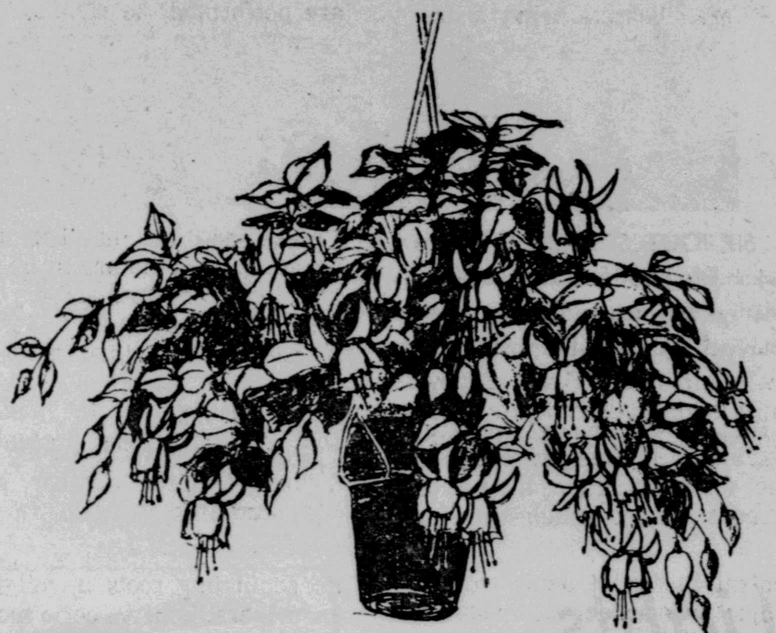
This interest in hanging baskets is reflected in the many varieties of suitable plants now available in local nurseries. There is also a large assortment of handsome containers to use.

Nurseries will have specimens already showing color. These can be taken home and their beauty enjoyed instantly.

TWO POPULAR plants for hanging basket use are Ivy Geraniums and Petunias.

Ivy Geranium's foliage is green and glossy, and during the summer months the pink, red, lavender or white flowers are a delight.

Petunias will tolerate sunnier locations and their prolific, continuous blooming habit will amaze you. The colors cover a wide range — from pure white, pink, rose and red shades to lavender, blue and violet hues.



FUCHSIAS ARE among the most popular hanging basket plants and can be found in a large number of varieties well suited to this kind of growth. (California Association of Nurserymen drawing)

BASKETS OF Tuberous Begonias and Fuchias are popular choices with Marinites.

Don't overlook Trailing Lantana, the popular lavender-blooming favorite. Or try one of the newer spreading Lantana forms, making certain it receives ample sun, and water. The bright colors — yellow, cerise, orange-red, white — are sure to please.

Parrot's Beak Lotus has soft, needle-like gray foliage and is highlighted by coppery-red blooms. It is another good choice for sunny spots.

In semi-shaded locations, use the brilliantly-marked Hanging Basket Coleus, or Impatiens (Sultanas).

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Plant Hibicus now for spectacular summer bloom. They like plenty of sun and water.

✓ Bedding plants for summer color should go in right away — some, such as Alyssum, Lobelia, Petunias and Marigolds will provide almost instant flowers.

✓ Snails and slugs are practically year-round garden pests, but can be controlled with bait or pellets.

✓ It's time to begin that lawn-water schedule.

✓ Enjoy summer harvests of vegetables by planting these now: Corn, beans, beets, carrots, cucumbers, radishes and squash.

✓ Deep watering and mulching of trees and shrubs is a good summer gardening practice.

THE CAR-TOPPER is a form of camping that has been winning new adherents in recent years. And the one shown here was built by a home handyman with the help of Car-Top Sleeper Pattern 281, available for $1 (plus another 25 cents if you want airmail service) from Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. On top the car, it is only eight inches high. But the sides unfold like an accordian to provide sleeping quarters that are wind, rain, dust and bug-proof, and with the aid of an air mattress or outdoor furniture pad quite comfortable. There are windows front and back for ventilation. And one person can erect it in less than two minutes. The materials, mostly plywood, are inexpensive, and the instructions are easy to understand and to follow.

Now Is Check-Up Time For Air Conditioners

It's spring and if you're going to be ready for summer you'd best heed your cleaning chores — particularly those involving air conditioning.

Whether you have a window unit or a central cooling system, probably it has been idle all winter. Taking the time now for a little preventive maintenance may save several days of sweltering discomfort when the summer sun shines hot.

A handy do-it-yourselfer can take care of routine maintenance but repairs should be handled only by professionals, advises G. E. Buchanan, general service manager of the York Division of Borg-Warner Corp.

WINDOW UNITS that have been stored all winter in other than their regular operating position should be placed "at the ready" on a level surface for 24 hours to allow the oil in the sealed system to drain back into the compressor, Buchanan suggests.

Dust all exposed surfaces, paying special attention to air inlets and outlets; wipe down plastic surfaces with soap and water, and oil according to manufacturer's instructions. Rusting does not often occur, but it can happen. Buchanan suggests cleaning and painting any exposed parts that may have rusted over the winter

It always is wise to test-run the unit on the floor before installing it. Choose a day when room temperature is in the 70s and outside temperature in the mid-60s and let the air conditioner run for five to 10 minutes. Note the cooling effectiveness and listen for unusual noises that may indicate the unit requires more extensive checking.

If the unit runs but does not cool, it usually means it has lost its charge of refrigerant and an authorized repairman should be called.

Air conditioners that have been left in the window over the winter also require attention.

MANY HOMES have central air conditioning with common duct work for heating and cooling. In this case, Buchanan recommends:

Reset dampers for air conditioning. Damper adjustment is required only if there are separate duct for the cool air.

See that air inlets and outlets, both indoors and out, are free from obstruction.

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where called for. Generally this is limited to fan motors and bearings.

Turn on the power for at least one day before you start the compressor. Run the fan only, with the cooling thermostat set high. In the compressors of many makes of air conditioners, power is required to prewarm and improve the lubricating qualities of the compressor oil.

If there is an auxiliary drain pan under the unit, be sure this pan is cleaned out and that the drain is open. Flush with a pitcher of water to check runoff because insects sometimes block drains.

Pick a day when outside temperatures are in the mid-60s for a test run. Shift the thermostat from "Heat" to "Cool" and run equipment for five or 10 minutes by dropping the thermostat to below room temperature. Listen well for any unusual noises, either indoors or out. If any unusual noises persist, call the dealer.

Fencing Is A Must For Pools

For Safety And Privacy, Build With Cedar Boards

Fences are a must for home swimming pools to prevent young non-swimmers from wandering in at unguarded moments.

A handsome fence of wood around a pool also blocks too-cool breezes or dirt-laden winds, and, of course, lends privacy not afforded by a wire or chain fence.

A distinctive solid fence may be built of one-by-four-inch resawn western red cedar boards placed vertically on a frame of four-by-four-inch posts and two-by-four-inch stringers of Douglas fir.

FOR ACCENT, this is topped with three or four rows of horizontal one-by-two-inch spaced slats and a two-by-four-inch fir cap.

Fencing side and back yards offers areas for outdoor living and privacy, but many homeowners shy away from highly functional fences in front for fear of offending neighbors or appearing standoffish.

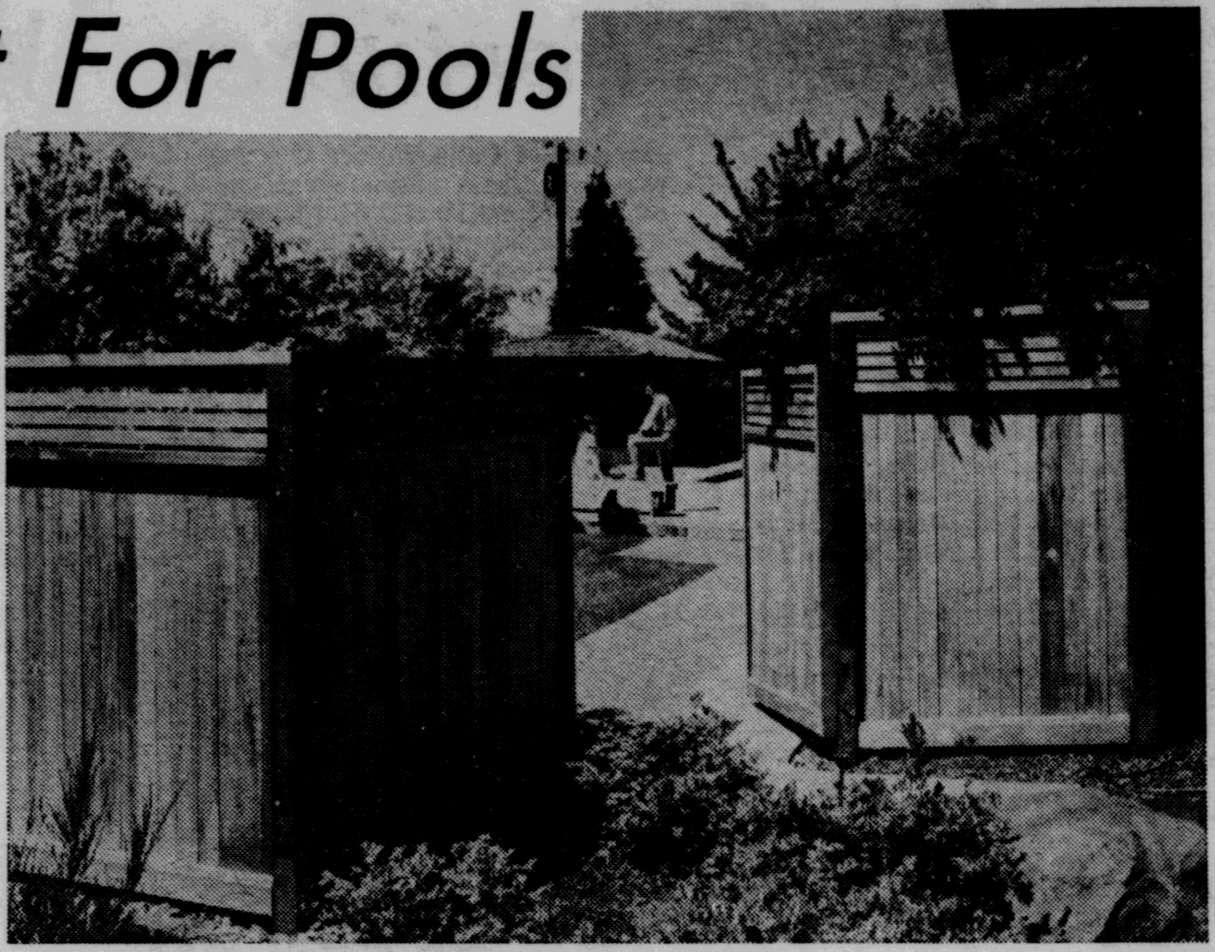
Front yard fences may be low, inconspicuous board-and-batten structures blended with plantings to keep out stray pets, or medium height slat screens to block the glances of passers-by.

A LOUVERED fence or screen combined with a deck can add valuable outdoor living space at the front entry or adjoining another room of the house. This can be especially effective for houses with deep setbacks and too-large lawns.

Western wood screens also may be used as divider "walls" to set off other living or play areas of the yard, much as a divider does inside the house. The screens also make a backdrop for shrubs or flowers.

A service area formed by adding screens out from a fence or the side of a house will hide the clutter of garbage cans, meter boxes, barbecue equipment and clothes lines for wet suits and towels.

A SCREEN OF louvered boards set vertically between two-by-four-inch stringers will block off views of the service area while providing needed air circulation.



A SIX-FOOT SCREEN to seclude and protect this swimming pool has been built of western woods — one-by-four-inch red cedar resawn boards, four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts, decorative two-by-four-inch fir caps over spaced one-by-two-inch slats. Low-maintenance gravel and bark planter areas extend to the street curb.

Douglas fir and western cedar are recommended woods to use for yard dividers or screens, either rough-sawn or surfaced.

Rough-sawn woods supply excellent texture, weather well and need little attention.

For a traditionally-styled house, where the fence is to be painted, surfaced wood is suggested.

Lighting Is More Than Lights, Says An Expert On The Subject

Light is light! Right?

Wrong!

You couldn't put enough light bulbs into your house to duplicate the light out-of-doors on a nice, bright, sunny day.

"But, you don't need that much light inside to do most of the things you do indoors," says Howard Haft who's been lighting American homes and offices for years. "What you need is proper lighting."

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where called for. Generally this is limited to fan motors and bearings.

Turn on the power for at least one day before you start the compressor. Run the fan only, with the cooling thermostat set high. In the compressors of many makes of air conditioners, power is required to prewarm and improve the lubricating qualities of the compressor oil.

If there is an auxiliary drain pan under the unit, be sure this pan is cleaned out and that the drain is open. Flush with a pitcher of water to check runoff because insects sometimes block drains.

Pick a day when outside temperatures are in the mid-60s for a test run. Shift the thermostat from "Heat" to "Cool" and run equipment for five or 10 minutes by dropping the thermostat to below room temperature. Listen well for any unusual noises, either indoors or out. If any unusual noises persist, call the dealer.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Bob Hope will have six specials on the NBC air in 1971-72. He's been on the tube since 1950; before that on radio beginning in 1938.

The first project announced for "The New CBS Friday Movies," due in the fall as a made-for-video film series, is Arthur Hailey's adaptation of his "Runway Zero 8," story, dealing with trying to land an airliner whose pilot and co-pilot have become ill. Hailey is author of the best-selling novel, "Airport."

"Make Your Own Kind of Music" is a summer series that NBC will introduce July 6 — Tuesdays from 8 to 9 p.m. — with the brother-sister team, the Carpenters, as starring hosts with their singing and instrumental work. Regulars also will be the Doodletown Pipers and singer Mark Lindsay. There will be a major musical guest star and rotating guest comedians weekly.

"The Six Wives of Henry VIII" will be aired by CBS as a series of six 90-minute dramas about the British monarch's marital problems. The first, "Catherine of Aragon," will be broadcast Aug. 1 at 9:30 p.m. The other five will be on consecutive Sundays through Sept. 5. Keith Michell, who just closed on Broadway as co-star of "Abelard and Heloise," plays Henry in this made-in-Britain series.

The "NBC World Premiere Movie" series for the coming season will include "The Harness," based on a John Steinbeck story and starring Lorne "Bonanza" Greene and Julie Sommars. Unmarried young woman and her son complicate the life of a farmer with an invalid wife.

Lively June On KQED

In what is generally accepted as the season of television reruns, the public Broadcasting Service will offer a "third season" of summer programming with five new series coming to KQED (Channel 9).

"Firing Line" with William F. Buckely — new productions now seen exclusively on noncommercial television — and 12 new hour-long "Boston Pops" shows, with Arthur Fiedler conducting the famed Pops section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, are among the summer program highlights.

Other new shows beginning in June include: "Boboquivari," a youth-oriented music series with performers such as Roberta Flack, Tim buckley and Freddie King; "Just Jazz," a 10-part concert series with leading jazz artists; and "Artists in America," 11 one-hour programs depicting the life-style and work of creative people in fields ranging from art and music to literature and the theater.

HOW DO YOU SHAPE UP?
Hips, Waistline and tummy "stretched" out of shape!!
Thighs too large!! Lax, underexercised muscles don't hold you in. Start today to shape up for the swim suit season.

A MORNING WALK

The garden path is soft with blossoms
Blown from the trees in last night's storm,
My slippered feet are lightly cushioned
As I walk among the fragrant scents
Of California's rain-greened spring.

I walk alone beneath the branches
Bent heavy with buds and new leaves,
Content with pleasant recollections
Of your gentleness; after the tempest,
My mind has been blessed with a rainbow.

MILL VALLEY MARVIN JOE SHUCK

PLANNING COMMISSION MEETING

Down the middle aisle he strode
Between the factions;
Young, assailable,
Shoulders tight with courage,
Although the time and place
Of desecration
Had been approved, before
By unpliant men, disapproving
Youth itself.
His voice, like a seed,
Spoke for the future,
"Why don't you just plant trees?"

LARKSPUR MURIEL S. SHORT

THE GOLDEN GATE DROP

When things get too big for you,
And you're at the very end —
LOOK UP!
Open your heart all the way,
And watch the moonbeams play;Don't drift along the roads of tomorrow
Until you have made the sun shine today;
And then some day as you sift the ashes,
And soot gets in your eyes,
LOOK UP!
Thank you, dear God, for showing me the way.

SAN RAFAEL JOSEPH TRICOMO

On The Stereo Scene—

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

The ability to make voters laugh by telling a joke or making a humorous comparison has always been a strong point of the successful politician. But he wants those voters to laugh with him, not at him.

And no matter how careful a politician may be in making campaign speeches or on other occasions, his words can be used to poke fun at him if they are taken out of context by a clever technician.

Alen Robin, who wrote "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch" several years ago, has surfaced again to record "Supershrink" (Janus JXS 7001).

In this go-around, Robin puts President Richard M. Nixon, Vice President Spiro Agnew, Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller, Mayors John V. Lindsay and Richard Daley, Sen. Strom Thurmond and columnist William Buckley Jr. on the psychiatric couch.

Robin wins a lot of laughs by using his victims' actual words to form answers to his loaded questions. Thus, he gets President Nixon to say he will confer with Napoleon at Camp David on the morrow, Governor Reagan to say he is a horse, and Governor Rockefeller to claim he is Pancho Villa.

He even managed to make Buckley, a take-charge guy, sound confused.

Robin's spoofery is fast-moving with no dull moments, but it is somewhat frightening to think of the damage some malicious person might inflict by misuse of tape recordings.

"THE CREDIBILITY Gap Presents Woodschtick" (Capitol ST-681) is another satirical album which shoots arrows at politicians. The Gap is not so charitable as Alen Robin. In one sequence, Nixon is depicted as a man who doesn't understand the meaning of the word "lose." Nixon's mimic at times sounds like the President but more often like Jimmy Stewart.

One skit, which involves Sen. Edward Kennedy at Chappaquiddick, is conceived in bad taste and is not very amusing.

TAPE DECK — "A Kaleidoscope of Stereo Sound" (A&M W-72) spreads the talent of Herb Alpert's recording company over a three-hour listening period on this Ampex tape release which American Airlines uses on its flights. In addition to Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, the tape includes performances by Burt Bacharach, The Carpenters, Sergio Mendes and Brasil '66, Paul Desmond, Liza Minelli, The Sandpipers, West Montgomery, Antonio Carlos Jobin, Miguel Rios, Evie Sands, Pisano and Ruff, and Julius Wechter and The Baja Marimba Band.

Eight-track cartridge: Guitars are featured on two recent auto decks. "For the Good Things" (RCA Victor PS8-1663) features Chet Atkins picking such tunes as "Snowbird" and the theme from "Love Story."

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Bob Hope will have six specials on the NBC air in 1971-72. He's been on the tube since 1950; before that on radio beginning in 1938.

The first project announced for "The New CBS Friday Movies," due in the fall as a made-for-video film series, is Arthur Hailey's adaptation of his "Runway Zero 8," story, dealing with trying to land an airliner whose pilot and co-pilot have become ill. Hailey is author of the best-selling novel, "Airport."

"Make Your Own Kind of Music" is a summer series that NBC will introduce July 6 — Tuesdays from 8 to 9 p.m. — with the brother-sister team, the Carpenters, as starring hosts with their singing and instrumental work. Regulars also will be the Doodletown Pipers and singer Mark Lindsay. There will be a major musical guest star and rotating guest comedians weekly.

"The Six Wives of Henry VIII" will be aired by CBS as a series of six 90-minute dramas about the British monarch's marital problems. The first, "Catherine of Aragon," will be broadcast Aug. 1 at 9:30 p.m. The other five will be on consecutive Sundays through Sept. 5. Keith Michell, who just closed on Broadway as co-star of "Abelard and Heloise," plays Henry in this made-in-Britain series.

The "NBC World Premiere Movie" series for the coming season will include "The Harness," based on a John Steinbeck story and starring Lorne "Bonanza" Greene and Julie Sommars. Unmarried young woman and her son complicate the life of a farmer with an invalid wife.

FAMILY SHOPPERS AT ART SHOW

While Mrs. Olav Holthe of Terra Linda totals the purchases, her husband holds the couple's 19-month-old son, Jason, during a shopping tour today at the spring art show and sale of San Quentin inmates. The family purchases are in the baby carriage. The popular show, at the College of Marin Student center, opened 15 minutes early this morning when a large crowd of bargain hunters queued up outside. About $1,000 in works had been sold in the first 45 minutes.

Volcano Lava Rolls On

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — A stream of lava 1,000 yards wide rolled relentlessly down one side of Mt. Etna Saturday toward scattered and frightened inhabitants on the lower slopes.

Scientists said the incandescent flow was moving toward the villages of Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo at a speed of about 27 feet per hour.

Dozens of men and women again paraded images of the patron Saints Alphius, Cyrinus and Philadelphius to the very edge of approaching lava, praying the fiery flow would stop as it did in 1928 after the saint's statues were paraded.

Several streams that had been headed toward the villages of Sciara and Macchia Di Giarre were reported all but stopped after cutting across roads and melting bridges.

Police manned roadblocks to keep out sightseers who were flooding the area to see the most spectacular and dangerous show at the 10,902-foot volcano since 1928. Officials mapped emergency evacuation plans.

Experts studying the eruption of Europe's tallest and most active volcano, now in its 49th day of activity, said earlier they feared Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo would be engulfed by the end of the month.

The lava, moving in a solid reddish-orange wall, already has destroyed 42 buildings, most of them isolated farm houses above Sant'Alfio, and burned several acres of orchards, crops and wineyards.

"That land was my grandfather's," sobbed farmer Mario Tomarchi, 58. "I was the only one who wanted it. My brothers went to America and became rich. Now I am poorer than ever."

Some of his neighbors were trapped in Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo, unable to return through roadblocks to see if their homes had been destroyed.

The main lava steam was still confined to the dry bed of the Cubania creek and scientists said if it did not overflow the banks, the two villages, which have a combined population of 5,300 might escape untouched.

One small stream passed within 445 feet of Fornazzo, but caused no damage. Another inched along beside it but scientists said it was turning away from the town.

Nixon Appeals For National Unity

President Accepts New LBJ Library

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —With his Democratic predecessor at his side, President Nixon called today for political partisanship based mainly on principle rather than party affiliation.

Nixon made the appeal in a speech at the dedication of the Lyndon B. Johnson Presidential Library on the University of Texas campus in Austin.

He spoke one week after Johnson, former Democratic President Harry S Truman and many top officials of their administrations lined up behind Nixon in opposition to an effort to cut U. S. troop strength in Europe. The proposal, by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, was defeated by a wide margin on Wednesday.

Nixon did not refer directly to that unusual display of bipartisanship and he stressed in his address that preservation of both the Republican and Democratic parties is essential to the American political system.

"But more and more in today's world, the times require that a President, and indeed all of us who help lead the nation, go beyond party to be partisans of principle," he said.

"For increasingly we confront great concerns that go beyond partisan differences —concerns that reach to the security of our nation, to our hopes for peace in the world, to realizing the American dream here at home in our lives and those of our children —and on these we must be partisans of principle."

Nixon praised Johnson for providing that kind of leadership during his years in the White House and as Democratic leader of the Senate.

The President and his wife Pat flew to Austin from Washington early in the morning with their daughter Julie, her husband,Navy Ensign David Eisenhower, and evangelist Billy Graham. A prepared test of his speech was made available in the capital before he left for Texas.

A crowd of 4,000 turned out at Bergstrom Air Force Base for the presidential party's arrival aboard Air Force One. They cheered and waved signs as Nixon emerged from the plane.

"I hope it rains today and I'm sure President Johnson agrees. That's why I came —to bring rain," Nibon quipped in reference to drought conditions in Southwest states.

The presidential party then boarded a helicopter for a short flight to the University of Texas for the library dedication.

Johnson Gives Big Texas Barbeque

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—President Nixon today accepted on behalf of the people the $18.6 million Lyndon B. Johnson Library, an "extraordinary treasury of insights into a critical period in our nation's history."

Nixon and Johnson, speaking to 3,800 guests and a nationwide television audience, dedicated the largest and costliest memorial ever to an American president.

"On behalf of the people of the United States, I am privileged to accept it," Nixon said. "The American people have reason to be doubly grateful to you today, first for your long lifetime of service, and now for this collection that can take the scholars of future generations behind the scenes of that service."

Nixon and Johnson spoke while 800 Texas Rangers, state troopers, Secret Service agents, city and campus police ringed the library for several blocks to guard against antiwar protesters.

As the former president turned over to the national archives the papers from his almost four decades of public service, Johnson said the work expresses his philosophy that "man can."

"There is no record of a mistake, nothing critical, ugly or unpleasant that is not included in the files here," Johnson said. "I do not know how this period will be regarded in years to come. But that is not the point. This library will show the facts—not just the joy and triumph but the sorrow and failures too."

After the dedication ceremony, Johnson and his wife Ladybird and the 3,800 guests settled down to an outdoor barbeque of 6,000 chickens, 1,000 hot sausage links, 1,500 pounds of ribs, 2,000 pounds of brisket beef, 3,000 fried pies, biscuits, cole slaw and potato salad.

Gaily colored tents were erected for the luncheon on the lawn of the 19-acre library site at the University of Texas.

Antiwar protesters threatened to disrupt the ceremonies. A group of Vietnam veterans said they would try to get through police lines to return medals, citations and "other so'called honors and distinctions."

But the heavy police cordon, led by Texas Rangers with sheathed three-foot-long riot sticks, was set up to keep the protesters away.

Soviets Boast 2 Coups On Plane, Mars Probe

Giant Plane Service Due

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union plans to put its supersonic TU144 airliner into service this year, Civil Aviation Minister Boris Bugayev said today.

Success in that endeavor would complete Russia's victory in the supersonic sweepstakes over the Anglo-French Concorde and the shelved American SST — first into the air, first through the sound barrier and first into service.

The official Tass news agency quoted Bugayev summarizing the breakthroughs expected this year in the booming Soviet aviation industry at a conference of top aviation officials.

"The TU154 and IL162, intended for super long-distance non-stop flight, will appear on Aeroflot routes this year," Bugayev said.

"It is also intended to start the operation of the TU144 supersonic liner and the IL176 jet cargo plane." New airports will be built and existing ones reconstructed.

Some foreign aviation experts have doubted that the Soviets would have the scoop-nosed, delta wing jet on passenger routes this year because they have fallen behind production targets so often in the past.

But veterans observers said the decision to fly the plane to the Paris air show May 27 — its first trip out of the country — is a sign the Soviets are Supremely confident it is ready to go on the line.

Bugayev's speech was the first official indication that the plane would operational this year.

They said the plan is to begin using the TU144 this fall for flights from Moscow to Khabarovsk, in Far Eastern Siberia.

If that works smoothly, they said, the plane would be used early next year on the Moscow-Karachi run.

The TU in the plane's name designates its designers, the father-and-son team of Andrei and Alexei Tupolev.

According to figures available in authoritative aviation manuals, the plane has a maximum speed of 1,550 m.p.h. and a range of about 4,000 miles. It has a passenger capacity of 120 to 150.

Soviet officials have said they expect it to cross the Atlantic

Soft Landing On Mars Seen

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet commentators hinted today that the five-ton unmanned Russian spacecraft now outward bound for Mars may be equipped to make a soft landing to look for signs of life—and perhaps even to determine if earthly forms of life could exist on the Red Planet.

The probe dubbed Mars 2 (though Western scientists have reported that at least six previous Russian Mars shots failed) was shot into space Wednesday on a 190-million mile trip that will last six months.

As usual, the Russians kept the details of the mission secret. But Mars 2 weighs five tons—five times as much as any other interplanetary probe either Soviet or American—and this was seen as an indication it might be designed for a soft landing and extended experiments on the surface of Mars.

Now the Russians are hinting that such may indeed be case—though previous shots have shown Mars to be a very cold planet with very little atmosphere.

The official news agency TASS, in a commentary published Friday, said Soviet biologists are convinced that some forms of life can exist in the rigorous conditions of Mars.

"The problem of whether or not there is life on Mars has been agitating mankind for dec-

Rogers Eyes Sino Invitations

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William 0. Rogers says he was pleased to learn American groups have issued invitations to Chinese Communist scientists to come to the United States and that he will take a personal interest in processing their applications.

Rogers said Friday the American government would not offer advice on specific invitations or individuals to be invited.

"However, I can assure that in the event that these invitations are accepted and visa applications filed, I will take a personal and sympathetic interest in the speedy processing of those applications," Rogers said.

Hijinks In Merry Month Of May

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Spring came in like a lion this year, not doing much for greenery or girl watchers.

Now, some two months later, the sap has risen in the trees and hot pants are vying with mini skirts as attention getters.

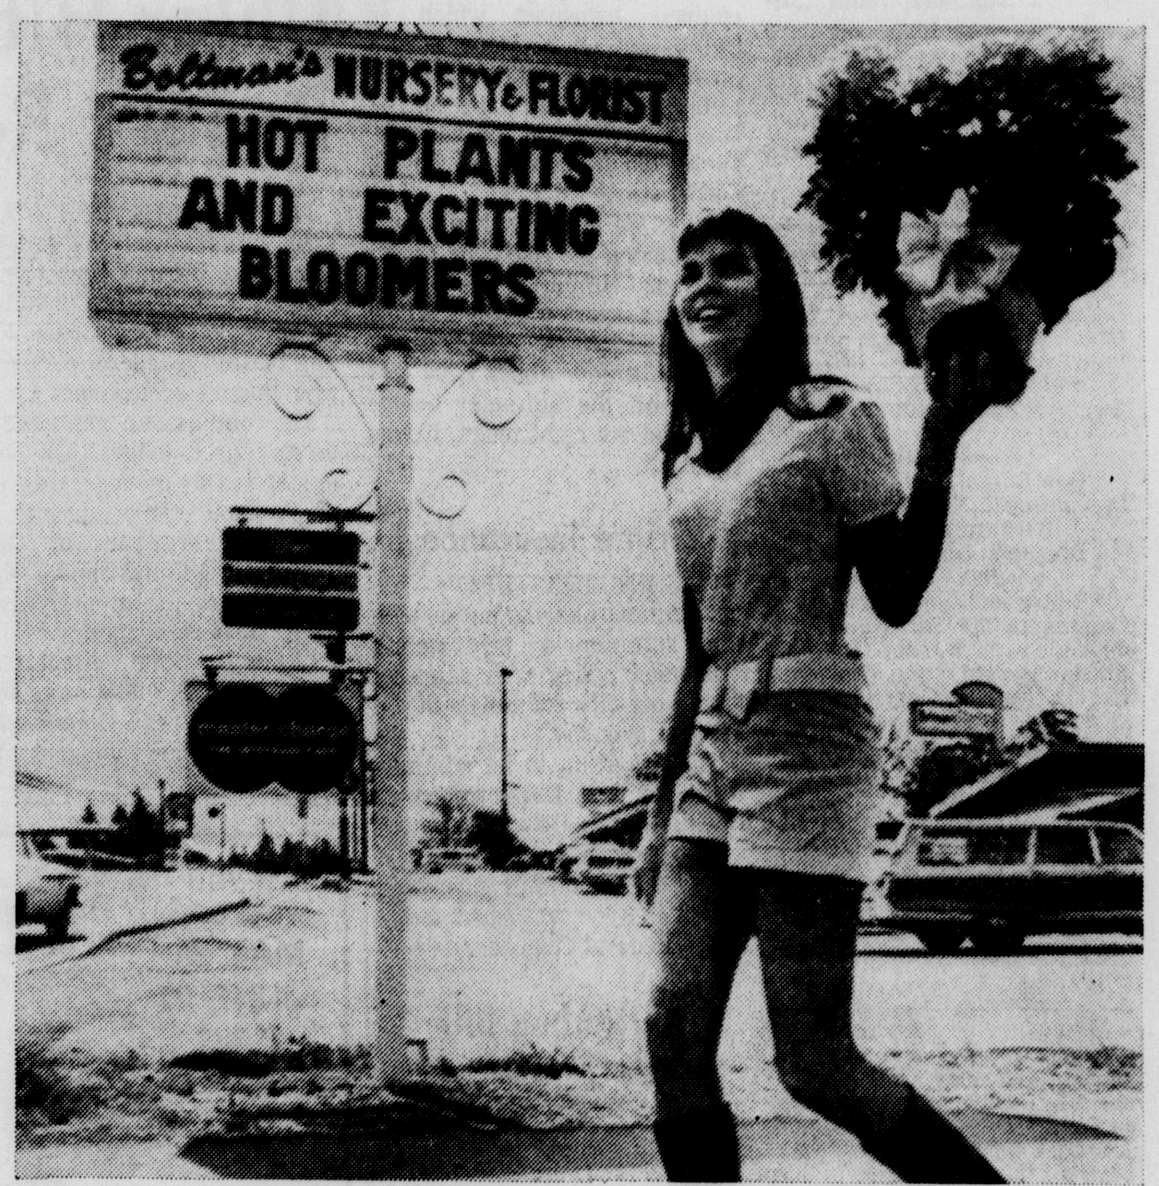
At least one domestic airline has taken cognizance of the latest fashion trend—for ladies, that is. In Chicago Allegheny Airlines announced it will put its stewardesses in hotpants starting June 1.

The girls can either wear red and blue shorts with knee boots or with navy blue panty hose, the airline said. If the girls feel like it they can wear dresses, the airline added. Want to bet?

Clothes, their style, quantity, or quality didn't prevent students at Woodrow Wilson School of Public Affairs, Princeton University from indulging in an annual warmweather ritual. They spent much of the past week jumping in and out of a university-owned fountain generally with their clothes on.

Late spring fever also seized a group of students at Florida Technological University at Orlando — but for a good cause. The students began see-sawing May 11 toward what they hope will be a world's record. They have to continue to May 29th to break the present one. The project was designed to raise money for Pat Landry, a Titusville high school football player who was paralyzed by an injury suffered in a practice session.

Late May also appears to be a time for river events.



HOTPANTS HIJINKS — Debi Sergeant of Salem, Ore., lends credence to the notion that hotpants are "in." She also draws attention to a nursery store where a different sort of bloomer is offered. The tricky sign work has drawn laughs from local residents and caught the attention of the national media.

Mankato, Minn., will be the scene today for the 2nd annual rubbertized regata river race on the Minnesota River. Racing, with homemade rafts using inner tubes, will involve the city fathers, including the city manager and a city councilman who promises a raft with a crew of 11. Prizes are kegs of beer.

The attendance figure will have to well considerably to compete with what is billed as

Lively June On KQED

In what is generally accepted as the season of television reruns, the public Broadcasting Service will offer a "third season" of summer programming with five new series coming to KQED (Channel 9).

"Firing Line" with William F. Buckely — new productions now seen exclusively on noncommercial television — and 12 new hour-long "Boston Pops" shows, with Arthur Fiedler conducting the famed Pops section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, are among the summer program highlights.

Other new shows beginning in June include: "Boboquivari," a youth-oriented music series with performers such as Roberta Flack, Tim buckley and Freddie King; "Just Jazz," a 10-part concert series with leading jazz artists; and "Artists in America," 11 one-hour programs depicting the life-style and work of creative people in fields ranging from art and music to literature and the theater.

Soldier Ambushed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Extremists ambushed a British Army jeep in the predominately Roman Catholic Cromac Square area of Belfast early today, killing one soldier. A few hours later another military land rover was fired on here and a soldier wounded.

The dead soldier was identified as Cpl. Robert Bankier, 25, of the Royal Green Jacket Battalion. He was the first British servicemen killed in Ulster's current "troubles" since March 10, when three young Scots troopers were mbushed and shot to death.

"The area was all quiet when the patrol went in but a witness told us all of a sudden a lot of firing broke out," an army spokesman said. The assailants escaped.

A short time later, the spokesman said, a machinegunner opened fire from a blue sedan on another army vehicle on a main highway running throught Belfast. A soldier was wounded in the leg and taken to a nearby hospital where his condition was reported "not critical," he said. No arrests were made in this incident either.

GM Dissidents Lose

DETROIT (UPI) — Management supporters overwhelmingly defeated dissident efforts to force changes at General Motors at the company's annual stockholders meeting after GM pledged to spend $150 million in the fight against exhaust pollution.

Board Chairman James M. Roche announced a commitment "to take the automobile out of air pollution" shortly before the beginning of voting Friday on three proposals put forward by Campaign GM. The group, which owns just 12 of GM's 286 million shares of stock, got even less than the 3 per cent shareholders' support it had hoped for.

The proposal which backers were almost optimistic about because it had the support of several institutional organizations, including the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co. of Philadelphia, received only 2.36 per cent of the shareholder vote.

It would have required GM to disclose in its annual report more details about pollution control, vehicle safety developments, minority hiring and recall campaigns.

Policemen Shot

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two patrolmen were shot to death in Harlem late Friday night in the third attack on policemen in New York City in three days.

The victims, one black and one white, were identified as Waverly Jones, 34, of Manhattan and Joseph Piagentini, 28, of Suffolk County, Long Island. Police said both men entered the police academy on the same day—Aug. 1, 1966.

They were shot from the back as they emerged from an apartment building where they had responded to a call to help a sick person. Police said the call was "legitimate."

The slayers reportedly were waiting in a white Mustang automobile when the officers appeared. Police said the men got out of the car, walked behind the patrolmen and then opened fire.

According to the reports, the assailants continued to fire as the officers lay in the street, then took the policemen's revolvers and sped away in their car.

An all-points bulletin was issued for the apprehension of the two suspects, both Negroes.One was described as a male, about 20 years old, 6-foot-1, 150 pounds, wearing a black hat, a medium Afro hairdo, light mustache, a goatee, black shirt and black pants.

Deadline Set

PARIS (UPI) — Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath and French President Georges Pompidou today gave their common market negotiators a' June deadline for agreeing on the details of bringing Britain into the European community.

In two days of talks ending here Friday, Heath and Pompidou cleared away the political roadblocks built up over the years to British entry into the European Common Market. Heath already has set a deadline of Jan. 1, 1973 for Britain's final, formal admission to membership.

Present members are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg.

Trudeau's Big Fall

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (UPI) —Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada took over the controls of his Soviet-built IL62 airliner on the flight from Kiev today and dropped the big jet about 2,200 feet before he learned how to operate them.

Trudeau piloted the four-engined transport which is flying him on his tour of the Soviet Union for about 10 minutes of wobbly flight on the way from Kiev in the Ukraine to Tashkent, capital of Soviet Usbekistan.

When he tried his hand as a pilot during the five-hour flight, the IL62—similar to the British VC10 transport —did a shallow righthand bank and began losing altitude. About 2,200 feet ticked off the altimeter before he found the right touch, it was reported.

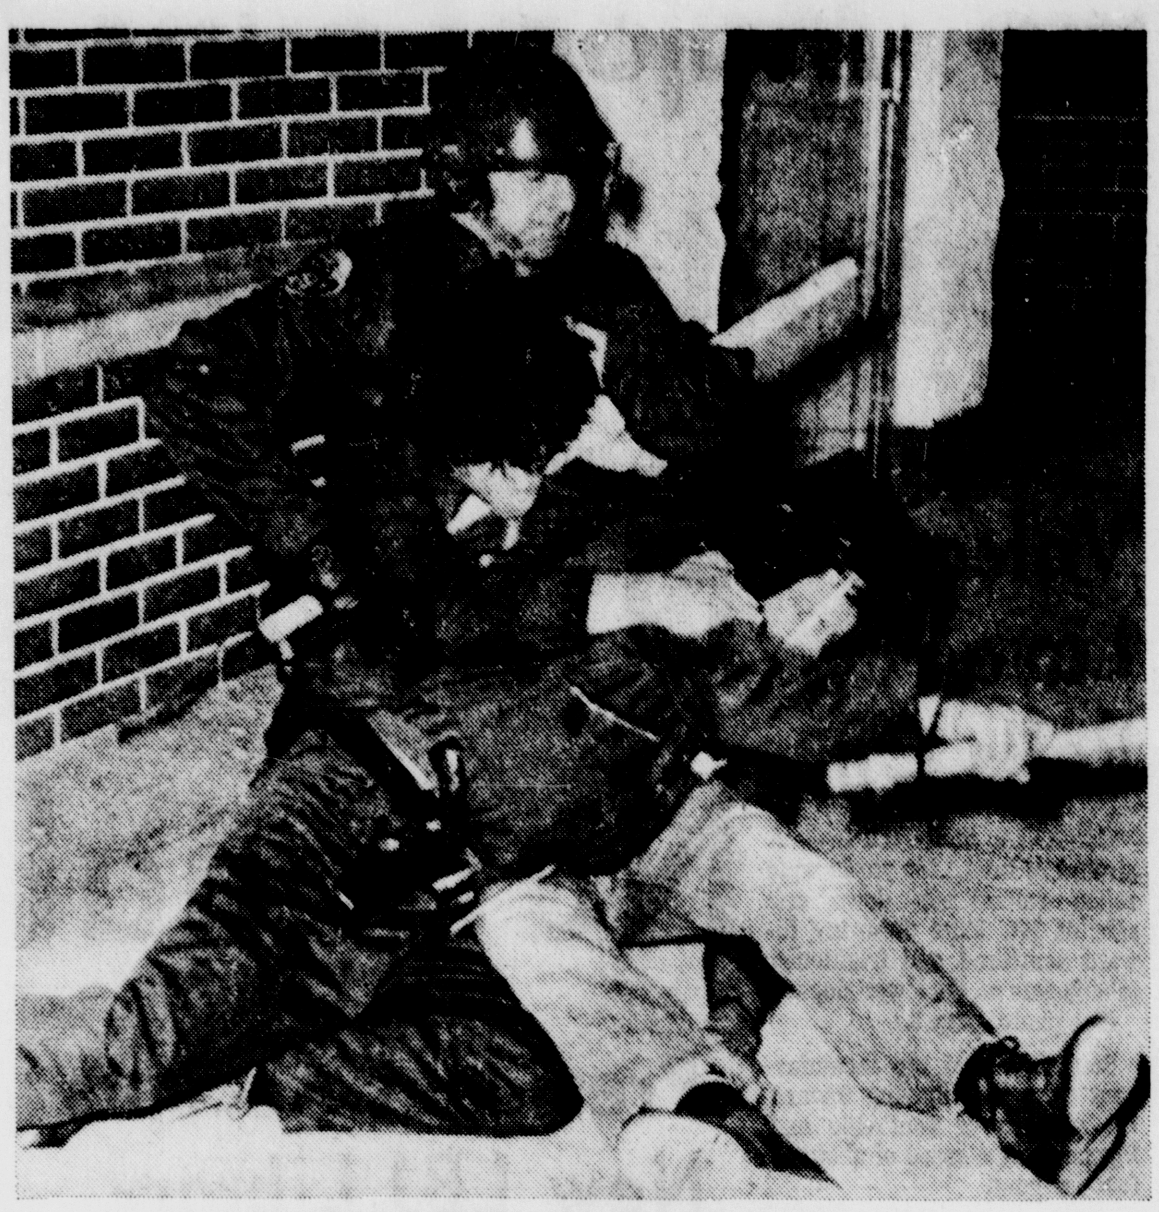
Crime Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government plans to put on sale this summer a new crime insurance policy with rates as low in big city ghettos as in the affluent suburbs.

The program, to be administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, goes into effect Aug. 1. Proposed regulations governing the plan were published today in the Federal Register.

Litterbug Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A bill requiring courts to reward persons who turn in convicted litterbugs was passed Friday by the California Assembly.



VIOLENCE AT KENT STATE

Twenty persons were arrested early today when police dispersed a crowd of about 200 student protesters in downtown Kent, Ohio. One student, Robert Kelley, 22, was injured. He is shown above being wrestled to the ground by two policemen. Police said he resisted arrest on a charge of verbal abuse. The police action followed a demonstration held on the Kent State University Commons to "protest repression, violence and jailing of political prisoners. Speakers denounced the police for arresting 63 persons earlier Friday in a sweep through the city's tavern area.

Angela Appeal Is Turned Down

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The State Supreme Court Friday turned down a petition by a Philadelphia lawyer to have Angela Davis freed from Marin County Jail on a writ of habeas corpus.

Robert Borden, who filed the writ, said he was acting as a "law clerk" for Miss Davis' co-defendant, Ruchell Magee. It contended Miss Davis had nothing to do with last August's shootout and courtroom escape attempt in San Rafael in which four persons were killed.

Borden said Magee had given him "power of attorney," but an attorney for Miss Davis, Allan Brotsky, said he has never heard of Borden.

The petition was not signed by Miss Davis, a black militant and former UCLA philosophy instructor, and Borden is not a member of the California bar.

The petition appeared to be inconsistent with Magee's legal stalling techniques which have helped keep the murder and conspiracy case at a standstill for months.

In addition to the writ of habeas corpus, Borden said he has also filed a writ in U.S. District Court to have the stalled trial moved to Federal jurisdiction.

Pre-trial hearings under a new judge were scheduled to resume Monday in San Rafael.

Uhler Hits CRLA Panel's Rejection

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state official who charged the California Rural Legal Assistance was improperly involved in the Angela Davis case Friday blasted a federal panel for rejecting his accusations.

The commission, composed of three retired judges, has been empaneled by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity to investigate allegations by Gov. Reagan's administration that the CRLA has improperly used its $1.8 federal budget.

Lewis K. Uhler, director of the state OEO, told a news conference that the commission held preconceived opinions and had been "primed" by federal antipoverty officials before touring California.

That's "abundantly evident," said Uhler, after announcing a boycott of future commission hearings on the CRLA question.

Uhler's office prepared an affadavit charging that CRLA attorneys intervened at Soledad Prison in an attempt to arrange a meeting between an inmate, accused of killing a guard, and Angela Davis.

The commission rejected the affadavit Thursday as "totally unfounded and without merit."

Leftwingers Accused In Capitol Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William J. Poole, investigator for the House Internal Security Committee, says seven communsts were among 53 coordinators of the "spring offensive" antiwar demonstrations.

"I don't think many members of Congress would have endorsed these demonstrations if they had known the extent of communist influence," Committee Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said in reaction to the testimony Friday.

As the committee adjourned its hearings until June, a federal judge enjoined the Public National Bank of Washington from providing the committee with any more records from the accounts of two antiwar organizations —the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice (PCPJ) and the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC).

Ichord promptly accused U.S. District Judge William Jones of "protecting communist membership" and said the injunction would "seriously hinder" the committee's inquiry.

The committee first detailed the roles of communists in NPAC and PCPJ by subpoening bank records on the flow of $205,000 in accounts of the antiwar groups.

Poole testified the seven communists who helped organize the PCPJ demonstrations in late April and early May

Alioto Motion Denied, Trial Set For Jan. 3

SEATTLE (UPI)—A federal judge has sent Jan. 3, 1972, as the trial date for San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and three former Washington state officials accused of conspiring to bribe a public official in a fee-splitting arrangement.

U.S. District Judge William Beeks set the date Friday after denying defense motions for separate trials. Alioto's request for a change of venue to San Francisco also was denied.

A federal grand jury indicted Alioto, former Washington Attorney General John J. O'Connell and George K. Faler, former assistant to O'Connell, on several counts of bribery, conspiracy and fraudulent use of the mails.

Former Pierce County Prosecutor John G. McCutcheon, who shared a Tacoma law office with O'Connell, was charged with concealing the alleged conspiracy.

Beeks agreed to consider motions to dismiss all charges against McCutcheon and two counts of mail fraud against the other defendants. But he denied motions to dimiss the seven conspiracy counts.

A MORNING WALK

The garden path is soft with blossoms
Blown from the trees in last night's storm,
My slippered feet are lightly cushioned
As I walk among the fragrant scents
Of California's rain-greened spring.

I walk alone beneath the branches
Bent heavy with buds and new leaves,
Content with pleasant recollections
Of your gentleness; after the tempest,
My mind has been blessed with a rainbow.

Down the middle aisle he strode
Between the factions;
Young, assailable,
Shoulders tight with courage,
Although the time and place
Of desecration
Had been approved, before
By unpliant men, disapproving
Youth itself.
His voice, like a seed,
Spoke for the future,
"Why don't you just plant trees?"

THE GOLDEN GATE DROP

When things get too big for you,
And you're at the very end —
LOOK UP!
Open your heart all the way,
And watch the moonbeams play;Don't drift along
the roads of tomorrow
Until you have made the sun shine today;
And then some day as you sift the ashes,
And soot gets in your eyes,
LOOK UP!
Thank you, dear God, for showing me the way.

SAN RAFAEL JOSEPH TRICOMO

On The Stereo Scene—

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

The ability to make voters laugh by telling a joke or making a humorous comparison has always been a strong point of the successful politician. But he wants those voters to laugh with him, not at him.

And no matter how careful a politician may be in making campaign speeches or on other occasions, his words can be used to poke fun at him if they are taken out of context by a clever technician.

Alen Robin, who wrote "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch" several years ago, has surfaced again to record "Supershrink" (Janus JXS 7001).

In this go-around, Robin puts President Richard M. Nixon, Vice President Spiro Agnew, Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller, Mayors John V. Lindsay and Richard Daley, Sen. Strom Thurmond and columnist William Buckley Jr. on the psychiatric couch.

Robin wins a lot of laughs by using his victims' actual words to form answers to his loaded questions. Thus, he gets President Nixon to say he will confer with Napoleon at Camp David on the morrow, Governor Reagan to say he is a horse, and Governor Rockefeller to claim he is Pancho Villa.

He even managed to make Buckley, a take-charge guy, sound confused.

Robin's spoofery is fast-moving with no dull moments, but it is somewhat frightening to think of the damage some malicious person might inflict by misuse of tape recordings.

"THE CREDIBILITY Gap Presents Woodschtick" (Capitol ST-681) is another satirical album which shoots arrows at politicians. The Gap is not so charitable as Alen Robin. In one sequence, Nixon is depicted as a man who doesn't understand the meaning of the word "lose." Nixon's mimic at times sounds like the President but more often like Jimmy Stewart.

One skit, which involves Sen. Edward Kennedy at Chappaquiddick, is conceived in bad taste and is not very amusing.

TAPE DECK — "A Kaleidoscope of Stereo Sound" (A&M W-72) spreads the talent of Herb Alpert's recording company over a three-hour listening period on this Ampex tape release which American Airlines uses on its flights. In addition to Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, the tape includes performances by Burt Bacharach, The Carpenters, Sergio Mendes and Brasil '66, Paul Desmond, Liza Minelli, The Sandpipers, West Montgomery, Antonio Carlos Jobin, Miguel Rios, Evie Sands, Pisano and Ruff, and Julius Wechter and The Baja Marimba Band.

Eight-track cartridge: Guitars are featured on two recent auto decks. "For the Good Things" (RCA Victor PS8-1663) features Chet Atkins picking such tunes as "Snowbird" and the theme from "Love Story."

VOLCANO BARRED TO SIGHTSEERS

Police in Sicily today sealed off mountain roads to the river of lava advancing on farming villages from Mount Etna and brought in trucks to help the farmers evacuate their homes. After seven weeks of continual eruptions by the volcano, officials warned the lava could flow through the town of Sant' Alfio in 10 days. More than a dozen farm houses have been destroyed so far in the worst eruption in 43 years. Before police sealed off the roads, thousands of villagers and tourists gathered yesterday to look at the fiery lava flowing down the flopes of the 10,902-foot volcano.

Baptiste Protests Proposal For San Francisco Payroll Tax

Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste yesterday recommended retaliation against San Francisco Administrator Thomas J. Mellon, who proposed last week that San Francisco impose a payroll tax.

Baptiste contends the tax would hurt Marin commuters. As a protest against the proposal, Baptiste said that Mellon should be taken off the screening committee that will help pick a successor to Marin County Administrator Alan Bruce, who has announced his resignation.

Mellon was one of five persons named last Tuesday to screen candidates for the administrator's job.

Baptiste's proposal to oust Mellon will be considered by the board of supervisors Tuesday.

Bruce said he would recommend no retaliatory action against Mellon because this is "not conducive to close San Francisco-Marin relationship."

Draft Protest Prompts New Student Publication

A new student publication is being circulated on the College of Marin campus in answer to what it calls a need for "an alternative media form."

The Better Times published its first issue May 7 and its second Wednesday.

"This paper is not an underground paper," it says in its latest issue. "But rather an alternative media form."

"The time has passed for blowing minds and ranting to the faithful. We intend to seek and point out alternative ways of though and action."

Its staff consists of students Michael A. Glass, Wendi A. Kallins, Michele Tormanen and Spencer Sias. Three of the four were arrested May 4 during a peaceful sit-in at the San Rafael draft board.

"This paper was conceived in the draft action to communicate something we learned from it: That the task of building a decent place in which to live belongs to us all," the paper says.

The new paper is not supported by district funds. The official college paper is the College of Marin Times.

This week's issue includes reports on student "mundialization" activities, the Marin Telephone War Tax Protest group, Senate debate on the draft, state legislation to outlaw hitchhiking and a movie review of antiwar films.

Burton Says Reagan Held Back Benefit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Democratic lawmaker yesterday accused the Reagan administration of illegally with holding since December a $4-a-month Social Security increase to 300,000 elderly and disabled Californians.

Assemblyman John Burton of San Francisco, one of Reagan's most severe critics, accused the governor of invoking a "spurious legal technicality" to avoid making the payment.

He charged the action sets the groundwork for possible court suit and demanded that state Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson "ought to give that $4 back in the next welfare check or he ought to resign his office."

Governor's office spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

At a news conferencen Burton recalled that Congress in 1969 required states to pass on to elderly and disabled Social Security recipients who also received welfare a $4 Social Security increase. s

Burton last year steered through the legislature a bill signed by Reagan requiring California to pass on to such recipients an additional $7.50 Social Security increase. Previously, California had deducted such increases from a recipient's welfare check.

Calling the governor 'Ronnie Ripoff," Burton asserted that late in 1970 Reagan "invoked a spurious legal technicality and claimed that the state could include the original $4 guaranteed by federal law as part of the $7.50 guaranteed by state law."

He asserted that contrary to legislative "intention" the welfare department began withholding the $4 from welfare checks. Burton distributed to newsmen an opinion from the legislature's lawyer supporting his contention.

Burton said unless the increase is made, "Gov. Reagan is surely going to see his administration hauled back into court, probably by those legal assistance lawyers, those long-haired young men with attache cases whom he abhors."

Moorer: No Sign Of Soviet Cutback

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff says that despite an "encouraging and hopeful" breakthrough in arms talks, there is no indication that Soviet Union intends to cut back its military buildup.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer said Friday the United States should maintain its defense capability. He said the Soviets were continuing a buildup in such weapons as nuclear missiles, new aircraft, new ground forces equipment, new ships of all kinds and "hundreds of submarines."

Span Panel Backs Bid For Funds

Directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District formally endorsed yesterday applications for almost $20 million in federal grants to help finance its joint ferry and bus system.

Approval came after an outpouring of support in favor of the district's plans, according to Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

Harbor Carriers, private operator of ferry services on San Francisco Bay, and promoters of untested transit systems rejected by the district opposed the applications, Luehring said.

The support, which came at the last of two public hearings on the applications, was expressed by all boards of supervisors in the district, numerous cities, citizen groups and labor unions, Luehring said.

Although the district already has submitted preliminary applications for the grants, the hearings are required by federal law. Luehring said formal applications now will be submitted.

Marin City Show To Be Televised

Plans for an "adventure playground" project at Marin City will be described on a program "UC Up Close" at 3 p.m. tomorrow on Channel 3, according to Kim Vogley, a student at the University of California at Davis who is working on the project.

Miss Vogley said that slides of Marin City will be featured on the television show.

She said that the supervised playground project will be for youngsters 7 to 14 years old and is scheduled to start soon under the auspices of the university with community cooperation.

POW Wives Fly To Europe To Pressure The Communists

GENEVA (UPI)—A plane load of 173 wives and relatives of U.S. servicemen held prisoner or missing in Indochina, the biggest group ever to visit International Red Cross headquarters, arrived Saturday in a bid to get the Communists to respect the Geneva accords regarding war prisoners.

The kin from 32 states were to meet with Red Cross officials to lend weight to the still unsuccessful efforts of the Red Cross to get North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to permit it to visit POW camps, to release the sick and wounded, to permit the free flow of mail and to give a complete count of the prisoners.

Wednesday, 140 of the wives and relatives plan to fly to Paris and attempt to see representatives of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The mission was arranged by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, in Washington.

Monday, the delegation will see Marcel Naville, president of the International Red Cross.

Mrs. Joan Vinson, national coordinator of the league and in charge of the group, said 140 wives of missing or imprisoned American servicemen were among the group. The others comprised parents, brothers, sisters and older children.

The charter flight cost $300 per person with hotel and meals.

The group was met at Geneva airport by officials of the U.S. Mission in Geneva, including the Ambassador Idar Rimestad.

"We hope to express our concern for all prisoners of war and all those affected by the conflict in Vietnam," Mrs. Vinson said.

more than 1,650 Americans servicemen are listed missing in action or prisoner of war in Indochina, she said.

The first was captured more than seven years ago while many others have been missing or imprisoned for up to six years, she said.

The largest delegation within the group was from Alabama, with 21. There were 13 wives or relatives each from California, Texas and Virginia.

The trip was timed to coincide with a conference at the Red Cross starting Monday on the Geneva war conventions. Governmental experts from 40 countries will attend the conference, although not in an official capacity.

The aim of the conference is to discuss possible ways of rewriting the war conventions in light of modern warfare, especially as regards the treatment of prisoners in civil and undeclared conflicts such as Indochina.

Missing Husband Is Reported Dead

A San Rafael woman, who had given up hope she ever would see her Green Beret husband again, has been notified by the Army that her husband has been officially declared dead in Vietnam.

Capt. James D. Birchim, husband of Barbara Birchim of 39 Knight Drive, had been listed as missing in action after falling from a rescue device while being airlifted from an area that had been under hostile enemy fire.

That occurred in November 1968.

Despite being resigned to the belief her husband was dead, Mrs. Birchim said today she nevertheless was "very surprised" by the Army's action May 10.

She said the board had received no new evidence in her husband's status. "I don't know why they did it now," she said. "There was no warning they were even going to review the case."

A memorial service for Capt. Birchim has been set for 10 a.m. Monday at the post chapel at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Besides his wife, Capt. Birchim leaves two children, Kimberly Ann, 3, and David, 2. He had never seen his son.

Ross Valley Sewer Bid Rejected

The state Water Resources Board has rejected an application by the Ross Valley Sanitary District for state funds to help pay the cost of a sewer project.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, said the Marin agency wanted the state to pay 25 per cent of the $1.25 million cost, but the state board said in Los Angeles Wednesday it could not approve the application because the project failed to meet grant guidelines.

The project involves construction of a pumping station in Kentfield and installation of a line from the station to the district treatment plant.

Noah said construction would begin anyway with $750,000 in district funds, but that completion probably would be delayed a year while the balance is sought, either through a tax increase or a bond issue.

The district board is to open bids on the start of construction at 8 p.m. Monday in the district office.

Tam Board To Discuss Controversy

The Tamalpais High School District board agreed today to discuss in open session Monday night controversy surrounding the district's educational program for mentally retarded children.

However, the board said, it would not permit airing of parents' charges against two teachers in the program. That aspect will be taken up in a closed session also set for Monday.

Edward J. Neumeirer, district administrative assistant, said the open session was asked by E. Allen Arnold of Mill Valley, head of a parent group which charges that teachers are inept at their jobs, show little concern for their students and frequently leave students unattended.

In other business at its special meeting today, the board accepted a low bid of $347,450 for construction of the student center at Tamalpais High School. Although the figure is about $34,000 higher than a construction estimate, Neumeier said, the board plans to take the extra funds from a special reserve that contains adequate money for the work.

Low bidder of four was DiGiorgio and Sons, San Rafael.

5 Employees At Hamilton Are Retiring

Five civil service employees at Hamilton Air Force Base, representing more than 125 years of government service, have retired effective May 31.

They were honored recently at retirement ceremonies at the base and awarded certificates of appreciation for their work, the base public information office reported.

Those retiring are:

Millard F. Roberson, a tractor trailer operator at the base motor pool, after 27.5 years of service. He has been with the motor pool at the base since 1955.

Loie V. Moyer, a clerk-stenographer with the office of information, after 15 years of service, at Hamilton since 1956.

Andrew Paulcich, power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 28 years, at Hamilton since February, 1970.

John Miller a supervisory civil engineer with the 466st Civil Engineering Squadron, after 34.5 years.

Lloyd C. Sparks, a power generating equipment mechanic, 4629th Support Squadron, after 20 years, at Hamilton since 1965.

Mrs. Silva Reported In Good Condition

Marian Silva, wife of former Novato mayor Babe Silva, was reported in good condition today after undergoing major surgery at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame.

The nature of the surgery was not disclosed.

Some children in Milwaukee, aged three to five, some black and some white, decided to do something about the lack of playgrounds with swings.

So Thursday the little demonstrators, accompanied by a few of their mothers, protested before a park commission meeting. They carried signs with slogans such as, "We want trees and grass and a swimming pool in our park'' and "We want trees, slides and bushes." One little tyke simply carried a flower-shaped sign which said, "We want flowers."

And, while some of the tots played tag around the speaker's lecturn and others kept up constant chatter between munching on graham crackers, the commissioners approved the idea of improving the park.

A columnist for the Omaha World-Herald, may hold the world's record for consuming a pound of pickles. Peter Citron ate the pound at an Omaha delicatessen Thursday evening in one minute 27.3 seconds. The previous mark, according to the Guinness Book of Records, was four minutes 27 seconds set by Robert Harari in London on Nov. 6, 1968.

Petaluman Injured In 2-Car Crash

A Petaluma man was injured yesterday in a two-car collision on the Highway 101 exit to Ignacio Boulevard.

Russell C. Crawford, 57, complained of head pains and was treated by a private doctor.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Crawford had slowed his pickup truck to merge with southbound traffic on Ignacio Boulevard at about 1 p.m. when his vehicle was struck from behind by a car driven by Ralph E. Duncan, 23, of Santa Rosa.

Rocket Barrages Hit GI Positions

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist gunners pumped about 40 more rounds of heavy rockets and mortars today into hard-hit Fire Base Charlie 2 and nearby Alpha 4, just south of the Demilitarized Zone where 30 U.S. soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in shelling attacks Friday, American military spokesmen reported.

U.S. fighter—bombers and heavy artillery throughout the day had pounded "Rocket Ridge," where the Communist firing positions were believed to be located, after the Friday night attacks. But the Communists opened fire again Saturday night, firing nearly 15 rounds of heavy rockets against Charlie 2 and nearly 25 rounds of rockets and mortars at Alpha 4, two miles to the north.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damages in the Saturday night shellings.

The shellings Friday were the most intensive on American bases since Khe Sanh in 1968 and resulted in the worst U.S. casualty toll since 33 Americans were killed and 76 wounded at Fire Base Mary Ann in the Central Highlands last March 28.

The Indochina war flared elsewhere as well. The South Vietnamese command reported a total of 87 Communists killed Thursday and Friday in fighting in and around the embattled A Shau Valley.

In neighboring Cambodia, the high command reported seven Cambodian soldiers killed and 21 wounded Friday morning just south of the Thai border—the worst government casualties in more than a month. It reported 16 Communists were killed.

The U.S. command in Saigon said the Communist rockets that hit the American artillery outpost, Fire Base Charlie 2, at sundown Friday came from inside the DMZ. But Charlie 2's commanding officer said this was not certain.

Charlie 2 is four miles south of the DMZ and the Communist rockets have a range of up to eight miles.

"I'm not sure whether the rockets were fired from within the DMZ or South Vietnam," Lt. Col. Arnold Stallman, 39, of Shenandoah, Va., told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman today.

He said the rockets came from a ridge that starts four miles north of the base and runs on into the DMZ.

"The ridge straddles the DMZ and it's impossible to pinpoint the exact location," Stallman said.

ades," Tass the Soviet News Agency, said. "This accounts for the great interest shown by specialists of various fields of knowledge—biologists in particular—in the soviet interplanetary station Mars-2."

Another phrase in the commentary raised the further possibility that an attempt will be made to find out if Earth forms of life can live on Mars.

"It is understandable, there, that the first task scientists set before themselves is to find out whether terrestrial microorganisms can adapt themselves to Martian conditions," Tass said.

The Soviets have extensive experience in soft landings. The Soviet Venus program placed an instrument capsule on that planet's hot surface. Soviet moon explorers have succeeded not only in making soft landings, but in taking off again with soil samples to carry back to earth.

Experts Say Pot Can Be Disaster For Some Users

NEW YORK (UPI) — Research on the effects of marijuana indicates the drug is not universally harmful but that the excessive use by some persons "can be a disaster," a panel of seven doctors and scientists has asserted.

The panel members, attending a conference yesterday on marijuana sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences, refrained from recommending that marijuana use be legalized, stating that more research was necessary.

However, they were nearly unanimous in saying penalties for marijuana possession should be reduced.

Dr. Reese T. Jones, of San Francisco's Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute, noted that there are "a lot of similarities" between marijuana and alcohol. "But that only worries me more," he said.

Another panel member, Dr. Sidney Cohen of the National Institute of Mental Health, said marijuana might be legalized but cautioned against too much haste. "Once you bring it into the culture," he said, "you'll never be able to get it out."

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM McNAUGHT

Memorial service for William K. McNaught, 66, of Sausalito, a retired mechanical engineer, will be at noon Monday at Christ Episcopal Church, Sausalito.

McNaught died at his home at 37 Miller Avenue Thursday, apparently of natural causes, according to deputy coroner Don Cornish.

He is survived by his wife, Polly; three sons, Thomas, William and Kirk; a brother, Dr. Robert C. McNaught, and two grandchildren.

Memorial contributions are preferred by the family to a favorite charity.

GRACE CHRISTENSEN

Funeral for Grace H. Christensen, 66, of 65 Via Barranca, Greenbrae, was to be held today at the Maneely-Matthews Chapel in San Fraccisco.

Mrs. Christensen, wife of retired building contractor Andrew G. Christensen, died Tuesday at a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Marin County for 30 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Harold Christensen of Tustin, Orange County; two daughters, Virginia Noel of Greenbrae and Shirley Kelso of San Anselmo; a brother, Clair FaMar of Brookings, Ore.; two sisters, Irene Winkfield of Salem, Ore. and Mary Allenby of Brookings; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

LELAND DILLMAN

Funeral for Leland S. Dillman, 77, former San Geronimo Valley resident who died in a Sonoma hospital Thursday after a short illness, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Bates, Evans and Fenrensen Funeral Home, Sonoma.

Dillman was born in Ohio and came to Marin County in 1937. For many years he was an employee of Mare Island Naval Base and later Hamilton Air Force Base, retiring from there about eight years ago. He was a cabinet maker and carpenter.

He moved to Sonoma in 1948 but continued to work at Hamilton until his retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth, of Sonoma; three sons, John G. Dillman of San Rafael and Hugh Edward Dillman and Gerald A. Dillman, both of Sonoma; five daughters, Ruth Ann Johnson and Betty Little of San Rafael, Marion Simpson of Woodacre, Janice Hughes of Chula Vista and Joyce Rubke of Yuba City; a sister, Dorothea Hitch of Richmond, Ind., 35 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Air Board To Implement Initial Smog Alert Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District unanimously went on record yesterday in favor of implementing a temporary smog alert system this fall.

Under the procedure, citizens would be warned when certain pollutants in the air reached levels considered hazardous to health. Depending on the intensity of contaminants and weather factors, the district could impose restrictions — even a ban — on vehicle use and the operation of businesses.

A permanent alert system, similar to one used in Los Angeles, will be required next year by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

In the meantime, directors felt, interim steps aimed at clearing dirty air in critical periods should be adopted. In the Bay Area, the critical smog period is in the fall. The board asked its staff and advisory council to work out alert system criteria.

Milton Feldstein, director of technical services, outlined for the board federal criteria for a warning system, but pointed out the Bay Area district could adopt stricter standards if it wished.

A tougher stance was embraced by board member Dianne Feinstein, a San Francisco supervisor.

The three-stage federal plan called for alert, warning and emergency phases, based on the level in the air of sulfur dioxide, particulate matter, a combination of those two, carbon monoxide, oxidants and nitrogen oxides.

As the intensity of each pollutant grew, and taking into account weather forecasts, various abatement actions could be affected by the district. Under the first, or alert, stage, for instance, the agency would call for a reduction in unnecessary vehicle use and "substantial curtailment and postponement" of production at refineries and other large industries.

The warning phase would mean reduction of all vehicle use and "maximum" curtailment of industry. Under emergency conditons, vehicle use would be prohibited and businesses compelled to close.

Feldstein explained it would take a dangerous rise in only one of the six pollutants to trigger any of the three phases. He said the oxidant level in Bay area air has been known to reach the alert stage during critical smog periods.

In other business, board member Robert W. Hoyer delivered to the board-advisory council workshop session a highly complimentary report of a district critique compiled last year by a group of Stanford University students.

The student report chastised the district for going too slow in the fight against pollution.

Hoyer said the report showed a technical awareness of the district and he praised several sections as "well done."

While taking issue with the "book review" nature of the committee report, Ned Groth, then chiefly responsible for the critique but now a member of the district's advisory council, said he was generally pleased with recent antismog efforts.

The students' report also dealt with personalities and performance of district directors, but Hoyer's committee did not evaluate that phase.

At the time the Stanford report was issued, several directors who had been given unfavorable ratings by the students objected to the treatment.

Students To Ballot At College of Marin

College of Marin students will go to the polls Monday and Tuesday to elect student body officers for the fall semester.

A total of 12 students have announced their candidacy for 10 offices.

Running for president are Kenneth Bott of Mill Valley and Todd Cooley of Corte Madera.

Bott now is student body vice president and plans, if elected, to cut profits at the campus bookstore and pass the saving on to the customer.

He also has called for a new loan service for ex-servicemen entering college to tide them over until they receive their first check under the GI Bill.

"Student government is on the move," he said in his campaign statement. "During the last two semesters I have seen Associated Students of the College of Marin (student government) grow steadily stronger, until finally it is now ready to do some really significant things."

His opponent, Todd Cooley, sums up the situation differently. "Student business has its place, but when student government can't decide whether it should meet on Thursday or on every other Thursday we can't help but feel short changed," he said.

Under his administration, Cooley promises to follow through with the past administration's promises to hold student-sponsored dances.

Other students running for office are: Thomas Estudillo of Tiburon and Gregory C. Fearon of San Rafael for vice president, L. Casey Lamson of Sausalito for secretary, Frank Holloway of Forest Knolls and Tim Nielsen of Ignacio for treasurer, Barbara Lamson of Sausalito for public relations representative, Delana Cochran of Ross and Barbara Kaplan of San Rafael for college center commissioner, Douglas W. Hunt of Sausalito for rallies and assemblies commissioner and Brian Horwitz of San Rafael for spirit and athletic commissioner.

No candidate has filed for either head yell leader or head song leader.

8 Students In Exchange Program

Eight high school students from Marin are scheduled to go abroad under the Youth for Understanding Exchange Student Program, according to Camie Studley, Marin County coordinator for the program.

Students selected thus far for trips to foreign countries are:

Novato High School — Dawn Fiala who will go to Germany.

San Marin High School — Brad Leathers, Switzerland, and Patrick Studley, Sweden.

Sir Francis Drake High School — Cynthis Miller, Finland, and Cecilia Celle, Sweden.

Terra Linda High School — Katherine Kaeppel, France; Doris Zimmerman, Switzerland, and Susan Upshaw, Germany.

Rev. Fenton Kovic of Palo Alto, regional chariman for Youth for Understanding, will conduct an orientation session for the students at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Mrs. Studley's home, 10 Laurie Drive.

Ecology Fills Agenda For Mayors

The environment — what's messing it up and how it can be corrected — will fill the major share of the agenda at Wednesday's meeting of the Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

The meeting will be hosted by San Anselmo at the Deer Park Villa on Bolinas Road in Fairfax.

Discussions on aerial advertisement, non-recycleable bottles, and noise are included on the agenda, Ronald E. Bartels, Corte Madera town manager and council secretary reported.

Bartels said officials will discuss posibility of establishing a uniform sound control ordinance if they should decide one is necessary.

Mill Valley officials will report on their efforts to regulate the sale of non-recycleable botties, he said, and a council subcommittee will report on its study of aerial advertising.

Jets Collide

MANILA (UPI)—Two Philippine Air Force F86 jet fighters collided in flight Friday and crashed seven miles southeast of Clark Air Base and 75 miles north of Manila, Clark officials said. One pilot was killed.

To All Firms in Marin County Doing Business Under a Fictitious Name:

All firms operating under a fictitious name for profit will be required to refile their Fictitious Business Name Statement by July 1, 1971, according to Geo. H. Gnoss, County Clerk.

A FICTITIOUS NAME is one that does not include the surname of the operator or one that implies the existence of other owners; or, if a corporation, if it includes a name other than the name given in the articles of incorporation. The filing fee will be $10.

County Clerk Gnoss points out that while the new law does not become effective until July 1, 1971, businesses may refile at any time between January 1, 1971 and June 30, 1971. He urges all businesses affected to comply as soon after January 1, 1971, as possible, to avoid the rush at deadline.

Legal publication of the statement is required if there has been any change in information required in the statement previously filed.

The office of the County Clerk will furnish forms required by the new law.

Marin Women

THEIR GOLDEN wedding will be celebrated tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. William Nave of San Rafael at a reception at the family's Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes in Novato. One of Marin's best known citizens, William Nave was born in Novato and founded numerous businesses there. He and the former Irene Lartigue were married at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa on May 23, 1921.

Golden Anniversary For Naves In Novato

Celebrating 50 years of marriage tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. William Nave will be honored at a reception by 200 of their family and friends at Nero's restaurant at Nave Lanes, Novato.

The Naves exchanged vows May 23, 1921, at St. Rose Church in Santa Rosa in a double wedding ceremony with his sister Katherine Nave and her husband, Frank Sheldon.

William Nave was born in Novato where the Nave Shopping Center now stands, and, as he describes it, he grew up fast, going into business while still in his teens.

Son of Peter Nave, an immigrant from Genoa, he was born in an eight room house in 1901. As a boy he fished for trout and swam near what is now the Nave Shopping Center. With his two brothers and two sisters, he worked in the orchards and gardens and milked the cows. At home spoke Italian, and learned English during brief schooling and later some night classes. But business intervened with his schooling and by the time Nave was 13 two men worked for him, buying and selling livestock and farm equipment. At 15 he set up a jitney business, meeting trains in Novato at 10 to 25 cents a ride.

He did odd jobs and accumulated money to buy the cars. Then he decided to open the first garage in Novato. It was a day in 1916 that he was motoring along Novato and spotted two girls walking to the train station to ride to San Rafael High School.

Friendly Bill offered them a ride, little guessing that five years later one of them, Irene Lartigue, would become his wife.

In 1919 Nave bought the Bodkin and Loma Verde ranches and soon ran some 800 head of cattle on the various ranches he owned, a total of 2,100 acres.

After they were married Mrs. Nave was to become a cook on some of the ranches and she later worked as a bookeeper, accountant and consultant for the family enterprises.

Still in the cattle business, Nave opened an insurance agency, and then a juke box concession. In 1929 the couple moved to San Rafael with their two young sons, Billy and Bobby. Richard was born the following year.

In the early '30s Nave was appointed loan commissioner for the Federal Land Bank, and it was his job to approve loans to the depression-struck ranchers to the amount of one-and-a-half million dollars.

From 1935 to 1949 he served as deputy assessor for the county of Marin. After he decided to build a bowling alley, since it was becoming more of a family sport, and Nave Lanes was erected in south Novato, near Hamilton Air Force Base. Soon, too, the Nave Shopping Center materialized on the site of his family home.

Nave still owns and is active in management of both, with all the sons, says Rich Nave. He also still enjoys hunting and the sons took him to Montana last year. Occasionally he bowls, too.

Mrs. Nave has continued in club activities, and although she has been in ill health recently, she places her big interest in her 17 grandchildren, who range in age from 22 to 2.

Among the relatives at the reception tomorrow afternoon will be his sisters, Katherine Nave Sheldon and Molly Nave Scott and his brother, Louis Nave, all of Novato. Another brother, Fred Nave, is deceased.

Also attending the reception will be Mrs. Nave's sister, Mrs. Alfred Renger of Novato, and members of the families from the Stockton area and Santa Cruz, and friends from Marin and other parts of the Bay Area.

Couple Touring Far East

By MOLLY MARIN

Now on a wedding trip to Hong Kong and the Island of Bali, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Kirchner will return next week to make their home in New York City, where she is employed with Pan American World Airways and he with International Business Machines.

The bride is the former Sarah Cushing Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newman W. Page of Tiburon. The couple recited their vows in a ceremony at the Page home on May 8, with a small group of friends and family members attending. It was followed by a reception, also at the Page home.

DR. AND Mrs. Rodney B. Hartman of Mill Valley are pleased at the news that their daughter Harriet and her husband, Thomas F. Kostic, and their two daughters, Kathryn, 6, and Carolyn, 3, will be moving to Mill Valley. They have made their home in Moraga the past three years.

Mrs. Kostic has many friends in Marin, since she grew up in Mill Valley. She is a graduate of the Katharine Branson School and Stanford University. Her husband, who was graduated from the University of California's Boalt Hall School of Law, has just been made a partner in the law firm of Miller, Groezinger, Pettit, Evers and Marin in San Francisco.

LEONE BAXTER, a former Kentfield resident who is president of Whitaker and Baxter International of San Francisco, is one of 50 persons to be honored by the American Academy of Achievement in Philadelphia June 24-26. The academy annually honors leaders in the sciences, professions, industry, and arts, and Leone Baxter (Mrs. Clem Whitaker Sr.) will be honored for her work in political public relations, as counselor for industrial and professional clients and volunteer service.

Registration Opens Monday At YWCA

Registration for YWCA summer activities opens Monday at the San Rafael office, 305 Mission Avenue. A variety of programs are offered.

Island Adventure, a program for 6 to 9 year old boys and girls, from June 21 to July 1 offers activities on Angel Island, including hiking, music, dance, drama, crafts, nature study and the history of the island.

A second two-week session for the same age group will be held July 26 to Aug. 5 at Phoenix Lake park in Ross. Emphasis will be placed on adventure in the woods along the stream.

Cook-outs, special theme days, crafts, music, drama, nature study, hiking and games will be part of the program.

Three to 5 year olds may enroll for day camp. This one morning a week camp will include crafts, music, games and an introduction to ecology through seeing how plants, insects and animals relate in a near-natural setting.

"Day Camp Time," a relaxed program designed especially for children with neurological handicaps, will be offered July 6 to July 23. Indoor and outdoor activities geared to the capacity of the participants will be featured. The program will be assisted by Marin County Day School students trained as aides.

Swimming lessons will be available for 3 to 5 year olds and 6 to 8 year olds, as well as adults and teen-agers.

Pre-school creative dance, horseback riding for boys and girls aged 8 and up, a jazz dance workshop for teens and adults, and adult classes in tennis, golf and yoga are also available.

To register for activities call the Marin YWCA in San Rafael.

Treat A Luxury Fabric As Carefully As Silks, Satins

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice,

I have just finished a lovely wedding gown for my daughter out of Qiana satin. I was very disappointed in this expensive fabric because it showed every mark where I had ripped and restitched a seam, as well as pulled threads where I had hand basted the garment together for a fitting. I thought this new fabric was such a miracle? Mrs. H. B.

Dear Mrs. H. B.:

Qiana is a luxury fabric just as your beautiful silks and satins and must be treated with the very same care. True, it doesn't water spot, it is washable, and it has other plus features, however, you must take the same precautions you would take when making any expensive fabric. You can plan any pattern alterations at this time.

When you machine stitch or hand sew, be sure you have a new, fine, needle that won't pull your threads. I have found that using silk thread for basting, eliminates the marks left by using a heavier thread.

I would also like to remind you not to use knots at the ends of your basting threads. Many times I have watched women pull out their bastings, completely forgetting the knots, and consequently the pulled threads created by the knots. Instead of a knot, just take an extra stitch over the first one, to hold it in place. It is a routine habit that is a good one to acquire.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER: Mrs. John Terelly, Gravenhurst, Ontario is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following sewing suggestion.

"I recently purchased a needle board for pressing velvets and was shocked when I found out how expensive they were. I discussed this with the shop owner and she told me, 'I'd probably find other uses for it!' It wasn't long until I discovered what a needle board is really useful for.

"I do quite a bit of machine and hand knitting and have always found pressing curled edges a tedious task. Now I simply roll the edge of the knitted piece out on the needle board and press. The finished product is much nicer as it doesn't get stretched out of shape and isn't flattened with that hard pressed look. The needle board can also be used for any nubby fabric, napped fabric, and textures besides the original use, velvets!"

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I keep making the same mistake over and over and don't seem to be able to remember until it's too late. I invariably end up with a soiled line right down the center front of a dress or a crease that is so set, I can't possibly remove it. How can this be avoided when almost all patterns call for a center front placed on the fold of the fabric! Mrs. M. S. S.

Dear Mrs. M. S. S.:

Usually, the center front is the only part of a garment that would be placed on the original fold of the fabric. For this piece of the garment only, refold your fabric so that the center front will be placed on the straight grain line, but on a new fold. Your fabric allowance is usually the same. It just takes a minute to replan the pattern layout.

I think with the finish that is put on most fabrics, causing a more permanent crease mark, it would be wise to refold every piece of fabric you make and cut any center front or center back fold on the new fold of the fabric.

Dear Eunice,

Sometimes I feel there are too many products to choose from today. Just as I get used to one brand, something new comes out and confusion sets in. Today's concern is a new brand of zippers that have a covering over the metal teeth. It certainly looks nicer, but does it actually work better? Mrs. L. T.

Dear Mrs. L. T.:

We have worked with the zipper you are referring to. It seems to have the most value when you encounter fabrics that would easily snag on the uncovered teeth of the zipper. They are also especially nice when you are using a center application, rather than the lapped seam type.

You will find in competitive products, there will be good features in most of them. You must decide which one gives you the best service with the least trouble and stick with it for the most part. I must honestly say that we have found less trouble with the lightweight metal zippers than any other type. However, there are patterns that require the invisible zipper or decorative type. You will always have to use your good judgment.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

No Accounting Sometimes For Some People's 'Buying Habits'

DEAR HELEN:

Would you believe: This boy lets his girl pay for everything — shows, dinners, entertainment, even his clothes. He is working, she isn't. They are both in college, she on an allowance from home.

She is terribly possessive; he takes it (among other things). She is also cute and talented, so why must she feel it necessary to "own" a guy unworthy of her? — CONCERNED PAL

DEAR PAL:

There's no accounting for some people's "buying habits," but possessiveness I can understand: What you pay for, you expect to "own."

The girl might wake up sooner if her parents would cut the heart out of her allowance (meaning the gigolo fund). — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm sitting here crying. You see, I'm part Puerto Rican, and also have a little Polish blood. And I'm sick of being called "spic" and listening to those sick Polish jokes, or being called a "dumb Polack" (by people who aren't my friends).

I know you can't do much, but please print this to show those idiots they aren't funny. — PROUD AND HURT

DEAR P AND H:

Why don't you suggest that those idiots listen to "All in the Family" on Tuesday night TV? And when they call you "spic," call 'em "Archie." — H.

P.S. It's a great show!

DEAR HELEN:

Please, one more time. Could you print the address where we could write to Servicemen overseas? — THE GIRLS

DEAR GIRLS:

Send your letter to a Serviceman inside an envelope addressed to:

Or to:

APO San Francisco, Calif. 96226.

Don will pass any oversupply of letters on to his buddies in C Troops. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm inspired to write this because of all the columns I've read about kids because of their parents, running away, even committing suicide. I can thank my family for not making me one of those kids.

I have a younger brother and two fantastic parents, and we all love each other very much. Of course, there are arguments — quite a few come to think of it — and some seem to be the worst in the world. We've also had our share of problems but the thing that stands out in my mind is that we never really hold grudges. Within an hour, we're friends again.

Friends: That's a word everyone uses for someone his own age. Yet my mother is my best friend — the best a girl could have. Ever since I can remember (I'm 18) we've been having serious discussions. Not just on what outfit to wear, but on important things that touch my generation: boys, drugs, sex, life in general. She never puts me down or is too busy. She talks to me like an adult and an equal, and I'm not afraid to discuss anything with her.

My relationship with my parents and brother must be very rare. We aren't afraid to show love and pride in each other. And I'm so thankful! — JANINE

(This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.)

Care Food Statements Hit

"Many of the current scare statements about food are nonsense, either because the proposition is untrue to start with or because its truth is carried to a ridiculous extreme," says Dr. Jean Mayer, Harvard University professor of nutrition and chairman of the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health.

Dr. Mayer says the idea that fat in cow's milk causes heart disease is nonsense. He suggests eating a varied diet, including as many unprocessed foods as possible, such as meat, fish, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

"Milk and cheese are still the major sources of calcium and contain many essential nutrients," he says.

Miller Newlyweds Take Mexico Honeymoon Trip

On a wedding trip to Mazatlan, Mexico, are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miller (Alice Robinson), who were married May 16 in Stewart Chapel at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson of San Rafael, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Miller of San Rafael.

Maid of honor was Janet Crowhurst of San Rafael, and the bridegroom's sister, Marilynn Miller, and Sharon Peicich of San Rafael were bridesmaids.

Bob Kirby of San Rafael was best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by the bridegroom's brother, Mike Miller of Novato, and Harry Finnerty of San Rafael.

A reception at the Oakview Club at the Meadows in Terra Linda followed the ceremony.

Alice is the sister of Tom Robinson of Virginia Beach, Va. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Robinson of Piedmont and Mrs. Ray Wilson of Berkeley.

Jim is employed by W. C. Garvie Boat Builder in San Rafael. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Mason, all of San Rafael.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Terra Linda High School. They are living in San Rafael.

New state president

Marinite Takes Helm Of BPW

A Marin resident, Lois M. McLain, became president today of the California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, comprising some 350 clubs in the state.

Miss McLain, a Corte Madera resident, took office at the annual state convention being held in Beverly Hills. A member of the San Francisco club, she is an assistant trust officer at the main branch of the Bank of America in San Francisco and is involved in administration of the bank's employee benefits trust section.

Miss McLain has been with the bank since 1951.

Friedan Vow On Column For McCalls

Betty Friedan, a founder of the women's liberation movement whose book, "The Feminine Mystique," roasted women's magazines for preaching that mystique, has begun a monthly column in McCall's magazine.

In her first column in the June issue Miss Friedan asserted, "I have no intentions of giving up my revolutionary credentials; I have, in fact, warned them (the editors) that I will be saying things they won't agree with.

"In a nation as big as this, change happens through the mass media. Women have to use it, not just be used by it. The bra burning image which enables people to dismiss us as a silly joke can and must be replaced."

In a swipe at militant women's liberation writers, Miss Friedan added, "I have always been uneasy about the pseudo-radical talk that includes the elimination of men, sex and children among the aims of women's liberation. This makes for kickier headlines than child care centers or abortion reform, but it's just a way of dismissing the whole movement as a dirty joke.

"If liberation, equality, personhood for women is worth fighting for, it can't be at the price of these other goods. Maybe sexual politics are even more anti-women than they are anti-men. Or are they anti-life?" she asks in her column.

Big Jump In GIs On Drug Amnesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Pentagon official says the number of GI drug addicts participating in an amnesty program in Vietnam showed a dramatic increase the first quarter of this year.

Roger T. Kelley, assistant defense secretary for manpower, said Friday about 200 men a month turned themselves in when the amnesty program started last year. He said the figure jumped to more than 1,300 a month the first quarter of this year.

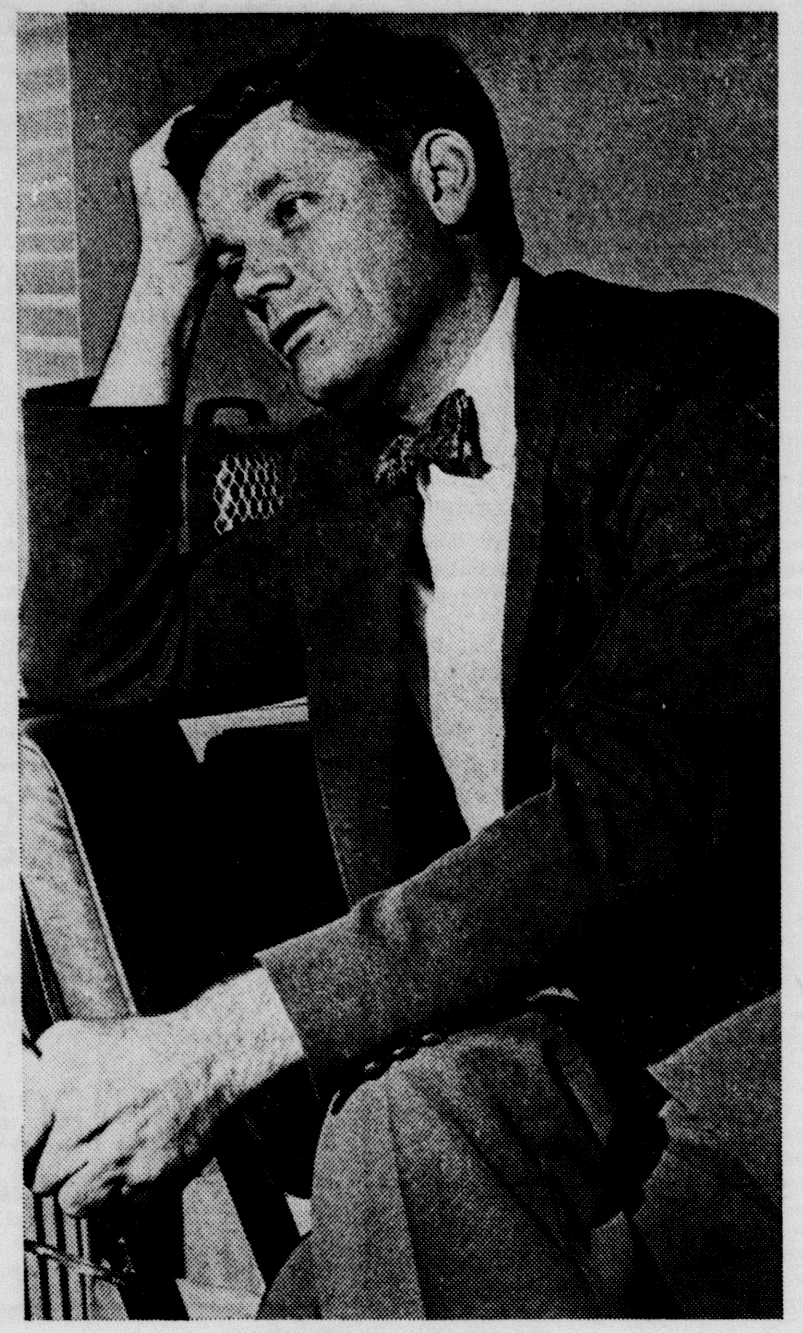
RAP SESSION

Doctor Cites Nation's Basic Economic Issues

By MARY LEYDECKER
(Last in a series of 24 raps)



DR. ELMER A. WEDEN JR.

In a society which alleviates unemployment by producing supersonic transports, it's not surprising to find heroin used to alleviate personality problems, in the view of Dr. Elmer A. Weden Jr. of Sleepy Hollow.

The 49-year-old surgeon whose many activities include serving as president of the San Anselmo School District board, said that, "We're not getting at the basic problems" in our society.

Dr. Weden, a longtime member of the Henry George School of Social Sciences, saw many of the problems as either purely economic, such as poverty, or economically related, like racism.

"When there are as many black dollars as white dollars, discrimination will taper off if not cease completely," he said.

In an interview in the emergency room at Marin General Hospital where he was interrupted many times by phone calls, the doctor further explained his views.

"The blacks are entirely right when they say "just give us the money to have good schools," he said. "Rather than waste any money on busing," Dr. Weden suggested spending money wherever it is needed to improve schooling for minorities.

He further explained his opinions on economics, saying that people who benefit from public projects ought to pay for them.

"The California Water Plan will enrich land owners whose land will go up in value from $300 to $3,000 an acre; maybe they ought to pay for it," he said.

He called the SST a "blunderbuss" and suggested that persons benefiting from the production of it ought to pay for it, although he added with a smile, "I'm not hung up on the SST, either."

Leaving economics, the doctor turned to youth.

"Sure, there's a generation gap, but it's the same as it's always been," he said.

However, he added later that there is a difference today.

"When we were young there were a lot of easily recognized leaders from 18 to 21 years old," he said.

The leaders were easily recognized, he explained, because they were doing such things as writing for college newspapers and otherwise exerting leadership. "The immature nonleaders were out swallowing goldfish," he said.

"Today the ones who ought to be swallowing goldfish are emulating their leaders and it's hard to tell them apart," he said, explaining young people who take up new movements in a very shallow manner.

As for requests by youth for appointments to governing bodies and lowering of the draft age, Dr. Weden said he abhors young people "using only age as criteria."

As for the voting age, Dr. Weden said "it would seem more rational to raise the voter age," although he thought the ideal solution would be eliminate any age requirement and substitute a "test on knowledge of public affairs."

He readily agreed this would be impractical in today's world where "we're supposed to be getting less discriminatory not more so."

Turning to a discussion of drugs, Dr. Weden said that he thought the "problem peaked about two years ago," adding that he never had seen much use of drugs at Terra Linda High School, where he serves as a team physician.

In the emergency room, however, Dr. Weden said that "two years ago people regularly came in screaming and yelling on bad trips from LSD. Now we're seeing some severe heroin problems."

The doctor, who is the father of two teen-age youngsters, concluded his views on today's world by saying, "What good does it do to withdraw?"

"This morning I felt depressed for a while and I thought, 'what I'd really like to do is spend several hours every day playing my banjo,' " he said. (Dr. Weden recently organized a Dixieland band.)

"Then I thought to myself — 'That's just like the kids, except they play guitars.' "

"You can't avoid problems — maybe you can postpone them for awhile — but they'll still be there," he said.

Marin Open Space Outline Due Before County Planning Panel

What areas in Marin should be designated as scenic areas, green belts, and other open spaces will be discussed by the Marin County Planning Commission, meeting Monday at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Albert Solnit, chief of advance planning, and Planner Sol Silver will present a preliminary plan for open space as part of the countywide general plan that is being drafted by the county planning department.

Other items on the planning commission agenda include:

A-20 ZONE — Public hearing on a proposed new A-20 zone, which would allow a variety of agricultural, recreational and open space use but limit homes to one dwelling unit per 20 acres.

TOMALES FARM — Herbert Angress wants to build 62 units of townhouses on 40 acres of his property at 21300 Shoreline Highway, on the east side of Tomales Bay north of Marshall.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — William Wright Jr. will present a master plan for his Del Pantano Industrial Park on 13 acres of land on the north side of Airport Road between Gnoss Field and Highway 101, north of Novato.

LAND DIVISION — Fred Roemer, who owns property at 858 Marin Drive, Tamalpais Valley, wants to create an extra parcel, which was denied by the county planning director.

MELVIN SWIG — Marinwood Community Services District will protest a four-lot land division granted by the county planning director to Melvin Swig, who owns 21 acres on the south side of Lucas Valley Road opposite Mount Shasta Drive. Marinwood services contends the area is too steep, and driveway grades will be excessive.

TOWNHOUSES — Charles D. Parmalee and Floyd Allensby of San Rafael want to build 121 condominium townhouse units on 7.8 acres of land on Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera the railroad tracks.

Four Fined On Drunken Driving

Four persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Wednesday by Judge David Menary Jr. were:

Honor Joyce Lawrence, 57, of San Francisco, arrested Dec. 19 in Corte Madera, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Edward Allan Thompson, 46, of 18 Southridge Drive East, Tiburon, arrested Dec. 28 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $240.

Lee Norman Bryon, 55, of 262 Canal Street, Apt. 431, San Rafael, arrested Oct. 18 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $250.

David Randolph Pashilk, 27, of 608 C Street, San Rafael, arrested Oct. 18 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $125.

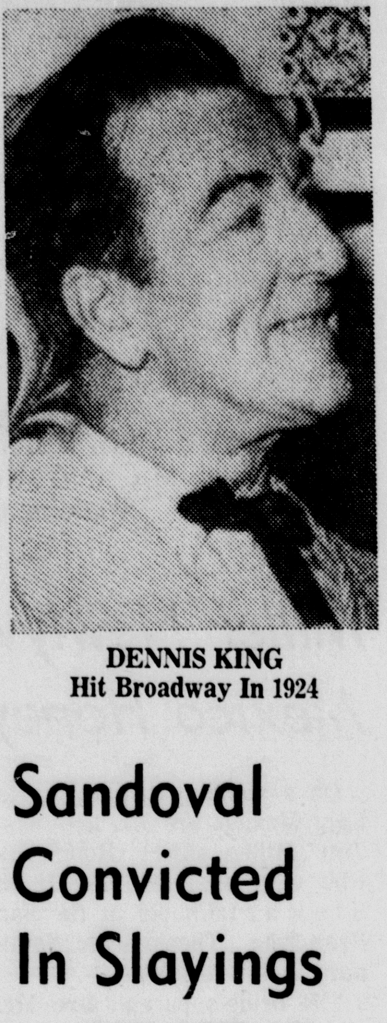
THE VAGABOND KING

Longtime Broadway Star, Dennis King, Dies At 73

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dennis King, whose versatility on the Broadway stage enthralled several generations of theatergoers, died late Friday night of a heart condition at the New York University Hospital. He was 73.

King was born on Nov. 2, 1897, in Coventry, England, the son of John Pratt and Elizabeth King Pratt. He assumed his mother's name for stage purposes and, at an early age, began absorbing the invaluable stage training afforded participants of the British repertory system.



DENNIS KING
Hit Broadway In 1924

In 1919, King made his London debut in "Monsieur Beaucaire." He then traveled to the United States and became a naturalized citizen.

It was soon discovered that King, whose former talents seemingly lay only within dramatic productions, possessed a fine high-baritone singing voice. It was this find which would, in the end, enable King to accept musical as well as dramatic roles on the stage and perform them both with steady brilliance.

On Sept. 2, 1924, he made his Broadway debut as a singing actor in the role of hero Jim Kenyon in "Rose Marie," a rlassic of the age with such Rudolf Friml song hits as "Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie."

And in another Friml musical, "The Vagabond King," King achieved indelible stardom in the role of France's poet-patriot, Francois Villon. He also played D'Artagnan when Florenz Ziegfield decided to produce Friml's musical version of "The Three Muskateers."

King's last Broadway Role was in John Osborne's drama, "A Patriot for Me," in the 1969-70 season. He received a Tony Award nomination for the role.

Four years earlier, he had been elected president of The Players, a club for stage professionals and others associated with the arts that was founded in 1888 by Edwin Booth.

A spokesman for the club said late Friday evening that King suffered a paralytic stroke about a week ago that led to his death.

King is survived by two sons. Funeral arrangements were not immediately announced.

5 Children Rescued From Fire

Five children were rescued from their blazing Terra Linda home early today by a neighbor who was awakened by the fire which destroyed the $25,000 residence.

The fire, which began about 3:10 a.m. near the living room of the four-bedroom home at 724 Del Ganado Road, quickly spread throughout the structure, according to firemen.

The neighbor, Edward Bott, of 714 Del Ganado Road, was awakened by heat from the blaze which scorched homes on both sides of the residence. Firemen said Bott broke a bedroom window to pull the children, who were alone in the house, to safety.

The home was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived.

Names of the children were unavailable and firemen could identify the owner of the home only as a party named Knox.

Cause of the fire, which caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the contents of the house and left only the garage standing, was still under investigation today, firemen said.

Water District Applicant Turns Down Job Offer

The man chosen to head a Marin Municipal Water District improvement district has turned down the job and another candidate will be interviewed.

Dexter Ahlgren of Sunnyvale decided against accepting the position of general manager, the Southern Marin Advisory Committee reported, and another candidate will be interviewed in closed session at 8 p.m. Monday. A recommendation will be made Tuesday to the water district's board of directors.

The advisory committee is composed of one member from each of the district's seven sanitary districts and advises the district board on problems concerning the individual districts.

The improvement district was authorized to make preparatory studies of consolidation of Southern Marin sanitary districts in one district run by Marin Municipal Water District. Excluded at their own request would be Tiburon Sanitary District and the City of Belvedere.

A general business session will follow Monday's interview.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon presented the nation's highest award for science to nine scientists yesterday, expressing hope that their talents soon could be turned "exclusively to peaceful pursuits."

Sandoval Convicted In Slayings

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jaime Sandoval, one-time male nurse in San Rafael, was found guilty yesterday in Superior Court of slaying two of his friends.

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated 11 hours before finding Sandoval, 40, guilty of killing Edelmiro Huertas, 63, and Carmen Acenzio, 36, of San Francisco.

Judge Robert J. Drewes set Wednesday for the start of the penalty phase of the trial.

The victims' bodies were found last May 30 off the Devil's Slide area on the Coast Highway just south of Pacifica.

During the trial, the prosecution contended that the couple was about to evict Sandoval from their home and that he borrowed a .22-caliber rifle which he used to murder them.

It was with Huertas's help that Sandoval, an ex-convict, won his release from San Quentin Prison in 1967. Sandoval had been convicted of molesting the young sons of a Millbrae couple.

The boys' mother, Virginia Douglas, had died earlier in a fall from a cliff in Puerto Rico, and Sandoval was the only witness to the plunge. Ten days later, her husband committed suicide on a Lucas Valley road, leaving a note in which he said he doubted his wife had died accidentally and that he had been bilked of $32,000 by Sandoval.

Guilty Plea To Weapon Charge

Floyd Johnny Broadwell, 18, of Cotati, has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing a sawed-off rifle.

He is to be sentenced July 8.

Broadwell, who earlier pleaded innocent to the charge, was arrested March 22 in a car behind the Patio Car Wash in Corte Madera.

Reagan Angered By Welfare Criticism

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh and Gov. Ronald Reagan's office traded heated accusations Friday as the Indiana Democrat stumped the state for support in nest year's presidential primary.

Bayh, who has his eye on the 1972 Democratic nomination for President, accused both Reagan and President Nixon of making "welfare the most volatile political issue" by claiming that relief rolls "are filled with lazy men and women who do not want to work."

"It's an outright lie," replied a spokesman for the governor. "It's the same kind of lack of concern for the truth and the facts that has spawned the present welfare mess which will surely lead to bankruptcy if the system is not totally reformed."

Bayh said he will introduce legislation to block Reagan from implementing part of his welfare "reform" program by use of special waivers in the federal law. He said it would be "illegal" for the Nixon administration to grant the waivers, but he will push legislation anyway to prevent it from happening.

"President Nixon and Gov. Reagan are trying to make political capital out of human misery by a demagogic misinterpretation of the facts," Bayh told a news conference on the second day of a pre-presidential campaign swing.

Denying that recipients are "lazy," Bayh said 80 per cent are either children, the aged or totally disabled. Most of the rest are eith full-time, mothers, employed or seeking work. Only one-half per cent, he said, "can and should be working."

"But thanks to the economic policies of the Nixon administration," he continued, "they must compete in a job market that has more than 5 million Americans unemployed."

Bayh did, however, "salute" Nixon for his welfare "reform" bill and said it offers "a decided improvement" over the present situation. He said if the plan is enacted, it will "take the governor's welfare 'reform' out of the picture."

Nixon's proposal — criticized by Reagan as too liberal — would provide a $2,400 income floor for a family of four.

"In an unusually strong attack on Reagan from an out-of-stater, Bayh charged "I think Gov. Reagan realizes that the people of the country are fed up on welfare. And instead of suggesting a positive alternative and biting the bullet, he is trying to inflame them and take political advantage of it."

A spokesman for the governor later commented, "he obviously hasn't read our program. Because if he did, he would realize that those on welfare with little or no outside income — those who need assistance the most — would receive an even higher welfare grant than they're now receiving."

Bayh has not formally declared his candidacy and stopped short of doing it Friday.

The Indianan said he believes there is a "possibility" Nixon will not stand for re-election.

✔ LOOKING FOR SOMETHING just a little different? We have 2 westside view homes overlooking Petaluma and Sonoma Mountains. Both have 4 bedrooms, dining rooms, fireplaces. Owners may carry financing to qualified buyers. $43,000 and $45,000.

✔ POINTS ARE UP, but you can assume an excellent existing FHA loan on this choice eastside Circle home. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, family room. Seller will carry back a second, mortgage, and you can move in with a small down payment. $26,500.

✔ EXCEPTIONALLY NICE 3 bedroom, 2 bath home just 1 year old. Has all the extras with the exception of a dishwasher. Self-cleaning oven, lots of cabinets & storage. $23,800.

✔ THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL. Thinking swimming? This 15x32' heated pool is sheltered and secluded. Has lovely covered patio and dressing rooms. Also included: an extra-special 3 bedroom home with a spacious living room, large Sonoma stone fireplace, built-in vacuum system and a low maintenance yard. All this makes a wonderful buy for a family or couple that enjoy entertaining. $33,750.

Country Properties

MY BROTHER HAS SOME BEAUTIFUL LAND in the Sebastopol area, mostly in orchards, which would supply not only income but also depreciation. One parcel is 8.37 acres with well and pressure tank. The other has a nice, 2 bedroom home in the redwoods and 9.83 acres of apples. Both parcels will be owner-financed by 25% down payment.

Townhouse Plan Due Discussion

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for development of 80 townhouse units in San Marin at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Standard Growth Properties plans to construct the units on the north side of San Marin Drive between San Carlos Way and Simmons Lane.

The commission also will consider a master plan for the Ignacio Boulevard and Alameda Del Prado.

Wrong Booking

A mistake in an Independent-Journal story yesterday made it seem that John Lee Storz of San Anselmo had been booked into Juvenile Hall. Actually, Storz's car was burglarized, and Patrick Shane Myers, 13, of San Anselmo, was booked on suspicion of committing the crime.

SPECIAL SUNDAY SCHOOL — Kathy Dillman (left) and her husband John (right), both students at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry, assist children in a new Sunday School program at Tiburon Baptist Church. The school, launched by Mrs. David B. Friesen of Mill Valley, is designed for the educationally handicapped child and according to Mrs. Friesen has proved highly successful.

TIBURON BAPTIST CHURCH

A Special Sunday School

By GIL GILBREATH
Tiburon Baptist Church

A Sunday School that kids don't want to leave when the time is up — even for Sunday fried chicken?

This may sound like a far cry from the memory verse and golden rule days.

But at the Tiburon Baptist Church there is at least one class that doesn't fit the old mold. Unfortunately, the membership is limited.

No, not to rich kids, or poor kids, or smart or dumb kids. But limited to what the director, Mrs. David B. Friesen, calls "educationally handicapped children." She defines the term as "any child who doesn't seem to fit into regular classes, for one reason or another."

Mrs. Friesen got started in the business of running a specialized Sunday School because of her own adopted 6-year-old Mike, who is deaf and wears a brace on one leg. Mike is a victim of the rubella epidemic that hit expectant mothers in this country in 1964-65.

He is a very sharp and determined little boy who likes to "rough it up" with Mrs. Friesen and who is making rapid progress in lip reading and speech. One of his first phrases was "I love you," in reply to Friesen's "I love you, Mike."

The opportunity to fill such a vital community need came less than a year ago when Tiburon Baptist pastor Dr. Jerry Ashby visited the Friesens after they had attended his church.

Mrs. Friesen lamented the family's problem in going to church because of Mike's difficulty in fitting into the usual children's program — "he was going through a very noisy phase then." (He still has a pair of well-used lungs).

She told the pastor, half in earnest, "It looks like we are just going to have to open up our own church."

"You come to our church and we'll make a place for Mike," Dr. Ashby promised. And the new class was born.

What better director for the new class than Mrs. Friesen? She knew several other families in circumstances similar to hers who were delighted to hear of a church which could serve all their family, or would gladly take their children whether the parents remained or not.

Now the class has six pupils and three assistant teachers. The class for the handicapped meets at the church worship hour so that parents may, if they wish, attend services. John and Kathy Dillman, Golden Gate Seminary students, and Bob Carleton, who is completing a master's degree in psychology at San Francisco State, are extremely helpful and understanding with children.

Each Sunday one or two children from the regular classes (it's a contest to see which ones) join the special class to give us good balance, Mrs. Friesen explains. And, "I never cease to be amazed at how beautifully these little people respond to the particular needs of our handicapped children."

What is it about the class that makes the kids so happy to be in Sunday School?

"We help them to understand that God loves them and that we love them," the leader says. "That's all we can do."

What more, one might ask, is there to be done?

Mrs. Friesen explains further that the program is a "very unstructured" mixture of art work of all kinds, games, stories, "rhythm band" — mostly home-made percussion instruments, and setting the table for snacks: "One little girl who doesn't always participate in activities just loves to set the table."

Mrs. Friesen's know-how with children is not accidental. She and her husband, who live in a vine-covered home at 540 Ethel Street in Mill Valley, have cared for "more than 100" foster children over the last 30 years while rearing two of their own. Even since adopting Mike, they have continued to help care for the County's homeless children when they felt the need demanded it.

Already the "new class" at Tiburon Baptist is outgrowing its space, and they do need a room with an adjoining restroom, but the workers say "The Lord will provide — doesn't He always?"

OBSERVES — Mrs. David B. Friesen of Mill Valley, who directs a special Sunday School program for educationally handicapped children at Tiburon Baptist Church, observes the work of one of her students.

Consortium Chief Picked

WASHINGTON, D.C. (LC) — Dr. Lloyd E. Sheneman, professor of Christian Education at Lutheran Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa., will become the first director of the Washington Theological Consortium on Sept. 1.

The consortium, comprising all the major Roman Catholic and Protestant theological schools in the Washington area, as well as Gettysburg, was established in 1967 to explore ways of mutual assistance and the development of common programs.

Its coordinating committee, composed of its presidents and deans, announced the selection of Dr. Sheneman as its new director.

Dr. Sheneman, a native of Kansas, holds degrees from the University of Kansas, the Lutheran Seminary at Philadelphia and Yale University.

Since 1964, he has been a member of the faculty at the seminary in Gettysburg. In addition to his teaching responsibilities, he has served for two years as director of field work and for two years as acting dean of the seminary.

Arrest Is Surprise

LIBERTY, Mo. (UPI)—Clay County Proscutor William S. Brandon said Friday he was surprised his son, Bill, was arrested in a series of Missiouri drug raids coordinated by the prosecutor.

Jacobsen Will Be Installed As Pastor

A celebrative service of worship will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday when the Presbytery of the Redwoods will install the Rev. David C. Jacobsen as pastor of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church.

The service will be followed by a spaghetti dinner prepared and served by Jacobsen.

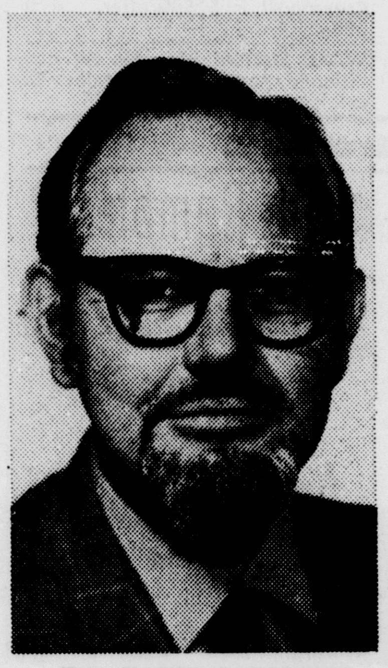
Participating in the ceremonies will be officers of the church, clergy and laymen from other Southern Marin churches, and city officials.

Jacobsen returned to the pulpit as full-time pastor in March on nomination by the congregation after devoting a year to teaching at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo and to a practice in family counseling.

He had served the Sausalito congregation for nine and a half years prior to March 1970.

Jacobsen attended public schools in Los Angeles and graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles. He received his Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1947 from San Francisco Theological Seminary.

During his first two years in Sausalito, he earned his master of theology degree, cum laude, from the seminary. From 1962-68 he was administrative assistant in the departments of field education and pastoral psychology at the seminary.



Rev. DAVID JACOBSEN
To Sausalito post

While on leave from the Sausalito church and the seminary in 1968, Jacobsen served as a visiting professor at Colgate Rochester Divinity School in New York. Since his return to Marin County he has held the position of assistant professor of ministries at the seminary.

Monsignor Dullea To Mark Anniversary

A Jubilee Mass will be celebrated by Msgr. Edward M. Dullea in honor of the 25th anniversary of his ordination tomorrow at St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae.

Since his ordination, Dullea has spent almost his entire career in Marin County and has been principal of Marin Catholic High School since June 1962.

A native of San Francisco, Dullea was graduated from St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, and was ordained at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco on June 15, 1946.

His first assignment was at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, where he served as assistant pastor from July 1946 until June, 1950. He then was in residence for a short time at St. Rita's Church, Fairfax, prior to going to Catholic University, Washington, D.C., for postgraduate work until August 1951.

After returning from Washington, Dullea was assigned to the faculty of Marin Catholic High School from 1951 to 1961, becoming acting principal in 1961 and principal in 1962.

On Feb. 21, 1964 he was conferred monsignor by Pope Paul VI.

The jubilee mass will be held at 2 p.m. and a reception will follow at the Marin Catholic High School.

The various organizations connected with the school — the Marin Catholic Women's Club, the Booster's Club and the Friends of Marin all join together in inviting their members, and all the members of the alumni to attend the mass and reception.

Benefit Concert For Building

A benefit concert for the building fund of the Greenbrae Mormon Church will be presented on May 28 at 8 p.m. in the chapel of the church located at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Bon Air Road.

Performing will be soprano Joan Smith, violinist Donna Salarpi and pianist Janice Gardner.

They will present a program of works by Bach, Mozart, Vivaldi and Rodrigo and arrangements of old favorites by Johann Strauss and Fritz Kreisler.

ALC Women Give $100,000 To Society

NEW YORK (LC) — Thanks to its women's auxiliary, the American Lutheran Church was the third largest giver among 60 communions that supported the work of the American Bible Society in 1970.

The 2.5 million-member ALC's contribution amounted to $134,358, it was reported at the society's 155th annual meeting here, including $100,000 from the American Lutheran Church Women, whose first executive director is now a departmental officer of the ABS.

New Dean At Seminary Announced

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Dr. Claude Welch has been appointed dean of the Graduate Theological Union, effective July 1, it was announced this week.

For the past 11 years, Dr. Welch has been Berg Professor and chairman of the department of religious thought at the University of Pennsylvania.

During the past two years, he has also directed a critical appraisal of all graduate programs in religion in the United States and Canada for the American Council of Learned Societies.

In making the announcement, Dr. John Dillenberger, GTU president, said; "Claude Welch is an excellent administrator with educational vision and with the most thorough knowledge of the educational scene in religion in the U.S."

Welch has been active in theological commissions of the World Council of Churches and more recently a member of the first mixed Catholic and Protestant theological commission dealing with the subjects of apostolicity and catholicity. He is an ordained Methodist minister.

Church Education

SANTIAGO (LFW) — Increased participation in the adult education program of the Protestant Audio-Visual Center (CAVE) in Chile is being planned by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Chile.

AT HUB CHURCH

Arts Festival For Pentecost

An arts festival in celebration of Pentecost will open Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo with an orchestra and organ concert at 8 p.m.

Stephen Golden, violinist with the Kensington Trio, will conduct an orchestra composed of violinists Sue McClees, Mark Jordan, Noriko Sano and James Jenkins; violists Mabel Pittenger and Jean Harris, and cellists Michele Bergman and Chris Jennings.

GUEST ORGANIST

Wilbur F. Russell, professor of music at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be the organist. He will play with the orchestra in the C.P.E. Bach Concerto in E Flat and the allegro from the J.S. Bach Concerto in D Minor for Organ and Orchestra.

Solo organ numbers will be a presentation of Bach's Pentecost chorale, "Komm Gott Heiliger Geist," and Toccata and Fugue in D Minor and six pieces for Mechanical Clock Organ by C. P. E. Bach.

The following evening, at 7:30 p.m., the church's drama workshop will present a pair of one-act plays, directed by Jack Randall.

"Helena's Husband" is a light farce based on the legend of Helen of Troy, and "Santa Claus", a poetic drama by e.e. cummings, is concerned with the battle between life and death and the need for faith in order to overcome the problems of our society.

PENTECOST SUNDAY

On Pentecost Sunday, May 30, the morning worship hour at 10 a.m. will include communion, as well as a special anthem for Pentecost by Richard Felciano, noted Bay Area composer, for electronic tape, organ, and choir.

Following worship, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., there will be a display of original art works by members of 11 Presbyterian congregations in Marin. The exhibit will be in Landon Court.

NEW LEADER — Mrs. Marcus Rohlfs of Seattle, Wash., has been elected president of the American Baptist Convention. Her election came last weekend at the group's annual meeting in Minneapolis.

Terra Linda Pastor Is Assembly Delegate

Rev. James Upshaw of Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda is serving as a delegate to the United Presbyterian Church, USA, General Assembly currently in session in Rochester, N.Y.

Upshaw is representing the Redwoods Presbytery, a unit of the Synod of the Golden Gate. The assembly will conclude Wednesday.

Director Of Program Will Speak

Dr. Arthur V. Thurman, program director for 400 Northern California Methodist churches, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the 11 a.m. service at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Thurman, who has held his present post since 1969, will speak on "Hope Is A Fact, Too!"

Prior to his present job, he served pastorates in California, Nevada, Indiana and Massachusetts and was district superintendent for Methodist churchs in the South Francisco East Bay from 1961 to 1967. He holds an honorary doctorate of divinity degrees from the University of Pacific and the Pacific School of Religion.

Richard A. Christensen, student associate at the church, will assist Thurman.

Storybook Ending As Marin Catholic Wins Title

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season came to a storybook close last night as the upstart Marin Catholic High School Wildcats won the championship, defeating Terra Linda, 7-4, before an overflow crowd of nearly 2,000 persons at San Rafael's Albert Park.

The Wildcats struck for six runs in the third inning to give pitcher Tom Olson, the only senior in the lineup, the support he needed to go the distance for his league-leading seventh win of the year. It was the Kentfield school's 10th victory against three losses, and gave it the flag by one-half game over Novato.

Actually, Marin Catholic took over first place for good by percentage points late yesterday afternoon, when San Rafael handed once-mighty Novato its third loss in the last four games. The Novato Hornets led the MCAL all the way until yesterday, and in fact had a two and one-half game lead on the rest of the league with four games to go.

Even after losing yesterday Novato had a chance to win through the back door — if Terra Linda knocked off Marin Catholic — but the Wildcats had too much momentum, and it seemed as if fate was with them as they won their final six games.

Last night's contest was no contest after the third inning, when 12 Wildcats strode to the plate. Only two hits, a run-scoring double by Don Bianchini and a to left by Mickey Hurley, were recorded during the outburst, but the Trojans ruined themselves with a pair of errors and five walks.

After the second walk of the inning forced in the sixth Wildcat run, Trojan starter Mike Sabel gave way to Scott Seefeldt, who presided over another run before getting out of the inning. Seefeldt, who worked seven and two-thirds innings of no-hit ball on Tuesday, was understandably tired and wild, so Sabel came back under the MCAL's reentry rule in the next inning and finished the game with no further trouble.

Trouble was Olson's middle name as he spent most of the game pitching from the "stretch" position with runners on base. The Trojans never went down in order, and in fact loaded the bases in the last three innings.

But the Trojans couldn't seem to take advantage of their opportunities. It was significant that, although they got their leadoff runner aboard in each of the final four innings, they only brought two around to score.

One was in the seventh, when Bill Sherbert walked to start things. Jerry Seefeldt then hit into an error, Mike Sanderson singled to load the bases, and successive force outs scored Sherbert and Seefeldt.

Sanderson's single was his third hit of the night. He also singled and scored in the second on Jim Codington's first of two doubles, and tripled and scored in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Sable. Marin Catholic's Bianchini also had three hits, and scored a pair of runs.

SWING AND A MISS — Marin Catholic High catcher Paul Riccardi got set to block a low curve ball from pitcher Tom Olson that fooled Terra Linda's Rick Trono in the first inning last night in San Rafael. Olson struck out Trono, and went the distance to bring the Wildcats a 7-4 victory and the Marin County Athletic League baseball championship.

Mays Can Beat The Babe's Home Run Record, Says Fox

HOUSTON (UPI) — Willie Mays will break Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 for a career if he plays three more years, Manager Charlie Fox of the San Francisco Giants said Friday.

Mays, 40, has hit eight homers this season for a career total of 636, second only to Ruth. Fox said Mays is having a tremendous season so far.

He said he rests Mays every so often, but has no set pattern.

"A leprechaun comes and taps me on the shoulder and says maybe I should go talk to him," Fox said. "If I can get 120 games out of him, I'll be satisfied and I hope we can get four or five more years from him. If he goes three more years, he'll break the record."

Fox said Mays probably will play two of the three games in this weekend series with the Houston Astros. He said Mays probably would miss Sunday's game so he could have almost three consecutive days rest. The Giants have an open date Monday and don't play until Tuesday night.

Fox said Mays could prolong his career by playing first base, but "we got a guy named Willie McCovey there."

Mays played first earlier this season when McCovey was injured and Mays loved it, Fox said.

"Put Willie in a new position and he's like a kid with a new toy," Fox said. "He wants to show you he could have played that position all along, too."

Fox said the Giants' outfield of Mays, Ken Henderson and Bobby Bonds with George Foster in reserve for Mays is the best one he has ever seen in baseball.

"All can run, throw and field and hit with power," Fox said.

TOE BE OR NOT TOE BE

Cobbler's Best Friend Hurls Astros Over S.F.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Larry Dierker has an old pair of baseball spikes that most players would throw away, and so would Dierker, normally.

But these shoes are something special to the big Astro righthander even though they have a hole in the pitching toe big enough for the inner sole to slide through. He wore more than an inch off the inner sole in beating the striking San Frnacisco Giants 4-1 Friday night.

"I ain't going to switch shoes while I'm winning," Dierker said. "I'll either wear them 'til they fall apart or 'til i start losing."

Dierker, who has a 7-1 record, may work the cobbler overtime to keep those shoes together. He struck out nine Giants including Willie Mays twice and didn't walk anyone in his latest triumph.

But he needed help from Fred Gladding in the ninth when the Giants loaded the bases on three singles. Gladding an Joe Morgan who turned it into a game ending double play.

The only time the Giants scored off Dierker was in the fourth on singles by Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier and a sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey. They loaded the bases with two out in the seventh but Dierker got pinchhitter Frank Healy, who is hitting .875 by going 7-for-8, to ground out to end the threat.

Norm Miller, in a rare start, lined a bases loaded double over le fielder George Foster's head to highlight a three-run fourth inning for the Astros. Foster turned to the right to catch the ball, but it sliced over his left shoulder to the wall as two runs scored.

Loser Gaylord Perry, 4-2, started the inning by hitting Jesus Alou, and Bob Watson was safe on an error by second baseman Tito Fuentes. John Mayberry walked and Miller drove in Alou and Watson with the double. Mayberry scored on a single by John Edwards.

The Astros scored a run in the third, again with Foster's help. Doug Rader doubled, went to third on a single by Roger Metzger and scored when Foster fumbled the ball.

Don Wilson, 4-2, starts the second game of the series for the Astros tonight against Rich Robertson, 1-2.

FINAL TRIALS

'Bumping' Process Begins For '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Seven spots still open in the lineup for next Saturday's Indianapolis "500" were expected to be filled rather quickly today with the traditional "bumping" to follow.

This is the last weekend for qualifications for the $1 million race, the world's richest auto event. Near-ideal weather conditions were forecast for today and the outlook said any shower activity should not come until after time trials end Sunday.

Once the 33-car field is filled, the "bumping" begins, with faster cars knocking slower ones out of the lineup. Drivers sidelined in this manner still can look elsewhere for a "ride" in hopes of qualifying another machine for the 55th Indianapolis classic.

Among veteran drivers still seeking starting berths were Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., Johnny Rutherford of Forth Worth, Tex., Wally Dallenbach of East Brunswick, N.J., Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., Larry Dickson, Marietta, Ohio, Jim Hurtubise, North Tonawanda, N.Y., George Snider, Bakersfield, Calif., and Arnie Knepper, Belleville, Ill.

San Rafael Jolts Novato Out Of The Championship

Brilliant Pitching Battle

Despite a complete game of no-hit relief by incredibly overworked Dave Judnick, the Novato High School Hornets lost to San Rafael High, 2-1 yesterday to seal their own coffin in the Marin County Athletic League baseball race.

Had they won, the Hornets would have been league champions. But the Bulldogs, and especially John Klingler, played the spoiler role perfectly, to allow Marin Catholic to win the pennant last night by beating Terra Linda. Klingler stopped Novato on three hits, before some 400 fans at Albert Park.

Judnick, who pitched seven innings last Friday night in a loss to Marin Catholic and six and two-thirds innings of relief Tuesday in a win over Redwood, threw possibly the best game of his career, all for naught.

He came on to spell starter Mike Lamb in the bottom of the first, inheriting a bases-loaded situation with nobody out and a run in. Lamb had given up leadoff singles to Dave Urquhart and Jim Thorne, and Dirk Gansloser and Holt Greene had then walked to force home Urquhart.

Judnick fanned the first two men he saw. He let up slightly, walking Pete Treanor to force home Thorne, but then he settled down, and with a blazing fastball and magnificent control, pitched nearly perfect baseball the rest of the way. The only base runner off him was Gary Nelson on a seventh inning base-on-balls.

Klingler, while less amazing, was the best he has been all year, and his teammates gave him some timely defensive support. Double plays with Mike Spezzi in the pivot twice eliminated leadoff runners, and Greene made a diving catch in rightfield to save a run in the top of the seventh.

The Hornets managed only three hits off Klingler — a clean single by Randy Jackson, a double by Art Herrnberger, and an infield hit by John Kidder. Herrnberger scored their only run on a balk in the third inning, when Klingler forgot to

TWIN KILLING — Second baseman Mike Spezzi of San Rafael High made the pivot to force Novato's Jerry Johnson and threw to first in time for a double play yesterday afternoon in the fifth inning at Albert Park. It was the Bulldogs' second twin killing of the game, and helped lead to a 2-1 victory over the Hornets.

Russ Cage Team Tops U.S. Pros

CINCINNATI (UPI)—A touring Russian Olympic basketball team extended its record in the United States to 6-0 Friday night as it beat a team of top pro draft choices in a game where five players fouled out.

The Russians produced three men in double figures as did the Americans, as the visitors scored a 97-85 win. A total of 74 fouls were called through international rules.

Protestors from the Jewish Community Relations Council of Cincinnati paraded outside the Cincinnati Gardens before the game protesting the treatment of Jews in Russia.

Spectators ignored the protestors and no incidents resulted outside.

The only disturbance reported was at the start of the Russian national anthem when four persons in various sections of the Gardens began playing musical instruments. But they were quickly subdued by spectators around them, and guards escorted them away.

Cincinnati Royals top draft choice John Mengelt led the Americans with 27 points, while George Spencer had 12 and Darnel Hillman 11.

Knudson Leads Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Canadian George Knudson, whose back is feeling better these days and who has helped his putting with one of those new-fangled "Potato Masher" putters, seemed to be playing in a daze during Friday's second round of the Colonial National Invitation.

The wind was gusting to 25 miles an hour over the long, tree-laden Colonial Country Club course, sending scores soaring, but Knudson calmly strolled around in a one-under-par 69 for a two-day total of four-under-par 136 and a one-stroke lead over Jack Montgomery.

Then he had the gall to say: "The wind was not really all that bad. I didn't even realize it was blowing."

Some of those just behind Knudson noticed the wind, however.

"It was swirling in all sorts of directions," said Lee Trevi-

MRS. BOWMAN IS BEATEN IN CAL GOLF

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — For the second time in as many tries, Mary Elizabeth Shea of Los Angeles is the winner of the California State Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss Shea, the 1969 titlist, carded a birdie two on the 33rd hole at Woodland Hills Country Club Friday for a 5 and 3 victory over defending champion Carol Bowman of San Rafael.

Miss Shea, the tournament medalist, held a 2 up advantage at the halfway point with a four-over-par 76 in the morning round to Mrs. Bowman's 79.

In addition to last year, Mrs. Bowman won the state amateur crown in 1965, 1966 and 1967.

Runaway For A's? Rigney Chuckles

OAKLAND (UPI) —Bill Rigney, the Minnesota Twins manager, laughed when he came to town Friday and read about how the Oakland A's were running away with the American League West race.

And when his team got through whipping the A's 10-1 Friday night behind a four-hitter by 20-year-old Bert Blyleven, Rigney had all he could do to keep from breaking up.

"It's a little foolish," he said, "To start talking about how one team or another has things locked up in May. We have 130 games to go and I'll guarantee you once I get my pitching staff straightened out we'll be right there in the race."

Friday night's victory moved the Twins, who won the A.L. West last year, to within 5-1-2 games of the A's and today the two teams went at it again with Jim Kaat (3-2) pitching for the Twins and Jim Hunter (7-2) for the A's. On Sunday it will be Jim Perry (5-3) against Vida Blue (9-1).

The Twins jumped sore-armed John Odom for three runs on three hits and three walks in the first inning Friday and kept right on rolling against three successors, finishing up with 11 hits, including a pair of homers by the light-hitting George Mitterwald and one by rookie Steve Braun, his first in the big leagues.

Odom, who came off the disabled list on May 8, threw 37 pitches in the first inning before manager Dick Williams felt he saw enough, Rollie Fingers got the final out of the first and pitched through the sixth, giving up three hits and two more runs. The Twins reached Jim Roland for two hits and two runs and Darold Knowles for three hits and three runs to complete the rout.

Blyleven, meanwhile, sailed along serenely. He lost his bid for a no-hitter in the fourth when Reggie Jackson beat out a roller to second. The second hit off him came in the fifth when Dave Duncan outlegged a chopper to third.

In the sixth, Bert Campaneris nailed a high inside fastball for his third homer and Jackson doubled in the ninth for the final Oakland hit.

"It was one of my better games this year," said Blyleven, "but it wasn't my best. I pitched three shutouts before this game but this was the first time I got a lot of hitting help."

In his previous victories Blyleven won by scores of 1-0 twice, 3-2 and 2-0.

Redwood High Soph Sparks Giants To Win Over Tam

By PAUL CANE

The Redwood High School baseball team, led by the three-for-four hitting of sophomore Mike Connor, soundly dumped the Tamalpais Indians 9-3 yesterday in a somewhat lackadaisical Marin County Athletic League contest in Larkspur.

Center-fielder Connor, batting-cleanup for the Giants, pounded three sharp singles to pace the Redwood attack.

Although the Indians drew first blood on two singles, a stolen base and an error in the top of the first inning, the Giants tallied three times in the second and four times in the third to wrap up their seventh MCAL win of the year.

Winning pitcher John Moresco helped himself in the second by knocking a line single to right-center field to score Bob Brown and Daryl Edralin for two Giant runs.

Tam's right fielder Clifford Hall collected two base hits and scored a pair of runs to highlight Indian scoring, while catcher Bill Rudolph picked up all three of Tam's runs-batted-in on two singles.

In the four-run third frame, Redwood collected only two hits, one by Connor and the other by shortstop Scott Barrie, but the Giants parlayed two Tam errors, two walks and a sacrifice bunt by Bob Brown into all the runs they were to lead.

Connor, who after an early season slump with the bat, has taken over a large part of Giant hitting duties, tallied two Redwood runs and stole a base to complete a fine afternoon's work on the last day of the 1971 MCAL season.

Tam, which finished 2-11 won-lost on the year, was unable to relieve tiring starter Mark Dawson in the later innings due to lack of manpower. Dawson was victimized in part by the six errors and nine of his own bases on balls.

Drake Star Blanks San Marin By 6-0

Pitching perhaps the finest game of his life, Drake High School's senior Moundsman Lex Rzepilia shut out the San Marin Mustangs on two hits yesterday to close out his high school career, as the 1971 Marin County Athletic League baseball season closed yesterday in Novato.

Rzepilia scattered two harmless singles from Jim Thompson and Steve Burnam as the Pirates blanked the Mustangs 6-0.

Drake scored quickly in the first and coasted the rest of the way under wraps as catcher Mike Bauman and left fielder John Loane smashed back-to-back doubles, followed by a costly error on second baseman Mike Bacho to tally two runs in the opening inning.

While Rzepilia was in the process of striking out eight against only a single base on balls, the Pirates went merrily on to score another run in the fourth and three in the sixth for the win, Rzepilia's fourth of the MCAL campaign.

senior first baseman Dave MacAusland ignited the three run rally in the sixth with a triple, and mark Shepherd dropped a perfect squeeze bunt in the fourth to score Bob Mayer from third for the other Drake run.

Marinite Cracks Homer, But Stanford Defeated

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—Washington State defeated Stanford, 4-2, Friday to earn a berth in the Pacific-8 Conference baseball championship finals against the University of Southern California.

The Cougars and Trojans met today. USC could win the title with a win in the first contest, but the Cougars need two wins to take the double elimination tournament.

The Cougars eliminated Stanford from the tournament with a three-run eighth inning rally after the Indians' Dave Edson of San Rafael gave his team an early lead with a solo homer in the opening frame.

The Cougars added an insurance run in the ninth and gave reliefer Ken Kollmyer his third victory against three defeats. Stanford starter Bruce Schoen took the loss, his fourth against five wins.

USC had handed Stanford its first defeat of the tourney earlier Friday with a 9-3 victory. The Trojans' pitcher, Steve Busby, scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning and got help in the later innings.

Met Pitcher Solves His Problems

By United Press International

"I now have control of myself mentally and physically."

The speaker was New York pitcher Nolan Ryan and the occasion was Ryan's fifth victory in six decisions, a 6-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Ryan's self-appraisal says a lot about the past and present performance of the 24-year-old right-hander with an immense amount of potential.

"Nolan throws harder than anyone I've ever seen," says teammate Bob Aspromonte who, when wearing Atlanta and Houston uniforms, had to face the young flame-thrower. "Now he's getting his curve over. he's just over-powering. He's got the potential to win 20 games very, very easily."

Ryan has, in the past, been hampered by a variety of injuries, streaks of wildness, mental lapses and periodic military reserve duty. This year he's free of physical problems, his concentration on the mound is good and, due to reassignment, he hasn't had any military duty of late.

"I've had a lot of ups and downs since I've been in the majors, so I think we'd better wait till the end of the season before deciding whether or not I've finally arrived," said Ryan, who allowed four hits, struck out seven, walked five, hit three and threw two wild pitches in reducing his ERA to 1.26 in 43 innings.

In other National League action, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 7-3, St. Louis took a 15-8 victory over San Diego, Houston defeated San Francisco, 4-1, Pittsburgh downed Montreal 6-2, and Los Angeles pounded out an 8-1 victory over Chicago.

Ryan's streaks of wildness are something he still has to contend with. He walked one and hit two to load the bases in the ninth before Danny Frisella came on to retire Orlando Cepeda on a grounder back to the mound to end the game. Ken Boswell, Aspromonte and Jerry Grote each drove in a pair of runs and Ed Kranpepool went 3-for-4 to lead the Mets offense.

Dave Concepcion hit his first home run and first double of the season to drive in four runs and Tony Cloninger allowed only three hits in his seven innings on the mound as a last-minute replacement for Jim McGlothlin, who came up with a tender elbow while warming up, as the Reds downed the Phillies.

Jose Cardenal and Joe Torre hit three-run homers in a game marred by nine errors as the Cardinals outhit the Padres 15-13. Ten of the Cardinals' 15 runs were unearned as the Padres had five errors and the Cards four.

Willie Stargell's three-run homer with one out in the 13th inning, his 14th of the year, lifted the Pirates past the Expos for the fifth victory in the last six games for Pittsburgh.

Jim Lefevbre's two-run single capped a four-run third-inning rally that highlighted the Dodgers' victory over the Cubs as Claude Osteen went the route for the sixth time this season and improved his record to 6-2.

Redwood Coach Honored

Bob Troppmann, athletic director at Redwood High School for all 13 years of its existence, has been honored with a distinguished servica award by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association, it was announced yesterday.

Troppmann, 47, will receive the award at a dinner June 11 at Atlanta, Ga., where prep coaches from throughout the country will be feted. The dinner is an annual event honoring excellence in coaching major sports - football, basketball, baseball, wrestling and track.

The NHLACA divides the country into eight districts for awards, including the one for distinguished service, and chooses one coach from every district for each catagory. Troppmann's district covers the entire West Coast. The distinguished service award is given for "outstanding achievement, contribution to the high school coaching profession and dedicated loyalty to the highest and best in amateur athletics."

Besides serving as athletic director at the Larkspur school, Troppmann was the football coach there for 12 years before resigning after the 1969 season. He began his coaching career at Richmond High in 1948, and went from there to San Francisco State and then to Drake High in San Anselmo before finally moving to Redwood in 1958.

He is married and has five children, two sons and three daughters. He lives in Corte Madera.

no, who was alone two shots behind Knudson with a two-under-par 138 over the par 35-35—70, 7,142-yard course.

"You could not get the timing down," said Homero Blancas, who shared the first round lead with Knudson before fading to a 73 Friday to be at even par 140. "The wind was swirling. Theoretically, it was behind us on one hole, but I swear it was blowing right in our face."

Behind Knudson's 136, Montgomery's 137 and Trevino's 138, came the twosome of Dave Stockton and Jerry McGee at one-under 139.

In addition to Blancas at 140 were Gene Littler, Ron Cerrudo of Napa and Fred Marti, who played along with Montgomery and finished just before sundown.

Montgomery matched Knudson's 69 Friday while Trevino shot a two-under-par 68 and then rushed off to Dallas to be with his critically-ill mother.

For the second straight day Knudson's putter saved him from a so-so round.

Knudson has switched to an oversize mallet head putter which has a white line drawn through the middle of it to help in sighting putts. He started using the putter three weeks ago, and although he putted terribly at Houston last week he stuck with the new blade this week.

After a super putting day Thursday, Knudson rolled in a 35-footer for a birdie on the 13th hole Friday, an eight-footer on the 15th and an eight-footer on the final hole. Those birds came after he three-putted the first green and bogeyed the 10th after putting his tee shot in the dense trees to the right of the fairway.

"That tee shot on 10 was my only bad shot all day," Knudson said. "I've been having back problems as well as golf problems, and it has just been in the past three weeks that it's felt like it is supposed to."

Now that he is feeling a little better and putting a little better, Knudson expects to move up in the money winnings. He currently ranks 93rd on the money winning list with $9,007.

Esposito, Hull Lead All-Stars

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —Phil Esposito, in the Eastern Divison, and Bobby Hull, in the West, were named Friday as Players of the Year as the Sporting News announced its National Hockey League All-Star teams.

Joining Esposito on the East squad were teammates, Bobby Orr, on defense, Ken Hodge at right wing and John Bucyk on left wing. Also chosen were Montreal's J.C. Tremblay on defense and New York's Ed Giacomin in goal.

Picked along with Hull were fellow Black Hawks Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton, Bill White and Tony Esposito and Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy.

Entries Now Open For Heart Tennis

Entries are now open for next month's third annual Tennis For Heart Tournament, to be played at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow.

The tournament, open to all Marin County residents, is set for June 12-13, and June 19-20, with proceeds going to the Marin County Heart Association. Entry blanks are available from the association.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Red Sox Beat Baltimore At Own Game — Lead By 4

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

It was the kind of game the Baltimore Orioles used to win.

Trailing Jim Lonborg 4-2 going into the ninth inning, the defending World Champions knocked him out and scored the tying run on a wild pitch to send the game into extra innings.

It looked like the Boston Red Sox had blown their chance to get a jump on the Orioles in the opener of a four-game series in Baltimore.

But this isn't 1969 or 1970. In fact, it seems more like 1967. The Red Sox weren't disheartened by the Oriole rally and came right back with four runs in the 10th to grab an 8-4 triumph.

The O's who led the Eastern Division by 5 1-2 games last May 21, now trail Boston by four games. The O's still say they're not worried but it may be time to get a bit concerned.

Boston manager Eddie Kasco, predictably, was beaming after the victory. "This victory meant a lot to our players because it proved three things," Kasco said.

1. "We can come back to beat them."
2. "We can beat them in their own park."
3. "And most important, we can't leave town without being in first place."

There were several good omens for the Red Sox. Loneborg, trying to make a comeback after being sent to the minors at the start of this season, was brilliant in his first start as he allowed just six hits in 8 2-3 innings.

The trades the Sox made over the winter continued to look good, too. Duane Josephson, obtained from Chicago, drove in four runs with a pair of solo homers and a two-run single in the 10th. Ken Tatum, obtained from California, wild pitched in the tying run in the ninth but hung on for the victory.

Things looked bad for the Red Sox in the ninth when Brooks Robinson singled and Dave Johnson doubled him home Clay Dalrymple and wild pitched home the tying run before getting the third out.

But in the 10th Luis Aparicio got life on an error and went to third on Reggie Smith's single. Rico Petrocelli doubled in the tie-breaking run and Josephson's two-run single was good insurance.

In the other A.L. games, Minnesota routed Oakland 10-1, Chicago blanked California 3-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 1-0 and Cleveland outlasted New York 8-7. The Milwaukee-Kansas City game was rained out when Milwaukee was two outs away from a 4-1 victory in the fifth inning.

Tom Bradley pitched a five-hitter for his third shoutout as Chicago downed California. Bill Melton and Tom Egan homered for the Sox.

Dean Chance and Fred Scherman combined on a three-hitter to give Detroit the victory over Cleveland. Chance went 7 2-3 innings for his first victory after six losses and allowed all three hits.

New York took a 7-6 lead in the top of the ninth on Danny Cater's two-out, two-run single but Cleveland came back with run-scoring singles by Eddie Leon and pinch-hitter Gomer Hodge.

Dee Andros Denies New Job Offer

SEATTLE (UPI) —Oregon State football coach Dee Andros has his relatives "all in a dither" about the possibility of his becoming Oklahoma athletic director, but his immediate family looks at it differently.

"There's a lot of ifs and ands," said Andros of the report he is under consideration for the post at his alma mater in Norman, Okla. "I haven't been offered anything and I'm very reluctant to terminate my coaching career at this time. My family has been very happy in Corvallis."

Andros, attending a meeting of Pacific-8 coaches here, is one of six men under consideration for the athletic director post. Another is University of Washington coach Jim Owens.

"My relatives are all in a dither," said Andros. "An Oklahoma City television station announced that I was in Norman for interviews.

"It took me a while to convince them that I hadn't come home without letting them know."

Andros has his mother, Brother Plato, who played with Dee on coach Bud Wilkinson teams of the late 1940s, and "a whole bunch of cousins, aunts and uncles all over the place" in Oklahoma.

Beaver Athletic Director Jim Barratt indicated he would not stand in Andros' way for the Oklahoma job, even though he had a three year contract with OSU.

Marin Softball Team Captures Title In S.F.

Joe Nystom pitched a two-hitter and Rich Manteuffel hit a home run and single to lead Suburban Auto of San Rafael to a 3-0 victory over Nite Life of San Francisco last night, giving the Marin County team the championship in the San Francisco Spring Class "A" Softball League.

This marks the sixth consecutive title for the team, the previous five under the sponsorship of Paul Koss Supply Co.

Lu Sharp Bowls 626 And 614

Lu Sharp, 175 average bowler from San Anselmo, had herself quite a week of bowling.

At Greenbrae Lanes she rolled a 626 three-game series and at Nave Lanes in Ignacio she rolled a 614. Her Nave score was high among the women there, but her 626 trailed Bea Hoffmann's 634.

High scores for the men came from Ray Miller, a 699 at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, and Stan Walker, 685 at Greenbrae.

Country Club Bowl has announced it will be closed next Wednesday and Thursday for lane resurfacing.

The week's honor roll:

GREENBRAE LANES

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Declarer Never Has To Make A Conventional Lead

When you're a defender, you lead in such a way as to tell your partner something about your holding in the suit. You lead the top of a sequence of honors (the king from K-Q, and so on); or fourth-best from a broken suit. When you're the declarer, you don't have to inform the dummy about the nature of your hand. You can lead whatever you please.

TOURNEY PLAY

When today's hand was played in a tournament some years ago, practically all of the North-South players got to four spades, and all of the West players began by taking the three top clubs. As a result, South always needed the rest of the tricks to make his contract.

At pratically all tables, South won the fourth trick and began the trumps by leading the queen of spades for a finesse. West naturally covered with the king, and dummy's ace won.

Now South had no way of knowing how the trumps were breaking. He led the four of trumps from dummy and won with the jack in his own hand, discovering too late that West had no more trumps.

NO WAY TO RECOVER

South could not recover from this bad break. He had to lose a trump trick to the nine, and the game contract went down.

Just one or two players knew that South, as declarer, was under no compulsion to lead conventionally for the first finesse in spades. The alert declarers began the spades by leading the ten instead of the queen from the South hand.

WEST COVERS

When West covered with the king, it was dollars to doughnuts that West had the singleton king, since West would not normally cover the ten if he had a low trump in his hand. Armed with this knowledge, declarer could lead dummy's low trump and take a finesse with the eight of spades on the second round of trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♥ - K
♥ - 8 5 4
♦ - 8 7 4 3
♣ - A K Q 9 7.
What do you say?
ANSWER: Pass.

Most experts do not consider this kind of hand worth an opening bid. If the king of spades were guarded by any low spade, you would open with one club, but the singleton king is simply not worth full value as a high card and also an additional value as a singleton.

Eye-Opening Survey Of Traffic Hazards

NEW YORK (UPI) —The nation's optometrists put themselves in the driver's seat to help uncover troublesome vision factors involved in night driving. The national survey of O.D.s conducted by the American Optometric Association and Potters Industries, Inc., says color blindness (protanopia) gives those affected "difficulty" in distinguishing red signals, stop lights and tail lights.

Biggest "irritants," according to the driving optometrists: too many cars on the road, headlight glare, inadequate pavement markings and unsafe autos.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, May 22, the 142nd day of 1971.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. There is no evening star.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Gemini.

On this day in history:

In 1868 the "Great Train Robbery'' took place as seven members of the Reno Gang stole $98,000 from an express car at Marshfield, Ind.

In 1924 discovery of the body of 13-year-old Bobby Franks in Chicago led to the arrest of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb. They were sentenced to 99 years in prison. Loeb was killed by another convict in 1936. Leopold was released on parole in 1958.

In 1943 Russia announced dissolution of the Communist International founded in 1919 to promote world revolution.

A thought for today: Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Happy is the house that shelters a friend."

Mark Belongings To Aid Recovery

DALLAS (UPI)—One of the best ways to aid law enforcement officials in their search for stolen property is to have your initials or a serial number engraved on such personal belongings as television sets, stereos, athletic equipment, guns and other valuables.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association (TIAA) notes victims who can provide a record of such numbers or initials stand a much better chance of recovering property and will find it simpler to fill out insurance claims.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Little News But The Rail Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — A two-day national strike by railway signalmen generally depressed business thie week with the result the significant news was rather scarce.

The strike ended after Congress granted the signalmen an interim wage increase of 13.5 per cent. The signalmen cannot walk out again before Oct. 31.

The steel industry wage nego-

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Little News But The Rail Strike

tiations opened in Washington and at once there were predictions that the 13.5 per cent raise used to halt the rail strike may be adopted by the steelworkers as a contract target.

The stell pact expires in August and there is comparatively little optimism about the chance of averting a steel strike.

The stock market plunged sharply Monday on the rail strike news and drifted the rest of the week in slow trading. Dun & Bradstreet said retail trade was up 5 to 9 per cent from a year ago on the average across the country.

Industrial output gained 0.3 per cent in April on top of the 0.2 per cent rise in March. Housing starts wer disclosed to have fallen 2.4 per cent in April.

Most of the rest of such news as was available was on the discouraging side. The U.S. balance of payments deficit was disclosed to have widened to $5.51 illion in the first quarter. Treasury Secretary John Connally said low interest rates in the country, causing investment funds to flee abroad, were partly responsible.

As if in answer to this, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns said he was opposed to measures that would cause interest rates to go up specifically in order to ease the international balance of payments problem. Burns said restoring price stability at home is much more important and low interest rates contribute to that.

However, short term interest rates did show signs of rising.

But the Treasury's monetary gold stock dropped $229 million and holdings of U.S. securities by the Federal Reserve Banks for foreign accounts which are potential claims against the gold stock, again rose sharply.

Chile announced it was nationalizing the El Teniente copper mine of Kennecott Corp., the world's largest. Aanaconda Co. had a 57 per cent drop in profit for the first quarter from last year as a result of loss of its Chilean copper properties.

The Anaconda annual meeting was told that Congress may have to vote additional expropriation insurance funds if Chile's payments for nationalized American properties do not come up to expectations.

The Senate buried the supersonic transport program, 58-37. It was clear that one factor in the Nixon administration's defeat on the SST was that neither of the two prime contractors, Boeing and General Electric, was eager to see it revived. General Eelectric was disclosed to feel that the noise problem of the engine would be much harder to lick than originally anticipated, while both firms apparently felt putting the SST program back together would cost much more than Congress would be willing to pay

Four Injured In Car Crash

Four Petaluma residents were injured last night when the car they were riding in hit a road divider on Bodega Highway and overturned.

The California Highway Patrol reported Harold Nelson, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, lost control of his car as he was driving west on Bodega near Tomales Road. He was treated for multiple bruises on the face and hips at Hillcrest Hospital.

Admitted to the hospital were three passengers in the car: Lee Hubbard, 19, of 47 Burlington Drive, with head injuries; Beverly Farrall, 18, of 4545 Petaluma Boulevard North, back pain, and William Black, 23, of Two Rock Ranch Station, head and arm injuries. Black was transferred today to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco.

All were listed in good condition by hospital officials.

From Saving Orchard To Catching Thieves

Spring cleaning time is here.

A good place for a newspaperman to start is with the notes in his own pocket.

Here goes:

THE DRIVE FOR funds to restore the old Russian Orthodox Church at Fort Ross — destroyed by fire some months ago — deserves wide support, of course.

While they are about it, let us hope that they give thought to preserving the remnants of the nearby apple orchard planted by the Russians a century and a half ago.

As you leave the old fort, headed south on Highway 1, take the side road to the left. Follow it a mile or so over to where it begins to climb into the hills. Watch closely on the right side of the road among the first clumps of trees. There, almost unrecognizable because of natural moss camouflage, you will see the ancient apple trees. If you get there at the right time of the year, you may be lucky enough to find a ripe apple on a branch hanging almost close enough to reach from the window of your car.

Those ancient apple trees should be taken into public ownership and preserved. They are the last vestiges of the Russians' unsuccessful agricultural efforts in the area.

YOU'VE GOT TO hand it to Joseph G. Alvarez, the San Anselman who runs a jewelry business in San Francisco.

His wife died of a kidney ailment several years ago.

He has devoted himself with single purpose ever since to providing help for kidney sufferers. At times some would have said he almost made a pest of himself — prodding people to do things they really did not wish to do.

Today Marin has an established chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California.

It sponsors several events each year to raise funds for the cause.

The group solicits donations of Betty Crocker coupons which ultimately will be exchanged for an artificial kidney machine. At present, more than a dozen Marin residents must depend for their survival on periodic visits to such a machine.

Alvarez's first efforts to persuade Marin General Hospital to install such a machine fell on deaf ears. Finally, the hospital's administration came 'round. One of these days Marin General will be able to accomodate all Marin residents in need of the services of the machine.

Bully for the Kidney Foundation and the sometimes irritating fellow who wouldn't quit pestering people until "something was done" — Joe Alvarez.

THE DESERTED COURTHOUSE is still a growing eyesore in the center of San Rafael, despite efforts to put together some kind of arrangement for its sale and redevelopment by private interests. So far, we have failed.

We just cannot continue without action. We must forget the failures so far and renew efforts to solve the problem of what to do with the property so as to benefit San Rafael and the whole county.

And, whatever happened to plans and pledges for action to increase the number of one-way streets in San Rafael so as to alleviate traffic tie-ups?

BURGLARY VICTIMS complain that they are told by police, "We cannot keep watch on every house in town to protect it against burglary." When a victim of neighborhood vandalism in San Rafael was told this, he asked, "Then how come the police can put a car across the street with two cops in it watching my place when I have a late-hour party?"

One might deduce that the police are more intent on catching late-hour revelers than they are dedicated to catching burglars.

What protection is there against burglary, really?

The best available is neighborly mutual concern. If you know your neighbors are away and you see something suspicious, ask the police to investigate.

Our pseudo-sophisticated attitude that we should not concern ourselves with what goes on at our neighbor's house certainly provides aid and comfort to burglars.

Incidentally, this is what the I-J's "Secret Witness" project is all about. Experienced crime detectors say that every mysterious crime could be solved if some one who saw something a bit out of the ordinary took note of it and reported it to authorities. Somewhere in the mass of such "tips" will be one or two which lead to the solution of otherwise mysterious crimes.

The I-J's "Secret Witness" program has been condemned from some quarters — including a teachers' group or two.

If it is thus wrong to encourage concern for one's neighbors, our society does have a problem. If it is wrong to want to help protect the life and property of a neighbor, we do need some changes. If it is wrong to want to help bring an offender to justice, problems like our skyrocketting rate of burglaries can only get worse.

The note pockets are by no means empty, but at least there is room now for some new notes.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the 15 nominees for Marin's "Outstanding Senior Citizen" award. Although only one of them can be the award winner, all 15 deserve honor for showing the roles that people can play at an age when younger folk sometimes regard them as "over the hill."

BRICKBATS to Sausalito teachers who took a "sick holiday" instead of reporting to teach their classes on Malcolm X's birthday. Strange way to honor their hero!

BOUQUETS to Boy Scouts, Explorers and Cub Scouts, who present their annual Scout-o-Rama today at Forest Meadows.

BOUQUET to Corte Madera on its 55th birthday.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

McCloskey Booster Spreads The Word

We have an opportunity unparalled in America's history to make the Grand Old Party the Grand New Party. Times are changing rapidly. I believe we can show the nation and the world that a man need not be a famous senator, governor, former general or vice president to become the President of the United States.

Congressman "Pete" McCloskey is none of these, yet he is eminently qualified to serve as our chief executive. In addition, he has enough personal integrity and independent spirit to go down in history on a par with Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. He couples an outspoken courage with a humble attitude that says "I make mistakes too but I'm willing to try."

Here is a dynamic public speaker with an impressive record of achievements. Let's get together and elect Congressman McCloskey to the office of President in 1972.

Send your support and encouragement to: Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., House Office Bldg., Rm. 1511, Washington, D.C.

Junk Cars Deface Island Of Oahu

Rozella Owens' letter published in I-J issue of May 17 did not specify which three of the Hawaiian Islands she visited. However, if one of them was Oahu I grossly disagree with her cleanliness analysis.

My wife and I were in Honolulu the first week of May this year. And, like I witnessed in 1965 (only worse now), the derelict automobiles along the roadside constituted the greatest degree of trash I have ever seen. No matter where we went, be it Punchbowl Cemetery, Polynesian Cultural Village, etc., we saw abandoned automobiles. If I can correctly quote the bus driver that drove us from the airport to our hotel the state of Hawaii has over 800,000 inhabitants and over 300,000 automobiles. I think half of the autos are abandoned along the roads.

Marin County has a lot going for it on trash handling compared to Oahu.

VD, Pregnancies Demonstrate Need

How about your editorial gap? On Page 2, May 14, the I-J reports that "nearly 10 per cent of California teen-agers have venereal disease." On page 26 the editorial refers to education regarding advocating birth control does not permit unmarried couples to indulge in "safe" sexual intercourse. If it did the alarming rise in teen-age pregnancies and V.D. would decline.

At present more pregnant girls seek assistance from Planned Parenthood than girls seeking birth control to prevent pregnancy. Out-of-wedlock births continue to increase in proportion to all births. In 1966 about 5 per cent of them in Marin County were to unwed mothers. In 1970 this figure rose to nearly 9 per cent. Most of these births were in the 15 to 19 age bracket.

The common finding is that teens and even college students operate with appalling misinformation, usually obtained solely from peers. It is usually suggested by those opposed to sex education in the schools that the home is the place for such learning. Our experience at Planned Parenthood has shown that such experience just is not overtly taking place. Most homes have a taboo against discussion of sex.

Parents should obtain sex education to help in handling the love ethic of their children through such groups as PTA's, churches and synagogues. Attempts have been made to develop Parent Advisory Committees to Teen Clinics in the Bay Area without any continuing success.

Crystal Ball Reveals Bright New Future For Mail Service

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service in its first report to the nation in 1979 announced that the new postal rates for the country would be $1 for first-class mail, $2 for air mail, and 50 cents for magazines and newspapers. Fourth-class junk mail would remain unchanged.

Elwood Carruthers, the postmaster general, said that these small raises would guarantee the nation's citizens more efficient service and also put the post office on a paying basis.

At a press conference, Mr. Carruthers told reporters that the funds gained by the raises would be used to re-equip present post offices with the latest machinery, which would speed up the mail by 50 per cent.

"WE BELIEVE that once the new equipment is installed it will be possible for a letter mailed in New York to reach someone in Ohio within the same week."

Asked what new equipment the Postal Service would purchase with the money earned from the new raises, Carruthers pulled back a curtain in the Postal Service aduitorium.

On display was a stagecoach and four horses. Sitting on top of the stagecoach was a postman and next to him was a man dressed in a cowboy suit holding a Remington rifle.

"This is our latest post office vehicle," Carruthers told the press. "It was developed by our own engineers. As you see, in the back of the coach is a large area where we can carry first-class mailbags. The top of the coach just beyond the driver and his guard will be used for second, third and fourth-class mail."

"WHAT DO YOU intend to do with the inside of the coach?" a reporter asked.

"We will use it for passengers wishing to go to the same place. We hope the revenues from stagecoach passengers will keep us from having a deficit. We've tested this vehicle, and by changing horses in Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, we found that we can deliver a letter from New York to Washington in less than three days. This is a 48-hour improvement over the mail service people are getting now."

"How many of them do you expect to have in service this year, Mr. Postmaster?"

"We have ordered 2,000 of them. Our main problem will be to set up stables and provide water for the horses. We are also working with the U.S. Cavalry on safe routes for the coaches to avoid unfriendly Indian country. In the West we're hoping the Army will set up a series of forts to assure that our stagecoaches will get through."

"MR. POSTMASTER, that's all well and good for first, second, third and fourth-class mail, but what do you intend to do about air mail?"

Carruthers pulled back another curtain. Mounted on a horse was a mailman in a cowboy hat. On either side of his saddle were two large leather mailbags.

"Gentlemen, this will be our new express service. The Post Office on its own has developed a new system whereby we will load the air mail on this horse. At 50-mile intervals a new rider and horse will be waiting and the mailbags will be tossed to him and he will race off at top speed to the next rider. With fresh horses and riders we can guarantee that a letter in Chicago will reach Houston in two-and-a-half days."

"WHEN DO YOU expect this new express service to go into effect?" a reporter asked.

"As soon as we train enough riders and get delivery of our horses. We in the Postal Service feel that we have to keep up with the times, and while this new sophisticated equipment will be expensive, it should pay for itself in 10 years.

"I am certain when the American people see what they're getting for their money, they will not object to the infinitesimal increases we have had to make on their postage."

Israel Digs In To Prove It Means 'No Compromise'

SHARM EL-SHEIKH, Israeli-Occupied Sinai — This is the sticking point and, however long-drawn-out the search for an eventual peace settlement may be, it is the last point the Israelis will compromise. It commands the 600-yard passage through the Straits of Tiran that is Israel's lifeline for trade.

Twice before Egypt threatened to cut off that lifeline and twice war followed. At nearby Ras Nasrani, ruined Egyptian cannon were trained on all ships passing through the straits. They were destroyed by Egyptian soldiers fleeing before the Israeli 9th Division in the 1956 war.

This time the Israelis are taking no chance. They are digging in with the zeal, the organizing drive, that created the nation in a hostile desert. Here at Sharm El-Sheikh a military base is going up. Plans are on the drawing board for a full-fledged town designed around the present motel and the construction workers' quarters.

NEARBY IS A TENT and trailer community with a blown-up canvas bubble serving as an air-conditioned dining room. For soldiers on leave there is a rush-covered discotheque and at the base movies alternate with plays, lectures and concerts. All this is served by an air strip long enough to take 707S. Water comes by tank from a military desalination plant.

To see how geography closes in, with the short line of Saudi Arabia clearly visible across the straits, is to understand the sense of claustrophobia that afflicts the Israelis. Just around the corner from Ras Muhammad, at the very tip of the Sinai, is the Gulf of Uez. Through the shimmering heat haze — temperatures are already 100 and 115 — the enemy is clearly visible.

To reinforce the air of permanence Sharm El-Sheikh is becoming a tourist attraction. Israel's principal tourist organization offers a one-day package tour. The flight down in the morning, back in the evening, a bus trip taking in the ruined cannon. A bedoui settlement under ancient palm trees, lunch in the bubble and a swim in the Red Sea. Thus is this most-distant occupied outpost made part of "our land."

Most of us on the tour are Americans. In the fierce heat and the incessant wind off the Sinai Desert the excursion has a slightly unreal air. The relics of past wars and the threat of a new war — Israeli frog men operating in the straits to insure against the secret planting of mines -- belie the smooth professional voice of the tour guide.

We are there on the Jewish Sabbath and the lean, bronzed young men on their day of leave are playing soccer on the beach. Our tour guide points out the army synagogue. It was built by the Egyptians as a mosque for their soldiers.

WHAT THE PAST signifies for these people is the need to dig deeper — to guarantee the "security" borders conquered four years ago. Americans high and low have been telling them in recent weeks that they should put the past behind them and enter into new security arrangements that might advance the cause of peace. That is the counsel of their own elder statesman. David Ben-Gurion, insisting that geography is no insurance of safety.

The Americans contend for a United Nations peace-keeping force that would be protected by the U.N. Security Council where an American veto could stop any order to remove it.

But in Israel the United Nations is a bad joke. The critics call this a Maginot Line psychology — building a wall against an enemy living next door just as France did in the years before World War II. The big radar screens that thrust up against the horizon are Israel's scornful response. They are tied into a network of bases capable of responding instantly to any threat of attack by land or air.

AGAINST THE SETTING sun the jagged mountains that come down so close to the desert coast are like claws cut out of steel by a ruhless giant. This land has been hostile to human life. For several centuries the Ottoman Turk held it and left it virtually untouched. In the brief years of the British imperium & brief by the standards of the Middle East — it was a wasteland patrolled by a few specialists. The interregnum of Camal Abdel Nasser made only a slight impression on a vast empty space where a few wandering tribes of Bedouin moved from water hole to water hole.

Outsiders may be skeptical as to how long the new dispensation will endure. The Israelis permit themselves no doubts whatsoever.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Mexico Takes Leading Role in Promoting Peace

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

For many years a source of pride for the United States in its hemispheric relations has been its unarmed, trouble-free 3,000-mile border with Canada.

Less noted but equally important is the steady growth of similarly equal and friendly ties along the 2,000-mile U.S. Mexican border to the South.

Lending added importance is the increasingly influential role being played by Mexico in both hemispheric and world affairs.

THE PICTURE of a Mexico dozing in the sun with its sombrero pulled down over its eyes no longer is valid nor has it been for the better part of a three and one-half decades.

A large part of Mexico's success may be traced to the fact that of all Latin American nations, Mexico has been the most politically stable, beginning with the Lazaro Cardenas regime in the mid-1930s.

Rounding out the formula for success is Mexico's steady 6 per cent annual rate of economic growth and a great ability to mind its own business.

IN INTERNATIONAL affairs Mexico's most prominent role has been in the field of disarmament.

It was a letter from Mexico's then president Adolpho Lopez Mateo to the presidents of Bolivia, Brazil, Chile and Ecuador that led to the pact establishing Latin America as a nuclear free weapons zone.

The pact, the Treaty of Tlatelolco, has been signed by 22 countries and ratified by 17.

A protocol expressing agreement with the pact has been signed by the United States and last month was ratified.

AT THE 25 NATION disarmament conference in Geneva, it was Mexico that took the lead in demanding that other nations ignore stands taken by the United States and the Soviet Union and work out their own proposals for a total ban on nuclear testing and a ban on chemical and germ warfare.

A Mexican, Alphonso Garcia Robles, is a dark horse candidate to succeed U.N. Secretary General Thant should he decide to step down.

In the hemispheric field, relations between the United States and Mexico have drawn steadily closer despite Mexico's refusal to follow the U.S. lead on such matters of hemispheric concern as the economic and diplomatic embargo on Castro's Cuba.

The Mexicans deem this interference in Cuba's internal affairs.

WHILE MEXICO may view communization of Cuba with some tolerance, there is no such tolerance at home. This spring Mexico expelled five top level Soviet diplomats and recalled its own ambassador to Moscow over alleged Soviet complicity in the training of 50 young Mexicans in guerilla tactics in North Korea.

And such is Mexico's influence among its neighbors that the action brought to a sudden halt negotiations between the Soviet Union and Costa Rica to estabish diplomatic relations.

RAP SESSION: Letters From Young And Old

14 THROUGH 17

Solution Must Come On One-To-One Basis

I believe that the most important factor in establishing ties between youth and the older generation is if we are capable of talking on a common basis. All people should be open to hearing diverse comments and opinions contrary to those they have heard and believed for the duration of their lives. No topics should be withheld or treated with kid gloves. Neither should hold back any emotions, for withholding ideas and feelings at this point will create more chasms of difference and doubt that would be surmounted. It is important that those who talk should talk on a one-to-one basis, and not as a group. A group discussion held between dissenting people tends to discourage logical and productive collaborations. A person who volunteers a particularly one-sided idea may receive chastisement, subtle or not so subtle, from those who oppose his opinion.. The end result is that the opinionated person will feel even more bonded to those who share his idea. This can work both ways, with such mutual condemnation at best bringing on more arguments. The answer then is to talk, and to talk with general reciprocation.

It is important that those who talk in order to work together work inside of the system. The danger of working outside the republic (America was established as a republic and is now a democracy) is that in striving to achieve a goal there are those who would justify all means of acquiring it, usually destroying the country and all those in it on the way. (no, Virginia, logic does not predominate.)

In concluding this letter, I wish to say that in writing it I do not agree that there is a generation gap, instead a communication gap; between those who always speak, those who always listen, and those who do neither.

MIKE HELMS

San Rafael.

Add Cooperation And Consideration

To reach a better understanding of one another, we must look at the key word in solving the problem: communication. For if a generation communicates to a point where there is an understanding between them, then we can understand each other.

Today we have a two-way street of conversation. Our problem is that the younger and the older generation are not in the same lanes of conversation to communicate with one another.

To help keep communication alive, we should take a look at the words, cooperation and consideration. If we cooperate with one another while we communicate then we can reach a better understanding of one another. Also, if the younger and the older generation could take into consideration each other's feelings and understand them, then I feel we can bridge the Generation Gap, and we could fill the gap with understanding of one another.

So why don't we give it a try? Follow the three c's of communication, cooperation, and consideration. Let's bridge that gap with understanding!

MARCIA BILLINGS

Tiburon.

Strip All Barriers To Unite Generations

I think there will always be a big gap between youth and the over-30, although there are considerable exceptions of older people who are and have been communicating for a long time, but that is only part of my reason for writing this, I also want to try to give some constructive solutions to the problem.

I know many people, including myself sometimes, that turn off to parents simply because of their attitude and the misunderstanding of their feelings and beliefs and vice versa. First above all you must have mutual trust and respect, also complete stripping of barriers and prejudices, that is hit "gut level" and accept people for what they are, not for what they should or can be. It's really very easy if you're willing to really try, be frank and say what you feel, but also listen and try to comprehend and understand our ideals and how we come to believe in them so strongly. I mean, everybody's always saying what a drag all the kids are, 'cause they've got the guts to get out in the street and tell the truth every day, and it's far out, it's great, but if you resort to violence you lose all, bombing, burning, beating and tear gassing will never win over, and it better be realized right now from both sides or we're in a lot of trouble.

The main thing I think we should realize is that we're all sacred human beings, struggling to stay alive, and that there should be no labels as "hippy," "pig," "longhair," etc. I think there is a lot of wrongs and rights on both sides, but we must have change, and we must bring it about by working together, because for the most part it seems as though we're all becoming parenoid. We also must be given the opportunity and responsibility to do things on our own and we must be listened to. There are a lot of stubborn people that refuse to cooperate or try to do anything, they're closed minded but we must be patient with them too because we owe it to them and ourselves.

"Rap sessions" are something I've seen work successfully and sometimes unsuccessfully, with both adults and parents, gaining each other's trust and deepest thoughts and dreams. Why hassel with clothes and hair etc. and small petty things as such, when we can be free and happy?

I think we have a lot to offer as well as you, but don't brush us off as "young idealist, naive children"; make us feel important, but in a way we can relate to.

The last thing I will say is that through all the recent protests against pollution, war, the draft, we are appealing to you to listen and to take affective action and help us, because if we don't do it nobody else is going to and we need each other to get it together.

Just Talking Won't Solve The Problem

Much of the gap between kids and adults is because of the Vietnam War. Unfortunately, none of today's youths had to go through the great depression or World War II, otherwise things today might be different. However when I'm told that the kids of today are the first "wild" generation, I have to point out to them the '20s and '30s which were probably the roughest 20 years in this century.

As such I don't think that sitting down and talking is going to do any good. Today's kids are fed up with the "establishment" because that is all they have been doing: sitting and talking. One suggestion would be to set up a governmental agency dedicated to listening and getting results done when those under 30 have legitimate problems and are definitely concerned with poverty, the war, racial discrimination, etc.

Although I am a staunch supporter of people's rights, the news media is one branch of today's scene who aren't helping matters any. They give undue publicity to those few terrorist groups which are bent on destroying the U.S. and imposing their will. One way to improve relations is to try and understand youth's peaceful aspect, which is certainly in the majority. Another way to improve relations between police and students is for junior and senior members of the force who are understanding to hold "rap sessions" to discuss police views, student views, and the world in general.

However, it isn't all up to the adults. Those under 30 must learn to understand the values, both moral, political, and social of those over 30. So in conclusion, I feel that there must be leeway on both sides and not all take.

We Must Let Youth Find Own Truths

My view of the generation gap is that there is a lack of understanding or a fear of change. The older generation doesn't understand the younger and vice versa, and the older generation is afraid of change because the need for it was less when they grew up. Also the older generation doesn't believe that youth is ready or capable of making their own decisions and the younger generation, of course, does.

The whole problem originated with the rapid changes occurring in society today. The older generation is set in a conservative mold and is unready and unwilling to change. They feel that the young people are not mature enough to make their own decisions about how they dress, spend their time, or what they do, and therefore the younger generation feels hopeless about being able to change things they see as bad (wars, laws) and are discouraged with the whole mess.

Also parents are upset with their children, who want to have longer hair or listen to loud music. Since these things are associated with "hippies" and other "bad" influences, this causes another battleground.

I believe the only way to solve the problem is by giving youth more of a voice in government, to let the younger generation find their own truths, not those of others who came before them, because these ethics are now being questioned. Also to listen to the requests of younger people before they turn into demands, and do something about them.

When We Understand, The Gap Is Bridged

The generation gap has been around as long as man has. In civilization's earliest writings, we find evidence of a gulf between the older and younger generations.

Isn't the generation gap a failure to communicate between two age groups? Communication is a two-way street — the blame for this gap can't be placed solely on either age group.

The gap is caused by both groups, and together both groups are going to have to build the bridge. But a bridge can be built. It's a bridge of understanding, acceptance, and love.

We need to look at people, not as members of either a younger or older generation, but simply as people, sharing the same basic needs. Each person needs to be accepted, to be understood. He needs to feel that he's wanted, that he's loved. We all share these needs, no matter how young or old we may be.

To bridge the gap we need to take time to listen. Stop and talk to your parents or kids. See what they're really trying to say. Really listen — don't just go through the motions. Opinions might differ — they're bound to at times — but try to respect a person's feelings even though they're different from your own.

Practice empathy — putting yourself in someone else's place. The adult seeing things from a young person's point of view; a young person trying to see through the eyes of an adult.

If we try to understand, care, and love a person for what he is —regardless of his age — we'll find that the gap has already been bridged.

Neither Has Found Road To Happiness

It's a small wonder that we are faced with the grim reality of a generation gap. Many people over the age of 30 have lived a life that is radically different from that of their children, and because of that their outlook on life is also different. As a result, one generation seeks material gain as a means of achieving happiness while the other rejects materialism and seeks personal fulfillment to achieve happiness. It is interesting to note that everyone is at one extreme or the other while trying to achieve the same goal.

It is these two extremes, along with the fact that so few families ever really talk to one another, that causes the communication gap among generations. This world, and its problems, is a tribute to the older ideology while Haight-Ashbury, and its pitiful demise, is the result of the younger ideology. And neither has acquired the goal they were seeking. Perhaps the answer is, after all, somewhere between these two extremes. It's about time we all tried looking for the solution together, instead of stubbornly defending our own way of life — unless, of course, your way of life has made you completely happy and contented.

Unfortunately, you cannot bridge that gap if you live in a house full of strangers. To solve that problem it only takes the courage to talk and to listen, but you would have to do it openly, honestly, and without anger. It takes time to build this kind of communication, but a family's unity is worth it. If youths and adults can understand where and why they differ, they might not differ nearly as much. Perhaps then we'll find a different way of life that actually does give us the goal we are all trying to achieve.

You Might Not Have Another Chance

I believe that the main reason for the generation gap is that it's the young people who are excepting the problems of today, and are trying to work them out, but the old won't help or except the youth of today. The old say that there are no problems. Where the youth can turn about and see the problems of today —for example, pollution, war, and population, and a great many more problems of today.

The old are the ones who have been making this world and they just won't let the young try to make a better world. The old are just going to have to face that the young are going to have the world. Let's face it — there's not much left and sooner or later there just won't be much of a world. All we're asking for is to let us try and see what we can do. Is that too much to ask? Remember it's either now or never. Because we might not have another chance.

It's Moral Gap That Divides Nation

The problem confronting America today as a "generation gap" can be understood better when redefined as a "moral gap."

Most of my peers see our country in the hands of those who are in the habit of lying to the public simply by waving the flag and spewing hollow rhetoric. President Nixon tells the nation "we all want peace" and continues ordering the largest mass of bombs dropped on any nation in recorded history in Vietnam. We "pledge allegiance" to have "liberty and justice for all" and continue the genocidal practices against Indians and Asians, and continue our inherited racist attitude of forcing second class citizenship upon Latins, Orientals, Blacks and poor whites. Moral hypocrisy.

Our government is making the world "safe for democracy" by giving aid to brutal and repressive governments like Greece, Brazil, and South Vietnam.

The tide of American sentiment is shifting from moral hypocrisy to moral commitment. If we continue to put "In God We Trust" on our money, then the slogan of American foreign and domestic policy should become one of love — because, God is Love. Guns and money as a means of influence are rapidly becoming obsolete. Universal truth and wisdom will replace nationalism and propaganda. It is not too far-fetched to hope that one day we'll all live under one flag as human beings, and see communism and capitalism melt into a world culture of loving brotherhood?

To you people over 30, I suggest you begin looking within to find answers to moral problems. Will you continue to pay taxes that are used to build empires, weapons, and mass polluters, or will you decide to spend your tax dollars on more humanitarian ventures such as saving the environment, helping the Indians reclaim their land, and changing our stoneage prisons into institutions that give love instead of punishment?

The Declaration of Independence no longer exists as mere rhetoric. It is a moral statement which pursues and outlines a course of action to be taken by each American, regardless of age, race, religion, or financial status, if this nation is to survive as a nation "of the people, by the people, and for the people." In other words, "Power to the people."

Can't Understand, But Can Cooperate

To begin with let's have a beginning! Once trouble has already started, it is impossible to take up the "rap" somewhere in the middle. If you can decide (together) what went wrong in the beginning, then you've got a good basis for further talks.

Here are some "dos" (for the do-ers):

1. Start talking (about anything).
2. Come together. Walking won't hurt you — don't be so shy.
3. If either side has problems, talk about them, but be gentle — remember how much it hurts.
4. Keep intimacies in the family — gossip starts wars, you know.

And some "don'ts" (for the over-aggressive):

5. Fault-naming is stupid! Who cares? Let's just correct whatever has been done.
6. Don't confuse talking with lecturing, OK?
7. Don't ever stop trying. Always leave $2 in your account so you can use it again.
8. Don't be an "I didn't mean to" person. Think before you speak.

Speaking personally folks, my husband and I are in the "under and over 30" categories. There are no cut-and-dried solutions to anything. Here is where our individualism comes in. Try your own methods. If you don't have any, then devise some.

Walking around with your head in a sling (you old sore-head!) and saying "woe is me" doesn't make points with the opposition. But a pat on the head and a doggie biscuit for good behavior works wonders!

Lastly, you will never understand each other. The guy who says, oh, I understand the youth of today, or the "under-30" who says he understands the older generation, has got to be kidding.

Good luck, world!

Christ Showed Way; We Should Try It

The generation gap is not new. Neither is the gap that exists between people limited to the under-over 30 group, but can and does exist within any given age bracket.

Some people believe education is the answer, but today we have masses of people with accumulated knowledge, yet most of them are sadly lacking in vision and understanding, regarding application to their fellow men.

The world down through all history has suffered because of this problem. Here are ways I believe we can bridge any gap between individuals:

1. Find a common ground on which to relate to each other, thus gradually building good communications.
2. Ignore the age, dress, race and so-called "status" of the individual and try to get to know the real person involved.
3. Be concerned about and reaching out to help people who are searching for answers to the problems of life.

The world needs to know the real person of Jesus Christ, and to experience the joy of knowing Him as their personal saviour. Being a Christian does not exempt us from having problems but does enable us to look at and solve them with a different perspective.

Herein lies real love and peace. It can be ours!

Different Values Between Young, Old

There is a generation gap, but only between some of the young and older generation.

I'm sure most of the older generation was brought up in a completely different atmosphere which had different values.

Many of the over-30s feel unless young people are married that it's wrong for them to be living under the same roof. Some people may have financial problems, but want to be independent and have responsibility. Others may care about each other, but feel they aren't ready for marriage. Times are always changing and people should learn to change with them. I'm sure some of the older generation did things when they were young that their parents opposed.

I think youth today is much more aware of what's happening in the world. We are concerned with pollution, ecology and the war. I think if there was more communication between the age groups, there would be a better understanding. This could be accomplished by listening to each other's opinion and trying to be objective. We may not understand why someone over 30 may think the war is justified; whereas the people I know feel it's meaningless — that our men and boys are being wounded and killed for no purpose.

We may disagree with many of the older generation's ideas of life, as they do with ours. By expressing what we feel and the reasoning behind it we may help to understand each other better.

Must Bridge Gap Within Family Unit

In our society which is oriented towards technology, science and intellect there exists, more than ever before, the basic need for self-identity. The young and the over-30 alike seek to identify with the family unit, their respective peer groups, and with community norms. For many this is a never-ending battle complete with frustrations, scapegoats and lack of communications.

The presence of discontent, separation and divorce among the over-30 group indicates a failure to identify with the present value system. The younger generation senses this failure and they show indifference towards the established values and life-styles of their parents. Consequently, there is a conflict of interests and a lack of rapport between the generations, while each experiments with alternatives to replace the prevailing norms.

Self-identity for the young and the over-30 should have its foundation in the family unit. The family unit is fundamental, regardless of the times, because it instills the vital elements necessary in forming a constructive life style. These elements are love, faith and understanding. With these ingredients, the young and the over-30 possess the nucleus to build an acceptable value system and a proper perspective towards life. They have the nucleus to cope with the challenges from their respective peer groups and the where-with-all to meet the demands of the community. If the young and the over-30 fail to identify themselves with the family unit, the foundation for communication between the generations will collapse.

There is no substitute for love, faith, and understanding.

Try To Put Yourself In Other's Place

The "generation gap" to me is a term applied to the social and chronological age difference between the young and over-30 group.

It is a difference in attitude, culture and ideals. Perhaps the reason why can be found in the style of living today. The opportunities open to the young are also vast and the value placed on individual identity is great. The young and over-30 group must learn to meet each other halfway. I think each group must stop and think about why each different group feels the way they do about things. I think each group has the right to their own opinions in different circumstances and each group must develop an objective viewpoint of the other. For example, a young individual places a great value on his own identity, he seeks to venture out into the world to find it. An over-30 individual quickly forgets how long it took him to find his own identity and at times becomes irritated and impatient because it seems it takes too long for the young to make important decisions for themselves.

I think a conflict occurs when a group refuses to acknowledge the different values and opinions of the other group. True, the social and chronological age difference is there but one could agree, I think, that better communication and understanding can only be reached by individual cooperation.

The young must try to place himself in the position of the over-30 group and vice versa. It is these thoughts which I mentioned in the content of my letter which I believe can bring desired peace and harmony in the world. I think the young and over-30 group must really try to learn to do "their things" together.

OVER 30 YEARS

Youth Just Didn't Conform To Plan

To reach a better understanding we, the over-30 group, must look back to our own youth, our thoughts, actions, outlooks and visions of the future.

Hard to realize, but realize we must, the present 20s and 30s were born between 1941 and 1951. We over-30s grew up in times of isolationism, depression and peace. The draft was something new in World War I.

We were born in one area, went to grammar and high school in that area. As youngsters we played sandlot ball, coasted down the hills on push-mobiles, played roller skate hockey, and our bikes were our main mode of transportation. As we grew older we rode around in "cut down Fords," or "cords" (trousers) never were washed, we played our radios loud. The girls or young women bobbed their hair, wore rouge, started smoking cigarettes. We drank bootleg gin at speakeasies and every college fraternity house had its home brew crock. We shocked our parents and in their eyes were a generation that was surely going to hell.

The parents of the 20 to 30 group had no post-high school growing-up period, for many it was five or six years of war and another four or five years of hard study at college on the G.I. Bill. This was to achieve the status of "executive, engineer, doctor, lawyer, etc." with attendant transfers and relocations that has given us a mobile population.

Then too, the bomb. Many parents showered their yough with anything they desired — "they are our most precious possession — for in 10 years neither they nor we will be here" was the attitude.

The "let's not get involved" attitude, springing from World War II, has blinded us to realities. It perhaps is the major reason for crime today.

Our pampered youth have not grown up in our imaginary image according to plan. They want to get involved. They, with their loud music, styles of 100 years ago, Dn'l Boone haircuts and wildly painted VW busses shock us — but are they really so different than we were, or are they just youth as it has been through time immemorial growing up in the normal, usual way.

I believe so.

We, the older generation, should be proud of them in their sense of involvement, their different styles, their long hair, whiskers and all, for they are America's most cherished possession.

They are just growing up as did we, only in their different way, as it should be.

How Can We Agree? Can't Even Say Hello

Parents say they feel pride and joy at their children's graduation. Their children say screw the ceremonies and diploma.

My daughter and her friends say we should give them more freedom. Sociologists say this generation of parents was too lenient.

My college nephew says stop the war, government and society. His father says his son keeps writing for more money.

Ralph Nader says everything is unsafe.

The governor says our taxes will go up. The newspapers say he doesn't pay any.

My grocer says he must raise prices because of inflation. Our President says the economy is stabilizing.

Our child says he wants a horse very much. We say they are too expensive, and we buy a new car.

Dr. Spock says children are the only answer to tomorrow. Dr. Erlich says no one should have any more children.

My boss says take over for ⅛ of my salary whilst I play golf. Women's Liberation says we should demand our rights.

My aunt says trust in God. Some theologians say God is dead.

Old people say they are lonely. Younger people say two generations cannot live together.

The public says they object to the quality of movies and television. Hollywood and network television say they give us what we want.

Colleges say they need money to educate everyone. Business says Ph. D's cannot find jobs.

William Buckley says we have to fight for peace. The Bible says the meek shall inherit the earth.

Kids say "don't shoot, we're your children." Parents say don't bomb, we're your parents.

Young people say older people are hung up on sex. Welfare says older people must pay for babies of those not so hung up.

Love people say straight people ruin the atmosphere. Statistics say love people drive cars with no exhaust.

Doctors say men suffer early heart attacks from tension and overwork. Familes say they need many things which cost money.

Kids say they want to make decisions on all levels. Statistics say they do not vote when they are franchised.

The dictionary says generation gap means "begetting a parting." I say — how can we say goodbye when we never learned to say hello?

JEAN MAHONEY

No Brotherhood Possible Without God

There has always been conflict between parents and youth regarding authority. Communication, understanding, and tolerance is needed in today's society, young and old.

Youth makes it very clear what their objections are. They want to cut through pretenses, the pretense of being something they are not. They are perceptive and see the games people play in today's society. The discrepancies between what people say and what they do. They do not want immunity from the challenge of life, as so many parents have contributed to their eternal damage, denying them nothing except responsibility.

They see the world makes wealth the criterion of success, yet they know that real success in life means the individual's conquest of himself. Life is not "What have I?" but "What am I?" They seek meaning to their life, depth, which is not of surface things, nor of material. But a genuine source of pride comes only from spiritual things, from a glory inside as when true love is experienced. There can be no brotherhood of man, without the Fatherhood of God.

They make their voices heard, and show their disregard for discipline and authority by reckless daring, hoping to outwit opposing forces and bring about a change, but harassing the government and showing their anger in their violent demonstrations will not bring about the changes needed in a society that is bordering on chaos.

We are faced with a moral gap. The words right and wrong are foreign in today's language, so is the definition of eithics as man's normal state, so is conscience as an inward monitor. When right and wrong become one and the same thing there is no defense against the anarchy of evil.

We must arouse our compassion, our cooperation, our finest instincts of succor and solidarity, and our ideas must be freely exchanged.

Aaron's Panel Backs Crime Lab

Marin County should establish a centralized crime laboratory for such services as analysis of drugs, ballistics tests, and blood alcohol tests, the county community relations committee decided Thursday.

The committee, headed by Bella H. Aaron, voted unanimously for a resolution presented by Sausalito Police Chief James Wright, chairman of the Centralized Police Services Council of Marin.

Wright said his group has been trying for three years to get state funding for the crime lab, but so far, no state funds are available. On his motion, the committee asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors to set up a crime lab in the county sheriff's department at the Hall of Justice. Such a lab would have two criminalists plus various equipment, and would cost more than $100,000 to install.

Mrs. Aaron reported that the police community relations program in Marin received $130,307 from the California Council on Criminal Justice to finance the 1971-72 program. The grant will permit the police cadet program to expand from the present 10 cadets to 15 cadets next year, said Mrs. Aaron.

San Quentin's Jim Park Enjoys His Work With 'People Full of Life'

By MARY LEYDECKER

James W. L. Park, associate warden at San Quentin, has never regretted giving up clinical psychology for prison work "because our people are so full of life."

"Even the best-run mental hospitals are depressing," he said, in contrast to the prison "where the people are alert — thinking all the time."

The biggest problem he has in walking through the yard is that "everyone wants to stop me to talk," Park said.

THE MAN WHO "got into prison work by accident" was born in Niagara Falls, N.Y., in 1922. When he was 3-years-old, his family moved to Southern California, where his father was a conductor on the old Los Angeles railway.

"It was a typical story of the 1920s," Park said. His father bought a chicken ranch but found he needed more income to support his family.

In 1932 his father became involved in "a bitter strike" with the railway and the "family fortunes declined considerably."

"I CAN'T TELL a story of great suffering," Park said. "It was just a case of a middle-class family fallen on hard times." His family was on welfare for awhile and his mother worked on WPA projects. "Relief kept us from starvation, and I mowed lawns for what money I needed," Park said.

After attending schools in Pasadena and El Monte High School, Park was in his second year at Pasadena Junior College in 1941 when he signed up with the Air Force.

Following training in Texas, Park was sent to Italy, where he flew 51 missions over Europe as a pilot of a Liberator bomber.

FLYING THE big plane was like "driving a truck," Park said, quoting, "someone once said it's hours of utmost tedium punctuated by seconds of terror."

"It was a different war from now," Park said, adding that, "I grew up and found direction while in military service."

Returning to Occidental College after the war, Park, who had been a mediocre student in junior college, earned a Phi Beta Kappa key in clinical psychology. He went on to fulfill all the requirements for a Ph.D. Degree except the thesis "when I got tired of going to school."

BY THAT TIME he and his wife, Betty, whom he married in 1945, also had one child. (Their oldest son, Roger, 21, was killed in an auto accident last year. The Parks, who live on the prison grounds, have two other teen-age boys.)

"I got into the prison business purely by accident," Park said. He heard that the prison at Chino needed a psychologist, so he applied for and landed the job.

After three and a half years working at the reception center at Chino interviewing and diagnosing incoming prisoners, Park was transferred to Sacramento, where he held an administrative job approving transfers of prisoners.

THERE FOLLOWED an administrative job at Soledad. Then in 1964 he was appointed associate warden at San Quentin with responsibilities of administering Death Row and dealing with the news media.

Respected and liked by the press with whom he talks daily, Park said that his policy is "to give unembellished facts — not stack the deck against the inmates."

His years behind prison walls have given Park many ideas and theories about prisons and prisoners, but one of the strongest is that "there are no panaceas" that will correct wrongs in the penal system.

"OUR CRITICS think there is some magic cure that we're either too stupid or too malicious to recognize," Park said.

"All the programs help someone," he said, speaking of education, vocational training and counseling.

"We're still wrestling with the concepts of the reform movement of the 1930s," Park replied, when asked about new directions that may be taken in prisons.

CHANGES THAT were then cited as being humanitarian advances are now being criticized, he said.

The indeterminate sentence, intended to eliminate inconsistencies among sentencing judges as well as give prisoners a chance to be freed if then seemed rehabilitated, is now called "archaic," Park noted. The prison industries, started to reduce idleness and boredom, are called slave labor.

During the years, because of the state's emphasis on increased use of probation, the prison population has changed, too, he said.

"WE NOW GET either the very difficult persons — who commit crimes of violence — or we get the habitual criminal," he said.

Park smilingly explained that by "habitual criminal," he meant chronic offenders, "not professional criminals."

Such men are likely to have good intentions but "foul up and get into trouble again" as soon as they get out of prison, he said. He added that he could only recall "four or five Mafia members" who had been in San Quentin since he has been there.

"I guess that professional criminals don't get caught very often," he added.

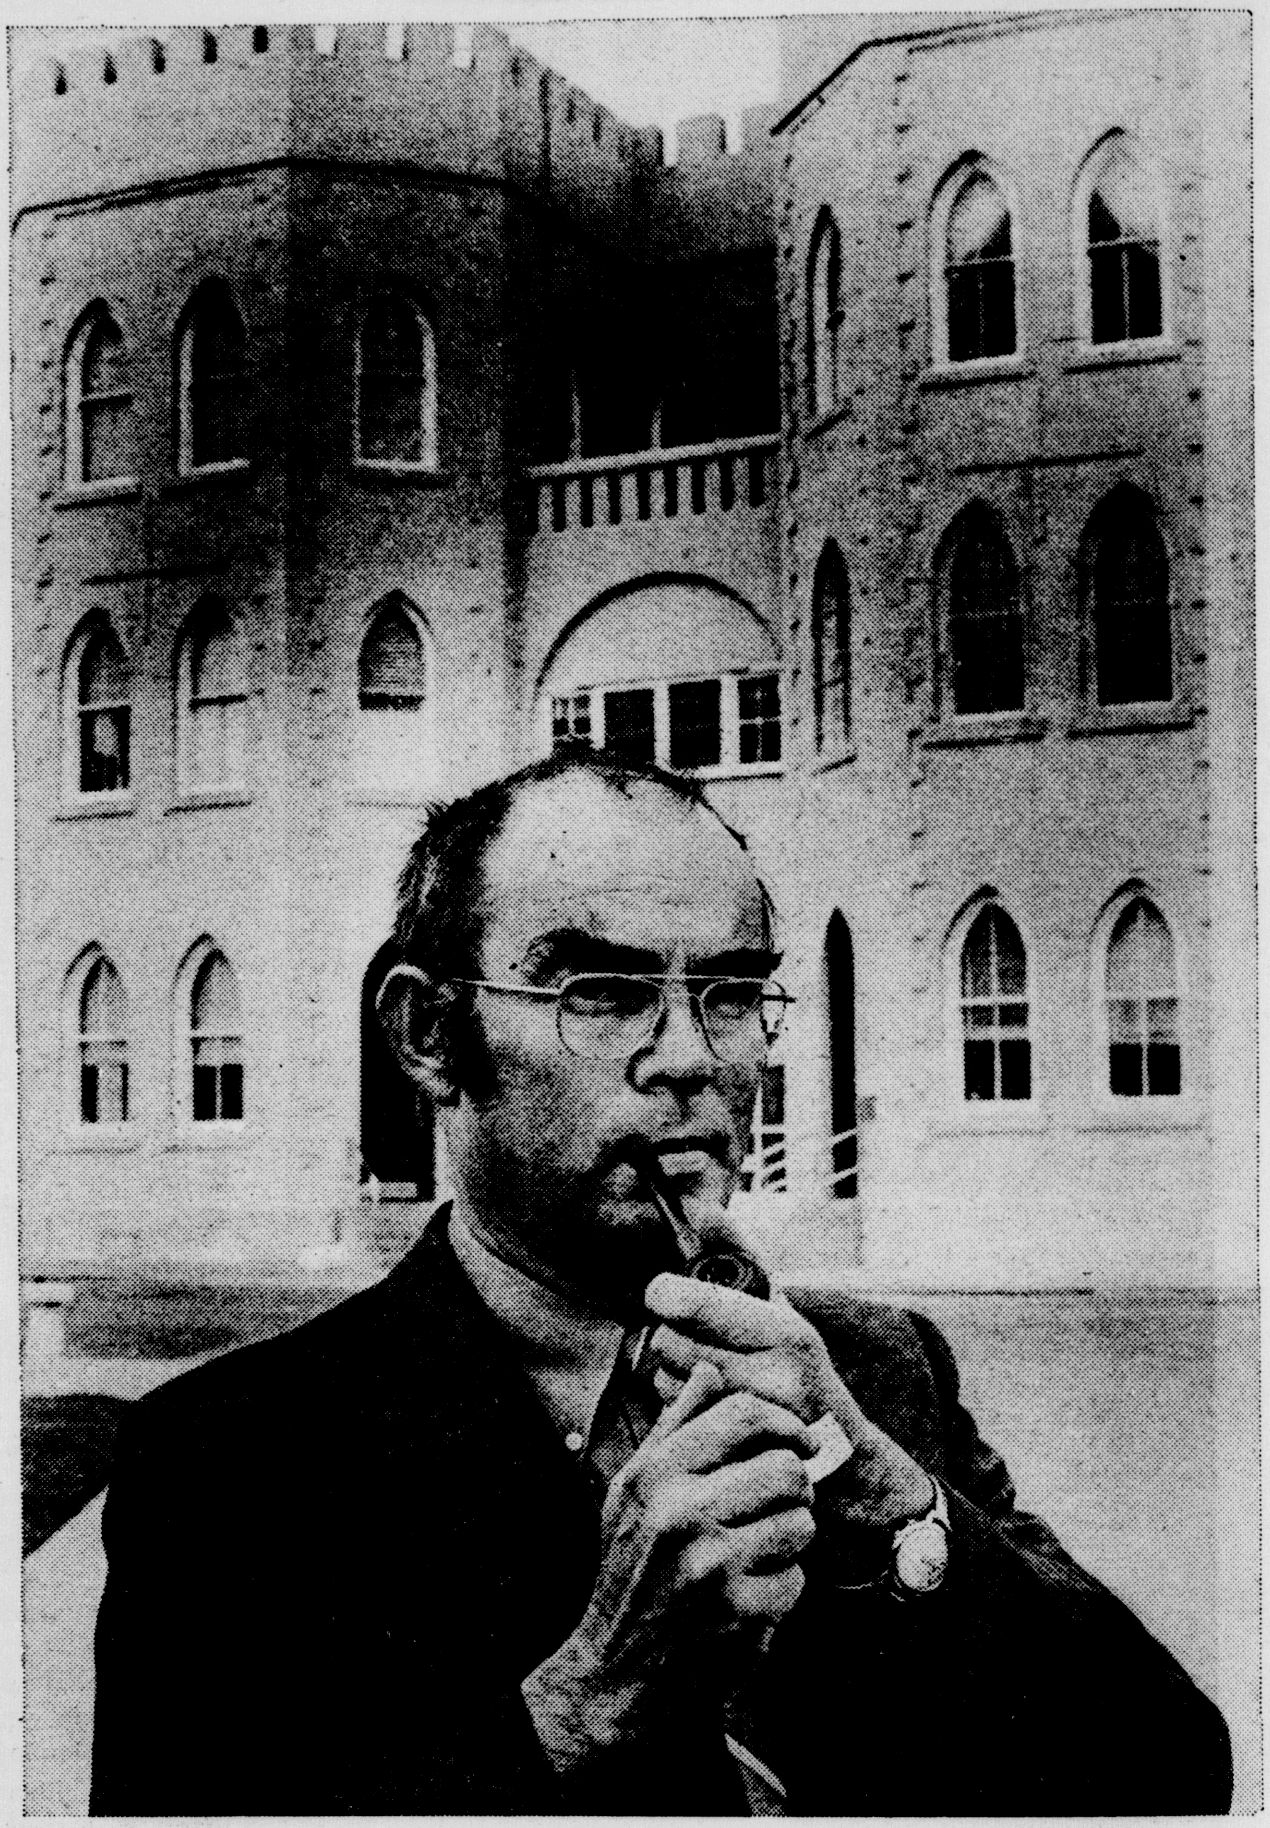
THE PRISONERS are, however, "people whom the community can't tolerate any more," Park said.

"What do you do about a guy who is just a persistent thief? Park asked. "It costs more to keep him locked up than he takes in loot, but I don't have the answer."

"The roots of crime are in the community — the solution has to be found there," Park concluded.

PARK TRIES IN his private life to "work within the system to make needed changes" and has been active in ecumenical housing projects.

Park's job, however, is really his life, and he has never regretted giving up pure psychology for prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he concluded.



JAMES W. L. PARK, associate warden at San Quentin Prison since 1964, says he has never regretted the decision he made to give up his earlier profession of clinical psychologist to go into prison work. "I always wanted to work with people," he says. And he finds the people with whom he works at San Quentin "full of life."

"Why Is There So Much Fuss Over Garment Tags?"

The reason is, sorry to say, that some manufacturers have used garment tags to mislead customers. Therefore the government has required that garment tags be more specific and truthful.

Some tags skirt the truth in describing fibers in garments. Now the law requires that tags give the generic name of the fiber; that is, nylon, polyester, triacetate, cotton, wool, etc. and the percentage, by weight, that the fabric contains.

Further, fiber trademarks may not be used in such a way as to imply that a fabric is made solely of a specific fiber, unless it is. Nor may a trade name be used that might infer that a particular fiber has been used, if it has not been used. For instance, a fabric could not be named "Nylonic" if it does not contain nylon. It is illegal, also, to picture a lamb on a tag if the fabric does not contain wool.

Tags must be truthful in every respect so that they may assist a customer in deciding whether or not she wants the fabric. And that, Mrs. C. H. N., is the reason for the "fuss" over tags.

The Talented Burkes

Husband-And-Wife Team Bring 'Show Biz' Experience To Marin

By DON KEOWN

Most creative artists feel a pride and a fondness for their finished work.

But Evans and Elaine Burke hold a special affection for their musical revue, "Burlesque Ain't Dead — Bump! Bump! Bump!"

For it was during their initial collaboration upon the show that a romance developed between Evans Burke and Elaine Fink and led to their marriage in 1956.

The following year they saw portions of the revue produced on CBS network television under the title "Party of Five" on the Repertoire Workshop series.

Through the years the married Burkes continued to polish and add to their script, Elaine doing the music, Evans the book and lyrics.

IT WAS NOT until last fall that the Burkes witnessed a complete, on-stage production of their revue, by the Novato Community Players in the Novato Community House.

And now, next Friday and Saturday, and again on June 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. in the Corte Madera Recreation Center, the Novato Community Players,

Developing Marin's Abundant Talent

Evans Burke Finds This Satisfying

with some cast changes and with new additions to the script, will again perform "Burlesque Ain't Dead," this time as a benefit for the Marin unit of the American Cancer Society.

Nor will those performances mark the demise of the revue.

"IT IS ONE of those things we will probably go on adding to and improving upon, for years to come," says Evans Burke. "Whenever we have the time, we sit down and go to work on 'Burlesque Ain't Dead'."

The Burkes moved to Marin County two years ago, and brought with them impressive backgrounds in the entertainment field.

Evans made his first film appearance in a Coast Guard documentary while in service. After his discharge he studied at the National Academy of Broadcasting and the Louis Thompson School of Music, both in Washington D.C. There, too, he acted with little theater groups, made radio and television appearances in nearby Baltimore, and with the help of his teachers rid himself of his South Carolina accent.

IN 1958 HE studied at the Gubi Mann School of Theater Arts while supporting himself as a nightclub singer and hotel clerk.

There followed several years of varied experience in show business including parts in such movies as "Once a Thief" and "In Harm's Way," work on television shows such as "Divorce Court," "Chance for Romance" and "The Pitts Showroom of Hits," television commercials, off-Broadway and summer stock acting, more nightclub singing and the operation of his own drama studio plus teaching at the Dartmouth Summer School of Theater Arts.

He formed his own troupe, the Random Walkers, to play the coffee house circuit.

IT WAS AFTER he had moved to Los Angeles that he met talented Elaine Fink while they were both appearing in the musical show, "Dakota." Then followed the collaboration upon their own musical revue — and marriage.

Elaine Burke is an Illinois girl who attended the University of Michigan for two years, majoring in music education, singing with a college dance band and appearing in musical shows.

She graduated from the University of Illinois with a Bachelor's Degree in Music, and wrote original musicals while there.

COMING TO California, she studied film scoring with Leith Stevens of UCLA and arranging with Hal Johnson in Hollywood, while teaching choral music.

With the "Hootenanny" the rage at the time, she left teaching to play guitar and sing with a folk music quartet called The Villagers. They played in virtually all the major concert halls of the country including a sell-out performance in New York City's Carnegie Hall, and toured military bases and colleges as well as clubs.

Elaine did the musical and vocal arrangements for an album recorded by the group for RCA Victor.

WHEN THE Villagers disbanded, Elaine joined a nightclub act and continued to travel, doing comedy as well as singing and dancing.

Then came the part in "Dakota" and the meeting with Evans Burke.

Following their marriage, the two formed a cocktail lounge act with Elaine at the piano and with both singing. They played principally in Southern California and Nevada.

IT WAS THE arrival of first child Mike, now 3, that caused a change in the Burke life style. As a father with family responsibilities, Evans decided to settle down to a more regular employment. Fortunately he was able to find a job that allowed him to keep his hands in the entertainment field — doing promotional shows on tourism for the flourishing Uni-

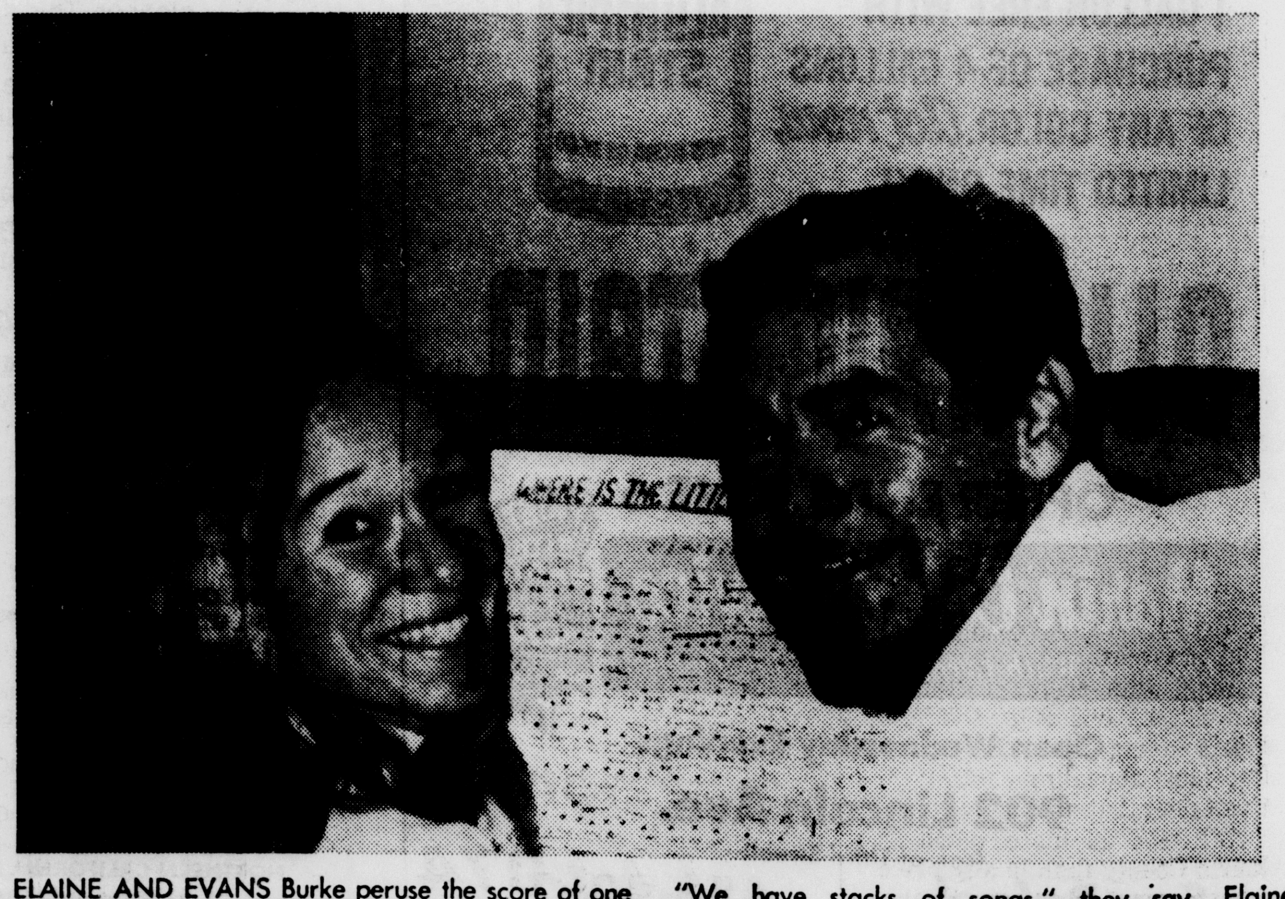
MUSIC NOT ONLY plays a major role in the professional lives and in the hobbies of the Evans Burkes, but it is also a big thing in their family life. In their Santa Venetia home, Evans and son Mike, 3, strum their guitars, while Elaine Burke and twin daughters Laura and Lisa, 1½, make up their appreciative audience.



ELAINE AND EVANS Burke peruse the score of one of the songs upon which they have collaborated. "We have stacks of songs," they say. Elaine generally composes the music while Evans writes the lyrics. But both can do either chore.

tours Travel Agency.

After a year of work for Unitours in Los Angeles, he transferred to Northern California and its Sausalito office.

The Burkes now make their home in Santa Venetia, and along with son Mike have two other children, twin daughters Laura and Lisa, 18 months old.

EVANS' UNITOURS job and the family's home life now come first with the Burkes. But "show business" and music remain very active hobbies with the two parents.

Thus their continued collaboration on "Burlesque Ain't Dead'' until it now totals 25 musical productions, blackouts and skits, performed with a nine-piece orchestra which Elaine conducts and for which she has done all the arrangements.

There has been other music-writing, too.

"WE HAVE stacks of songs at home," says Evans.

And he has written the musical score for a stage adaptation by Howard Richardson and Frances Goforth of "God's Little Acre" entitled "Honey in the Rock."

The original production plays for "Honey in the Rock" failed to materialize, but Burke still has high hopes for the show.

"THE MUSIC," he says, "is hillbilly, and I really think it is quiet good. The show is for a cast of six, and I believe it has terrific possibilities."

Elaine Burke gives piano lessons in her home.

She plays the French horn in the Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Non-Marching Band, from which organization most of the musicians in the orchestra for the Corte Madera performances of "Burlesque Ain't Dead" will be drawn.

THE BURKES have also formed a singing group called Generation Gap, composed of Marinites "a bit over 30."

Elaine, the director, describes them as "Johnny Mann-type singers." They sing such songs as "Up, Up and Away" and "Monday, Monday." And their next big date comes up in the fall when they will sing at the annual Ski Swap show in the new auditorium at the Marin Civic Center.

The group "does it just for the fun of singing,'' says Elaine, and holds no high professional aspirations.

DOESN'T THEIR Marin residency put the Burkes out of touch with the centers of show business in Southern California and New York?

Perhaps, they admit. But neither has any desire to return to Los Angeles or to the East — "to the rat race."

"We are simply wild about Marin,'' says Evans. And Elaine agrees.

Along with scenery, climate and culture, one of the facets of Marin living that the Burkes find most appealing is the creative talent that abounds here.

"THERE IS more talent in Marin County than in any place I have ever been," says Evans. "Much of it is undeveloped. But it is there, waiting to be developed."

He does just that in a drama workshop he conducts every Friday night under Novato Community Players auspices.

"My big stick in life is directing and teaching," he says. And he feels doubly fortunate in being able to realize those ambitions during both his Unitours "office hours" and his after-work activities. But he would like to see a county-wide repertory company in Marin that would perform the year-around.

As for Elaine, "my home comes first with me now. But I find time for teaching piano, for writing music and for the Generation Gap."

OF HIS WIFE'S musical compositions, Evans says: "While I can write music, and have done so, she is the expert composer in the family."

The Burkes take an interest in community affairs, too, and Evans serves on the board of the Gallinas Village Community Services District, and edits its bulletin, the Village Voice.

It's a service that Evans Burke particularly enjoys "because it gives you a feeling that you have roots in your community."

THIS ABSENCE of roots can be one of the occupational hazards of the entertainer, he notes.

A determination that young Mike and his little twin sisters shall never be confronted by this problem that has plagued so many offspring in show business families is one big reason why the Burkes are so content as regular residents of a typical Marin community. The bright lights of Hollywood and Broadway no longer hold any allure. They'll settle for their work with the Generation Gap or the Novato Community Players. And for evenings spent in the comfort of their own living room, their children at the sides or seated comfortable in their laps.

The Man At The Piano Bar At Rubini's

Career Of Lowell Hawk Covers 48-Year Span

Sitting in a silent movie palace playing the piano accompaniment to the antics of Charles Chaplin or the emoting of Rudolph Valentino may seem a million light years removed from today's quiet, sophisticated piano bar music of Rubini's restaurant in Fairfax.

But Lowell Hawk, long-time Larkspur resident, has done them both.

And he remains an entrenched favorite with literally thousands of Marin residents who continue to visit the Fairfax restaurant, not only for fine food, but for good music as well.

HIS YOUNGISH looks belie a background of experience that includes not only the silent pictures, but vaudeville, entertainment on board steamships on romantic cruises through the Panama Canal into the Atlantic, and concerts as well.

"I started playing when I was 10," Hawk remembers, "and I studied with various piano teachers. But I really learned music at the Army-Navy 'Y' in Des Moines, Iowa, during World War I.

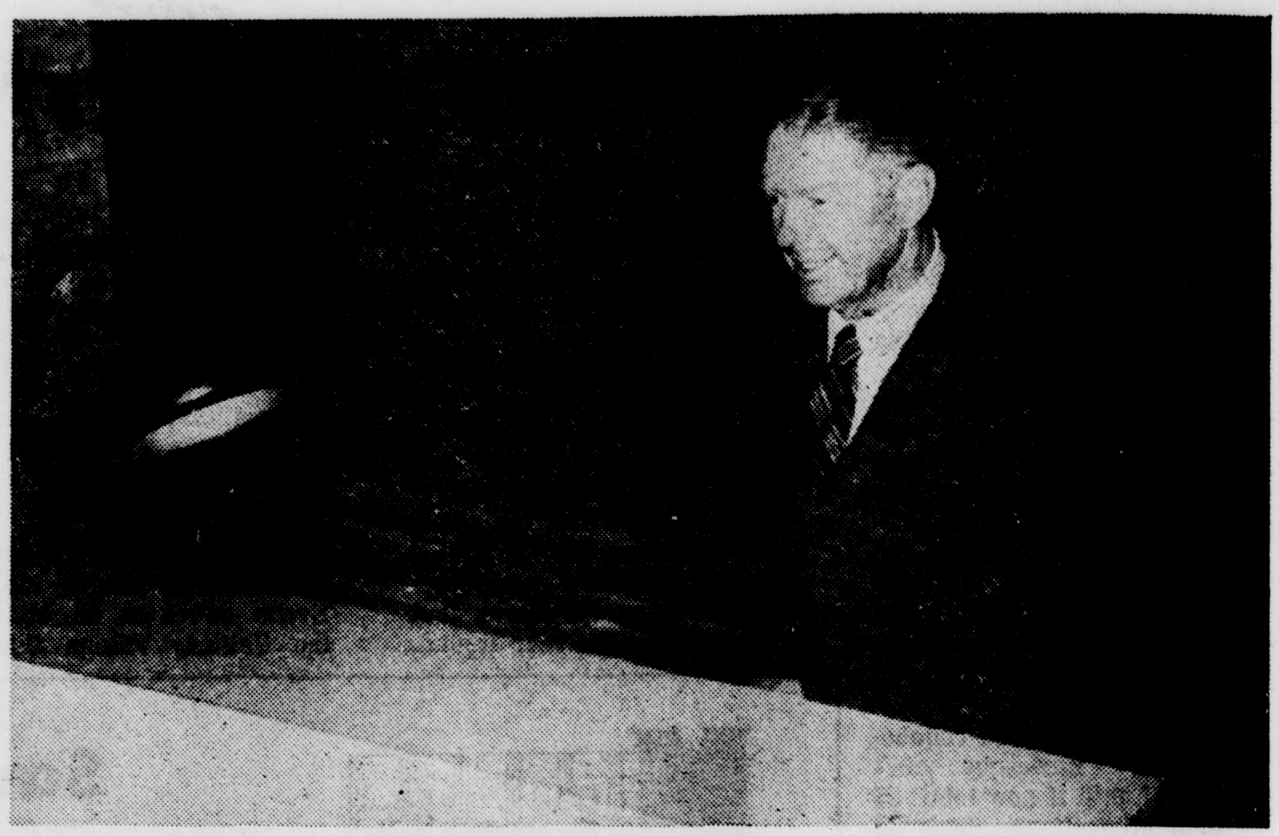
"I used to spend hours there hunting for tunes and chords on the beat-up old upright. Mother wouldn't let me play by ear at home. But the soldiers, sailors and employees were very tolerant, letting me, the only kid in the joint, whack away at the piano."

THAT "WHACKING away" led to a 48-year career in music that started with his first job playing at a little hotel on the Russian River in 1923. Hawk played the piano and worked with two of his brothers, one on the violin and the other on sax.

Two other brothers also enjoyed music, one playing bass, the other tuba, although all the five Hawk brothers never played together at the same time.

Following the Russian River engagement, Hawk attended the University of California, majoring in music, of course, and working his way through school by appearing at various campus functions with the Horace Heidt Band.

It was following college that he played aboard the steamship Manchuria, as she slowly sailed between San Francisco and New York via the Panama Canal. Hawk served as the orchestra leader on ship and made nearly 15 trips through the canal.



SINCE 1960 PIANIST Lowell Hawk has been a fixture at the piano bar in Rubini's restaurant in Fairfax, and he has built up a loyal following that comes to the eatery as much for his pleasing music as for the fine food.

"I LEFT THE steamship one year in New York," Hawk related, "and joined some vaudeville units, then played in the last year of the silent films. That was very rugged because you had to play all kinds of music, very quickly, keeping your eye on the screen and trying to get your timing just right."

Later Lowell went to Europe and started to study painting in Paris at the famed Beaux Arts. His art and music took him throughout Europe, Mexico, and even to Hawaii where he roamed about, meeting people, learning customs and always trying to entertain with his music.

During World War II, Hawk joined the Coast Guard band in Alameda, played at many service functions and even recorded special records for the Office of War Information.

"Then in 1951, playing at a church dance in Oakland, it really happened," Hawk said. "I met this girl named Margo who was singing and who wanted to play the piano with me."

THE TWO WERE married and almost immediately went to work at Seigler's Hot Springs where they entertained together.

Lowell joined the Eddie Fitzpatrick Band in Reno in the early 1950s, and while he entertained at the gambLing clubs Margo would sing solo at the Christian Science Church in Reno.

"When Fitzpatrick moved to Chicago I decided to stay in Reno and played at many clubs in that area. I remember one night at the Riverside when an old, grizzled miner came in and spent an hour or two just listen-

AT AN EARLIER STAGE in his musical career, Lowell Hawk, on the right, was photographed as a member of three-member Andy Potter Band. The year was 1926 and the band was playing in the famed Pantages vaudeville revue. It was but one stop in Hawk's long and varied musical experience.

ing to me play. When he left, he plunked down a silver dollar and said, 'Son, if you ever learn to play that thing, it ain't gonna sound no better than it sounds right now.' "

THE HAWK family returned to Marin in 1960 and he immediately went to work at Rubini's where he has become as prominent as the restaurant's cuisine and monthly art shows. Margo now sings solo with the Christian Science Church in Mill Valley. And on numerous occasions, the two have given concerts for Marin organizations.

"I also have continued my interest in painting," he added, "and have had two exhibitions at Rubini's. I never put my name on the paintings at the restaurant so, sitting at the pianobar, I can hear comments from the public. It's quite an interesting social study."

Hawk holds many ideas about the music world including one that today's rock style is "a healthy development."

"FOR A TIME, some of the big bands, like Stan Kenton, had become too elaborate and too sophisticated," he explains. "Then, as it always seems to happen, the public swung back and reacted to sounds a bit more down to earth."

Hawk compares Elvis Presley to Leadbelly, who was popular in the 1900s, and the Beatles music to the best folk music of nearly a century ago.

Looking toward the future, Hawk sees a gradual return to the big band sound, but in a more modern form.

"The bands used to play at hotels," he says, "but now

LOWELL HAWK was playing in the piano bar of a Reno club when this photograph was taken in the early 1950s. For a time he was a member of the Eddie Fitzpatrick Band in that gambling capital. And when the Fitzpatrick Band departed for Chicago, Hawk decided to remain in Nevada and performed as a "single" in many of the clubs of that area, before coming to Marin in 1960.

Requests Have Never Stumped Lowell Hawk

DURING A break from the piano bar, Lowell Hawk enjoys a chat with Dick Templeton, one of the co-owners of Rubini's restaurant with which Hawk has enjoyed a pleasant relationship as "house pianist" for more than a decade.

they'll probably play in concerts. One of the greatest developments in modern music is the Broadway musical with song and music as a major part of the production. Such shows as 'Fiddler on the Roof,' 'Cabaret' and 'West Side Story' rate as our American opera."

OF HAWK'S playing at Rubini's, co-owner Gordon Jones says: "He probably knows more than 10,000 different songs, and he has never been stumped by a request."

But Hawk prepares his music carefully.

He says: "It is at Rubini's piano bar that I use everything I have ever learned in music. It is a real challenge. And yet it is most enjoyable. With the intimate atmosphere and relaxed style, it's very much like playing in your own home.

Once with the Giant Boosters meeting at the restaurant and baseball's Chub Feeney present as the special guest, Feeney began to voice a request.

BEFORE HE was well into his sentence, Lowell Hawk was already pounding out a spirited rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

Once again the pianist had been equal to the challenge. And Hawk's fans roared with merriment while Feeney beamed his approval.

BEFORE REPORTING for work, Lowell Hawk relaxes with his wife, Margo, in front of Rubini's. They met in 1951 in Oakland and were married that same year. And since Margo was a singer, the two began almost immediately working together. The two still make joint appearances from time to time.

PERFORMANCES of "Playboy of the Western World" in Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais tomorrow and again May 30 at 2 p.m. mark the 54th annual production of the Mountain Play, making it not only one of Marin's oldest traditional events but one of the Bay Area's longest-running spectacles. And throughout its history, colorful costuming has played a major part in the success of the outdoor play, as evidenced by three photographs on this page taken in the 1920s. At upper left are Jo Hamilton and Marion Brune of the 1925 production — "Drake." At upper right, Marion Brune and Sam Hayes emote in "Flamenca" in 1928. And at lower left, Sam Hayes is seen as "Peer Gynt" in 1929. The picture at lower right shows Jean McKinney and Stuart Rudin, in costume rehearsing a scene for this year's "Playboy of the Western World."

The Marin 'On The Other Side Of The Mountain'

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on Marin County history completed for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by historian Florence Donnelly prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

In splendid isolation and amidst great natural beauty, the fortunate residents of three Marin communities — Muir Beach, Stinson Beach and Bolinas — live on what they and others refer to as "the other side of the mountain and on the coast."

Few resent the separation that Mount Tamalpais provides them from the pressures of a growing county population.

And all revel in the granduer of their surroundings — a surf that can be alternately wild and tranquil, rugged ridges of barren rock, green and forested hillsides, lush wildflower beds, valley meadows, sandy beaches and attractive cottages.

Sally Carrighar took note of it in her booklet, "Exploring Marin," published in 1941 by the Marin Conservation League.

"THIS ISOLATION of Marin's coast makes it especially inviting to those with the instinct to explore," she wrote. "Besides remoteness they will find variety of landscape: mountain-sides and meadows, a rocky shore and sheltered bays, forests and bare headlands. An explorer could reasonably ask for nothing more except rare wildlife, interesting natives and some outlaws for adventure. These, too, have been furnished by the west shore of Marin.

It is ironic that all this beauty made no impression upon the first white man to gaze upon it.

"Yet the first white man to see the scenic show was not impressed by it," wrote Miss Carrighar.

HE WAS LT. Don Felipe de Goycoechea, dispatched by California's provisional governor, as part of a two-prong effort to explore the Marin peninsula and determine the feasibility of placing a settlement on Bodega Bay. Juan Bautista Matute had set off by boat for Bodega, while De Goycoechea was given the more arduous tast of surveying the inland route with a party of 11 men.

The lieutenant's laconic reaction to what he was to see was indicated early by his appraisal of the hills west of Richardson Bay: "Fit only for cattle."

Farther north, the expedition apparently took the party of explorers through what became known as Frank Valley to Steep Ravine, past some of Northern California's most beautiful redwood stands and along some of its most grandiose coastal cliffs.

YET AS THIS point the young Mexican soldier was moved to comment only: "On the 13th, endeavoring to shorten my return route ... I made little progress, as not only were the animals tired, but there was a pine forest we could not penetrate."

"Most modern Marin-ers will feel that De Goycoechea had extreme regard for understatement," observed Miss Carrighar with considerable irony and understatement herself. "But (we) may remember that soldiers consider scenery professionally as something to surmount, to rest on, or be fed by."

And: "His business was not beauty."

This tone by De Goycoechea was to continue, and yet farther north he was to describe the marshland at the end of Tomales Bay as "a muddy little valley crossed with some labor."

STILL, HIS DIARY stands as the first recorded description of the unspoiled country that he traversed, except for notations concerning one small area, probably near Drake's Bay, by Sir Francis Drake's chaplain.

But if the natural beauty of Marin's coastline failed to impress Lieutenant De Goycoechea, it nonetheless had a lasting effect upon its development.

In 1793, De Goycoechea and his party found an Indian settlement thriving on the sandspit along the Stinson Beach lagoon. That beach was to play the key role in the community's later character.

Wrote Sally Carrighar: "On few shores has nature furnished a happier marine playground than here. The wide clean sandspit (formed by currents northbound along the adjacent cliff) is a fine place to swim, to hike, to ride a bicycle at low tide, to cook a supper, to play games, to dive into the breakers, to fish, or to lie in the lee of one of the little dunes and sun-bathe with the encircling hills absorbing the glare."

SAN FRANCISCANS, in particular, became aware of these natural attributes, and many began to build their summer cottages there. A certain number, particularly the retired and the artists, chose to make it their full-time home.

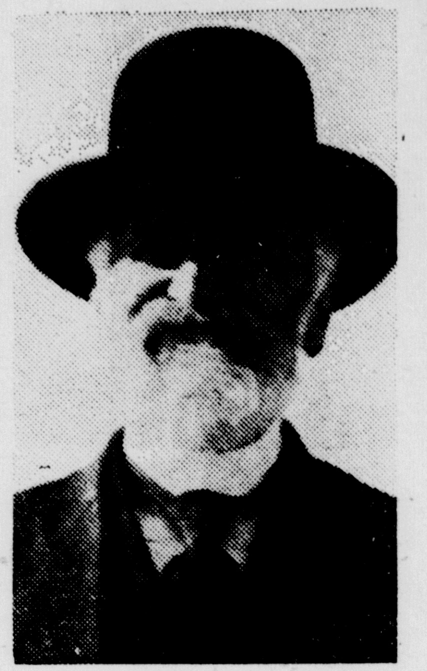
The private ownerships began to threaten public access to the splendid beach, but the voters reacted through the county's board of supervisors by reacquiring a portion of the sandspit. This became first a county park and then Stinson Beach State Park, still one of Northern California's finest and most popular outdoor playgrounds.

A stagecoach that traveled from San Rafael to Stinson Beach over the old Alpine-Fairfax Road across a grade so steep that often the passengers had to get out and walk to lessen the load for the horses, furnished the isolated community's principal tie with the outside in its early years.

AT THE END of the ride were inns — two of which were called Dipsea after the trail that ended at the water's edge — charming cottages with lush gardens, the splendid beach and sulphur springs that bubbled up at the surf's edge from, it was said, six miles below the surface.

"This is the only spot in the world where hot sulphur water, cold salt water and fresh water all meet," claimed an old brochure for C. E. Stewart's Fern Court Apartments.

The community had a number of early names, among them Willow Camp, Willow Beach and Willow Springs, attributable to the willow trees that thrived near the sandspit. But ultimately it was to be known as Stinson Beach after Nathan Stinson, the man most responsible for its promotion as a summer colony.



NATHAN STINSON, pioneer land-owner, was the man for whom Stinson Beach was named.

STINSON AND his partners owned and leased large acreages, including, according to a newspaper report, "the ranch which controls Willow Beach."

Stinso's son-in-law, N. L. Fitzhenry, was yet another great promoter of the beach.

It was colorful Capt. A. D. Easkoot who gave Stinson Beach its tallest legend, as related by Miss Carrighar in her booklet.

With the death of his dear wife in 1800, Easkoot became an embittered eccentric. He would sit all day upon the stoop of his fine white house with telescope and shotgun. And whenever a picnicker dared to as much as touch a piece of driftwood, all of which he claimed as his, Easkoot would fire a warning volley from his gun.

ONLY AN INVITATION for a drink at Brown's nearby bar would soften his belligerence.

The captain had a withered hand. After his death, local raconterus transformed the crippled hand into a golden hook and fabricated a story in which the hook mysteriously disappeared during Captain Easkoot's wake. One version was that a flod tide washed coffin and body out to sea as they were being driven to the Bolinas cemetery for burial. Anyway, it was told around campfires and hearths, the captain's ghost returns on stormy nightsto haunt his house while searching for the hook.

Most Stinson Beach residents were, of course, of a less volatile or colorful character, with the wealthier settling in the exclusive Seadrift colony.

MUIR BEACH had a history similar to that of Stinson Beach, although on a smaller scale. It, too, developed as a resort and summer colony.

Many San Franciscans and Marinites first saw it — and were charmed by it — while hiking on Mount Tamalpais through Frank Valley along the route probably taken by Don Felipe de Goycoechea past lupines, California poppies, Indian paint brushes, willows, madrones, live oaks and buckeyes, to the trail's end at Muir Beach.

At the time Miss Carrighar was writing, she described Muir Beach as "a small resort where campsites and a few cabins may be rented."

And she took special note of a natural phenomenon that still attracts attention:

"OF INTEREST to geographers and timid bathers is the unusual performance of Redwood Creek here. During the rainy season the stream is strong enough to push through the sandbar to the ocean, but as summer weakens its force, it winds up a warm lagoon, two to five feet deep."

Muir Beach had held steadfast to its character as a relatively sparsely-settled and quiet beach resort and summer home colony through decades. In April, 1962, the sale of the resort area including 1,000 feet of beach front and 12 acres of flatland — "not including the home of Dr. John P. O'Brien, the former owner of the beach property" — was revealed, with Robert N. Royston, spokesman for the buyers, also announcing plans to improve the place and to develop the lagoon for swimming.

A Muir Beach Community Services District was formed in 1957 and devoted much of its attention to the solution of the area's chronic water service problem.

A MORE RECENT development was the acquisition by the state of 15 acres at Muir Beach as an addition to Mount Tamalpais State Park — the big beach, a parking area and the willow groves nearby, omitting principally "little beach" —, thus as occured at Stinson Beach, assuring a continued park-like character for the waterfront with a well-maintained recreation area.

The residents of the area enjoy along with the great natural beauty and tranquility around them such sports as horseback riding, hiking and picnicking. And only an occasional flurry about "skinny-dipping" visitors to the beach has marred the serenity of the rural community.

Bolinas has had a somewhat different history than its sister communities of Stinson Beach and Muir Beach.

HERE, TOO, ITS waterfront location has been a major factor, and its name probably came from Francisco Bolanos, ship's pilot for Spanish explorers.

But tourism and summer vacationers had a somewhat later impact there, not being felt fully until the 1890s. It was agriculture and industry that first influenced Bolinas' development.

Bolinas' "first citizen" was Rafael Garcia who located on the Baulinas Rancho grant of 8,911 acres in 1834 and began to raise cattle, although his home was actually at Olema. He had been born in San Diego in 1790, a descendant of a member of the Anza Expedition, and served as a professional soldier. It was after his retirement that he was rewarded for his service with the Baulinas Grant.

IN FEBRUARY of 1846 he disposed of the Baulinas property to his brother-in-law, Don Gregorio Briones, and moved to the adjoining Tomales y Baulinas Rancho where he built an adobe ranch house. Briones and his family became the first white residents of what actually became Bolinas.

Both Garcia and Don Gregorio accumulated herds of cattle, and also raised horses and other livestock.

But the two factors that had the greatest significance in Bolinas' early growth were the great forests, principally redwood, fir and pine, that covered the countryside in the vicinities of Bolinas and Olema, and the navigability of the harbor at Bolinas.

Sawmills sprang up around Bolinas between 1850 and 1855 and it was estimated that 13 million feet of lumber was harvested and processed there.

THE LUMBER was hauled by oxen to Bolinas' wharf from where it was shipped to San Francisco to be used in the construction of that city's first wharves as well as its homes and businesses. Thomas and William Johnson, brothers, built a number of the vessels used in the trade at Bolinas.

One report says that upon the arrival of the first white settlers, Bolinas Lagoon "was navigable to most vessels and schooners." But silting soon forced the use of lighters to carry the timber out to ships waiting offshore.

After the larger trees near Bolinas had been cut, smaller stands were felled for a time and shipped to San Francisco as cordwood. But the lumber heyday was over.

EFFORTS WERE made to grow potatoes commercially and there were flurries of excitement over supposed coal, copper, oil and asbestos deposits, but none proved out.

Bolinas' brief fling in the industrial spotlight was over. It settled down to a less hectic role as a trade center for ranchers, and then as a resort for tourists and holidayers.

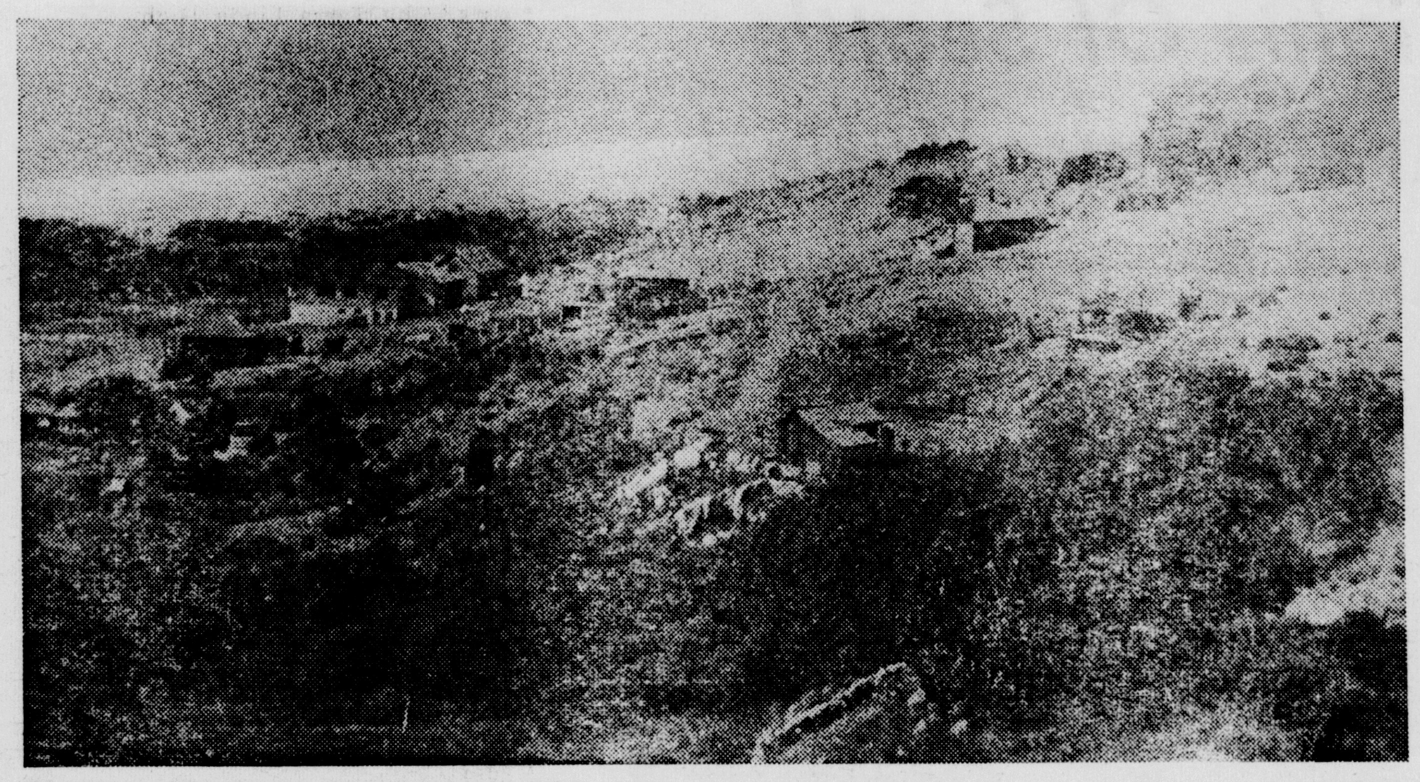
At the time the Frank Waterhouses of Sacramento bought the tract upon which the village stood, in 1882, it consisted of the Seabreeze Hotel, the Flagstaff Inn, a store, a livery stable for the stages and about a dozen houses, the largest of which was John Gibson's mansion, later a hotel.

The 1890s saw a larger influx of both holiday visitors and seasonal and year-around residents.

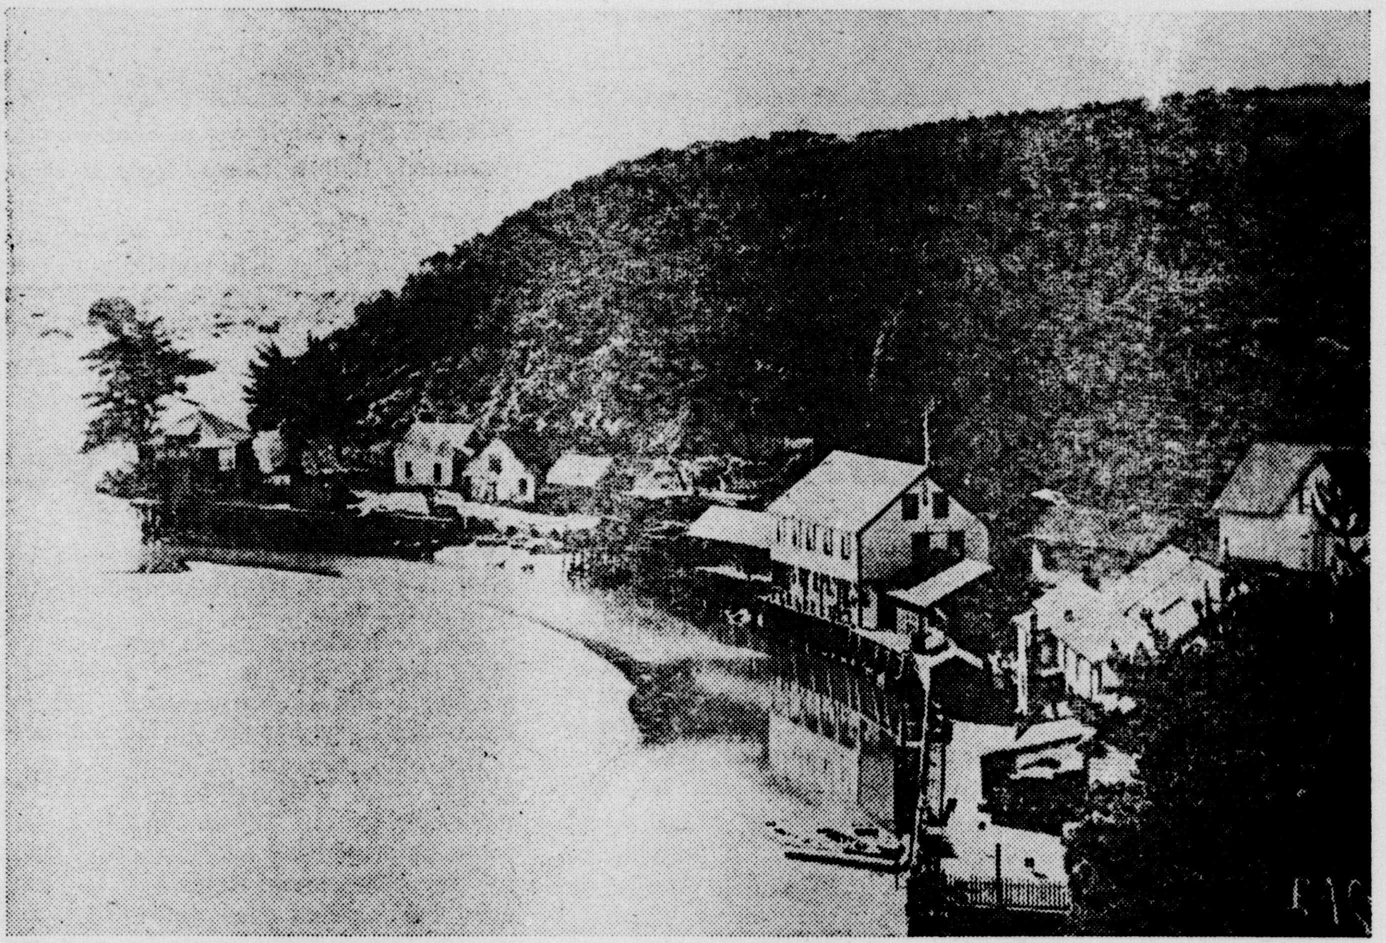
WROTE SALLY Carrighar in 1941: "The distinction of Bolinas today is the way it consciously ignores commercial progress."

But there are other distinctions, particularly in the beauty of its site and an abundance of teeming natural life — marine and tidal specimens in its lagoons, waterfowl along its shores, herons and egrets in the nearby Audubon Canyon Ranch sanctuary, and wildflowers, trees, birds and animals everywhere.

The motorist driving the Shoreline Highway from Muir Beach past Stinson Beach to Bolinas, or better yet, the hiker who walks through its valleys, cannot help but be struck by the beauty of the area, and to wonder how Lt. Don Felipe de Goycoechea could have failed to have been impressed, professional soldier though he was. For 180 years ago, it must have been even more impressive.

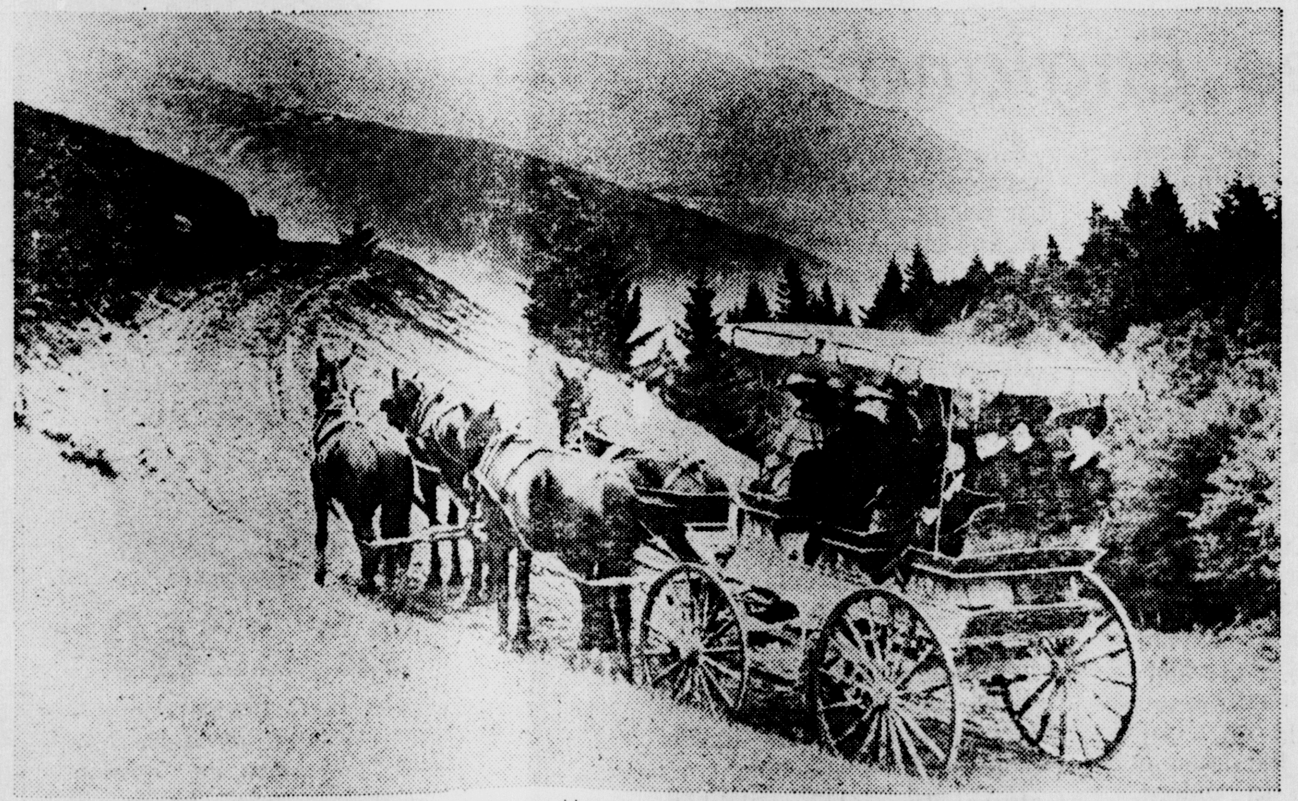


BEFORE MOST OF these cottages were built on the sandy hills of Stinson Beach and became the summer homes of San Franciscans, the resort area was known as Willow Camp. The year was about 1900. (Photo from Mrs. James Jenkins' collection)



ITS LOCATION on the waterfront played an important role in Bolinas' early history. Lumber cut and sawed around Bolinas was loaded onto lighters at the wharf and carried out to ships that transported it to San Francisco.

GENERATIONS OF Marinites and others have enjoyed relaxation and recreation upon the sweeping, sandy shoreline of Muir Beach, now part of the Mount Tamalpais State Park.



THIS STAGECOACH ran from West Point on Mount Tamalpais through Stinson Beach on to Bolinas, carrying tourists to the resort hotels and inns.

THE FLAGSTAFF INN, shown here in the Bolinas of the 1880s, was a long-time landmark of that community, popular with visitors and residents alike. It was first known as Ocean House, and was destroyed by the 1906 earthquake.

Sights Of Seattle Are Many, Varied And Easily Reached

Busy Waterfront Offers Visitor Good Starting Point For Touring

Fascinating though it is, Marinites can tire of San Francisco as the source of their cosmopolitan pleasures and relaxations.

When that occurs, they can always turn their attentions to the north — to such cities as Portland, Seattle and Vancouver.

The waterfront city of Seattle, built on a neck of land between Puget Sound and freshwater Lake Washington, is an especially fascinating place to visit.

With its 200-million-dollar port and 189 miles of docks and shoreline, Seattle offers tangy salt air, the cries of gulls and the romantic promise of faraway places.

THE CENTRAL waterfront is only a casual walking distance from the downtown hotels.

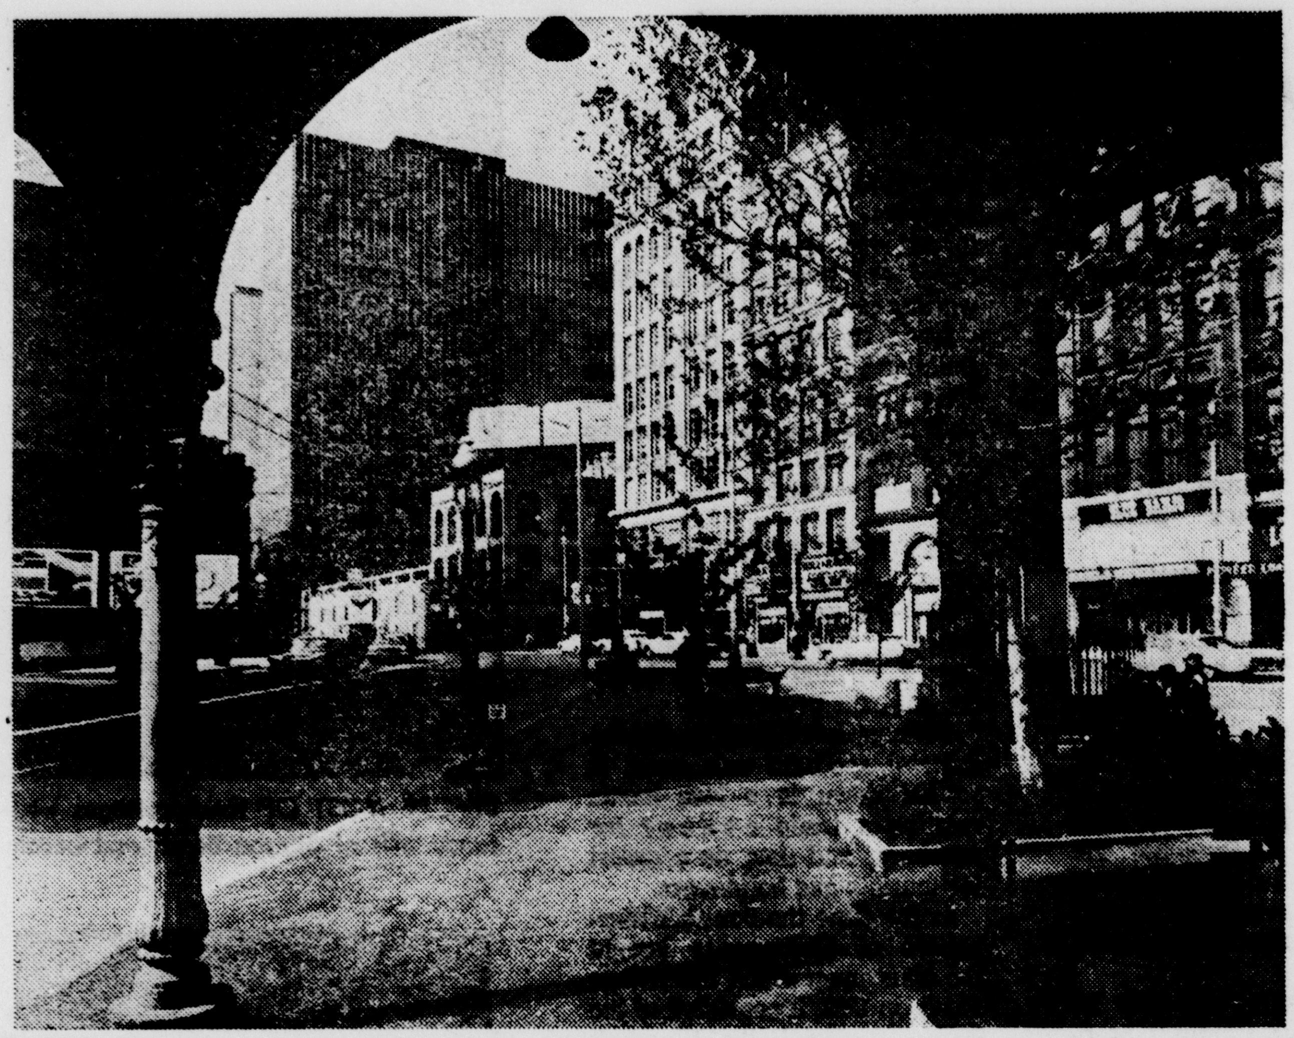
Seattle also offers some of the best seafood restaurants in the world, shops filled with gifts and goods from the Far East, and the Seattle Public Aquarium which from mid-May through September features daily shows with a cast of killer whales, seals and dolphins.

The largest salmon and halibut fishing fleets in the world move in and out of the harbor, and flags of dozens of nations fly from freighters and tankers. Giant rafts of lumber line the shores.

A HARBOR TOUR by boat is especially recommended for the Seattle visitor. The two-and-a-half-hour trip covers 26 miles and passes through two locks.

Ferryboats operating out of Seattle are yet another attraction. Their routes may go all the way to Canada's British Columbia, or simply to nearby Bremerton where the battleship USS Missouri is moored and open to visitors.

Northern Californians may not be willing to grant Seattle equal status with San Francisco. But a visit will convince them that the Washington state metropolis is, nonetheless, a fascinating place to visit and a blessed change of pace.



PIONEER SQUARE is one of Seattle's most colorful landmarks, and is located only a short distance from the bustling waterfront, and from some of the finest seafood restaurants in the world.

Tokyo Has Something For Everyone, Including Smog

By ROBERT C. MILLER

Tokyo today offers a little something for everybody.

There's smog for the Southern Californians, exorbitant prices for the New Yorkers, discrimination for the Dixiecrats, traffic jams for the Washingtonians and action for everyone.

The mini-skirt has replaced the kimona and they are now seen only in old Japanese paintings. The bowed "rice legs" are longer, prettier and straighter from the improved post-war diet, and all that Australian wool has ended up in smart gray business suits.

TOKYO SWINGS as do few other world capitals —for a price. And the prices are among the highest in the world.

The regal splendor of snow-capped Mount Fuji used to be a backdrop to the Tokyo landscape on practically every sunny day. The smog is so bad now, few natives even get to see the famed Tokyo tower for weeks on end. Windshield wipers are used in every tunnel to sweep away the soot and exhaust fumes that saturate the air.

Los Angeles residents arrive in Tokyo, sniff the local distillates and break into sobs of homesickness.

If you think talk is cheap, try a Tokyo bar. The starting price for a girlish giggle and beer pouring is $4 an hour — in the scrubby joints. Plus, of course, the $7 to $10 cover charge, plus the drinks at $2 a thimbleful. Providing, of course, the broad-minded owners allow foreigners into the place — and many of them don't.

TOKYO IS AN expense account town. There are no high-salaried executives; but plenty of big-expense-account types.

To escape the high taxes, Japanese corporations pay their brass low salaries, but give them lavish expense accounts, all of which are tax deductible.

The local publicans much prefer the trade of a Mitsui bookkeeper to a Texan and the Texan usually threatens to tear up the check and the nightery when he gets his bill. Hence, more and more of the Tokyo watering holes politely but firmly tell the tourists to take their thirsts elsewhere.

PEDESTRIANS are fair game whenever caught off the curb. Tokyo once attempted a traffic safety campaign with awards for safe driving. They junked the idea when there were no contenders for the prizes.

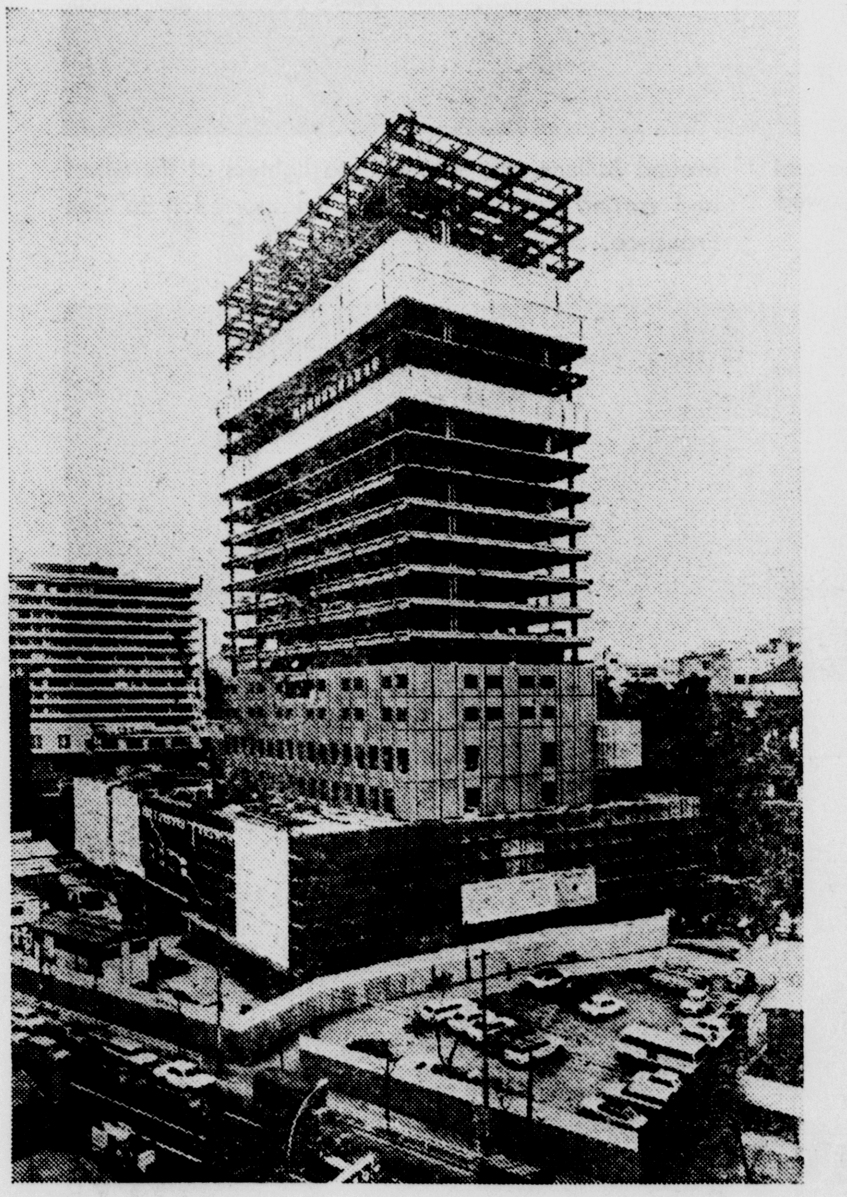
The brake-lining concession in Tokyo has to be one of the biggest money-makers in the country as every taxi driver is a frustrated drag racer who can go from zero to 60 miles per hour and back again in a city block.

The tourists weren't the only ones who read the ads about the delights of the Japanese hotsy baths. The bathhouse proprietors read them too, and correctly figured that such joyous pleasures should be priced accordingly.

A visitor today can just about install his own bathhouse for the price of a couple of visits to a Tokyo massage parlor.

AND AS FOR sin, the women's liberation movement attempted to outlaw it by abolishing legalized prostitution. They didn't eliminate it, they just about priced it out of existence. Pre-war Tokyo had a red light district of some 5,000 girls and no pimps. Today it has about 5,000 pimps and no red light district.

Three approaches per block in the famed Ginza are about average for today's tourist.



NEW ON THE TOKYO skyline is the fast-rising 28-million-dollar Hotel Grand Palace, scheduled for completion in December and for its opening next Feb. 20. Located on the north side of the Imperial Palace grounds near Yasukuni Shrine, it will stand 23 stories and will total 500 "American-sized" guest rooms.

The Leisurely Way To See England

New cruises on the River Thames and on canals through Britain's dreamy Shakespeare and West countries are in operation this year.

Two new companies sponsor these leisurely water-borne vacations from the work-a-day world.

One week jaunts run from London to Oxford, staying at country inns and at a stately home near the river.

J. Johns and Co. operate a fleet of standard draught inland waterway boats, each carrying four passengers and crew. They fly the flag of Lord Angus Montagu, who will personally escort many of the tours.

The final day of the cruise is spent sightseeing in Oxford. Cost is $278 per person for the week.

A second series of cruises is operated by Hotel Holidays Afloat along canals between Chester and in the general vicinity of London. These canals move through some of the loveliest countryside in Britain.

Cruises may be picked up along the route of the boats, with the entire trip from Chester to Hemel Hampstead (near London) taking approximately four weeks.

Sleeping accommodations include two single cabins, two double cabins with single upper and lower berths. Weekly costs: approximately $70.

Hotel Holidays Afloat is at The Boatyard, Market Drayton, Shropshire 2641, England.

The Lord Angust Montagu Cruises are J. Johns, 125 Pall Mall, London S.W.1, England.

Zihuatanejo: The Next Acapulco?

Cruise Line 'Discovers' New Port

Contrary to the popularly-held belief of many tourists from the States, Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan are not the only resort-ports located along Mexico's Riviera coast.

It is just that they are the most accessible. And the ones most practiced in accommodating tourists.

BUT THEIR very popularity spells change, and many a visitor to the jewel-like Pacific Ocean coastline of our neighbor to the north has longed for a look at a truly unspoiled Mexican seaside town.

Some fortunate travelers will be getting just such a treat in late 1971 and 1972.

Princess Cruises has announced that the picturesque port of Zihuatanejo has been added as a port-of-call for a number of cruises by its Princess Italia, beginning with the gala Christmas and New Year's sailings that will depart Los Angeles in December.

The Princess Italia will thus become the first luxury liner ever to call at Zihuatanejo.

THE SCENIC, semi-tropical village lies 147 miles north of Acapulco, nearly surrounded by mountains. But for those who wish to savor it in its natural state, time could be running short. The town of 3,000, with one of the finest beaches in the Western Hemisphere, is already being eyed by the tourist industry as "the next Acapulco."

Its romantic-sounding name has a most unromantic meaning — "dirty woman" — bestowed upon it for unknown reasons centuries ago by a Tarascan Indian chief.

And it was once a pirate base from which buccaneers picked off Spanish galleons following the coast.

There's a distinct Polynesian appearance to Zihuatanejo with its clean sand beach fringed by coconut trees. And it even has a Polynesian segment in its population — the descendants of islanders brought to Mexico by Spain for labor in the colonial days.

STANLEY B. McDonald, president of Princes Cruises, points out that his line was the first to permit its passengers to explore Puerto Vallarta, and adds that still other Mexican ports will be added as stopping points in the future.

Calls at Zihuatanejo during the 1970-71 travel season will include Princess Italia sailings for Mexico from Los Angeles on Dec. 15, Dec. 29, Jan. 14, Feb. 11 and March 17 — all 14-day voyages.

Shorter cruises will continue to make Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan their stopping points.

THE BEACH AT Zihuatanejo is as rustic and unspoiled as the shoreline of any South Sea island, and fringed with coconut trees with mountains in the background. The town of 3,000 is often compared to the Acapulco of 30 years ago. In December, the 420-passenger liner Princess Italia will become the first cruise ship ever to visit the picturesque port.

The Demise Of Sportsmanship As Reported By A Champion

By DON KEOWN

DEEP WATER by Don Schollander and Duke Savage; Crown, 276 pages, $5.95.

One by one the name athletes have been coming forth to pen, with the help of collaborators, their autobiographies and to offer inside critiques of their sports.

Swimming now takes its turn, with Don Schollander, its greatest performer of the 1960s, performing the rites, with the help of ex-Yale University roommate and law student Duke Savage.

But Schollander goes deeper than his own sport to take a penetrating and unflattering look at the whole amateur athletics system.

As he tells the story of the grueling work, the triumphs, the disappointments, the politicking, the sacrifices and the pleasures that made up his own six-year career spanning two Olympics, a long one as swimming competition goes, Schollander also explodes a few bombs around the amateur athletics establishment. This, of course, in keeping with the current trend that has seen a whole list of athletes, amateur and professional, expose the foibles and the fakeries of the games in which they won their fame.

Inevitably, such an undertaking also tells us considerably about the athlete himself, often more than we learn from the strictly autobiographical sections of these books. And, athletes being human, some of it is good, and some of it is bad.

Don Schollander, the Oregon-born, Santa Clara-trained golden boy of swimming, emerges from "Deep Water" as a decent young man, intelligent and to a degree, but not a great degree, idealistic. And intensely dedicated and self-disciplined.

On the other hand, he also appears to have been — and to still be — extremely thin-skinned and overly-sensitive ... to harbor more than his share of the jealousy that is one of the less attractive aspects of the competitive spirit.

His flashes of idealism are unevenly applied. Thus he could tour South Africa and be far more offended by a too rigorous schedule and by poor accommodations than by the racial segregation of his audiences.

It is not surprising, then, that he should criticize sharply the International Olympic Committee for banning South Africa from the games because of its apartheid policies, and to see it as a political rather than as a moral issue. Actually, it might appear to be one of those rare occasions when the IOC did act idealistically.

And nowhere in the book does Schollander indicate any concern that swimming, his field, is not only the last refuge of short-haired youth, but more importantly also the last of the lily-white sports.

One might expect Schollander to use his book to give fledgling programs aimed at opening up competitive swimming to minorities a boost. Instead, he is more concerned with the uneven application of amateurism's no-pay principles, with the threat of nationalism to the goodwill objective of the Olympic games (a legitimate and grave cause for worry), with the domination of amateur sports administrative bodies by elderly men out of touch with the needs of today's athletes.

The Olympic games, he claims, are on the point of collapse because of excessive nationalism and the intrusion of international politics.

"I do not think the IOC, as presently constituted, will ever undertake the necessary reforms," he writes. "I think the impetus must come from all over the world, from the athletes themselves."

But there are indications that largely as a result of prodding by Schollander, now a dean at Lewis and Clark College and a member of the United States Olympic Committee Board of Directors and the Amateur Athletic Union's Men's Swimming Committee, by ex-track star Billy Mills, and by others like them, the governing bodies are beginning a glacier-like movement in the direction of reform.

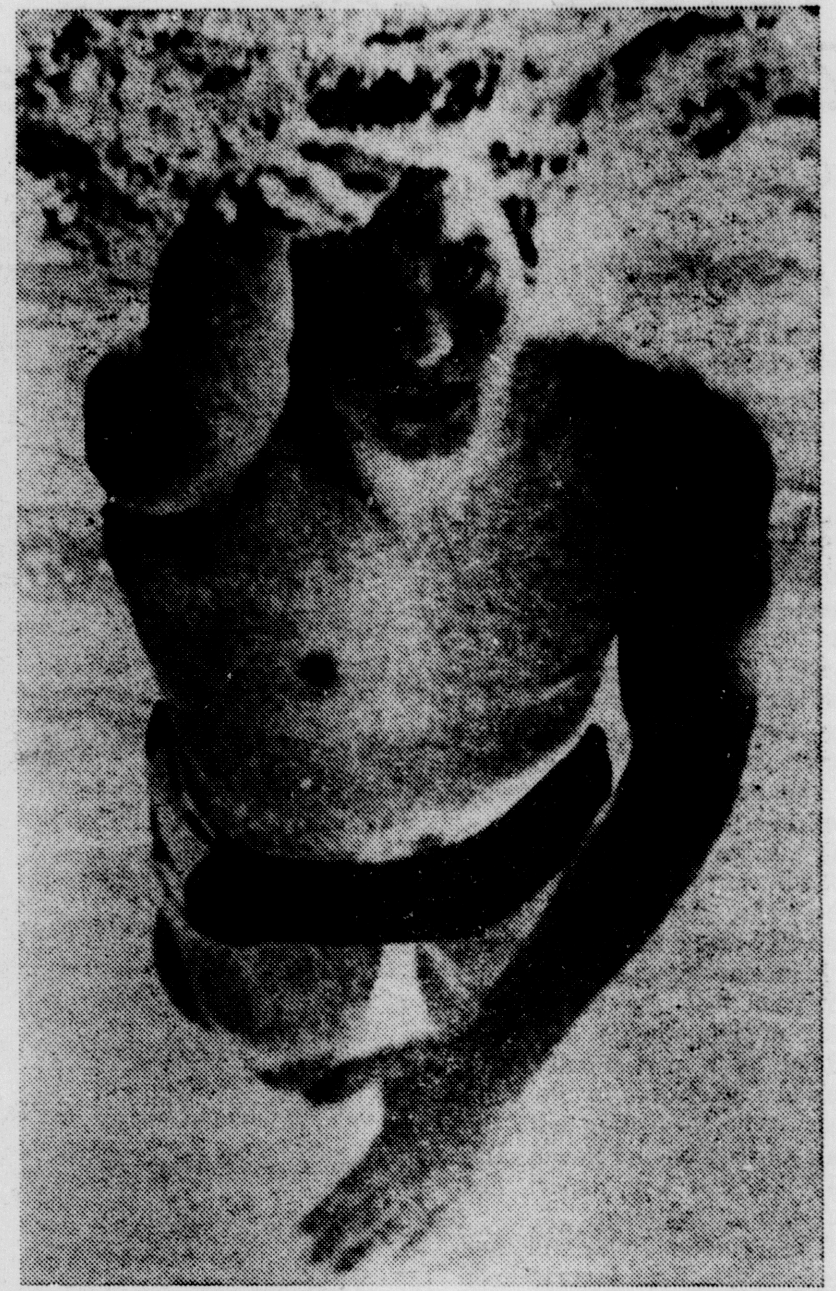
Schollander's points seem to be well made, and one is only disappointed that he did not dig — and think — deeper.

At the roots of the difficulties of all sports seems to be the erosion of that old-fashioned principle, sportsmanship. It is virtually gone in professional sports, where the objective now is to win at any cost including outright cheating. And it has been greatly diminished among amateurs.

Winning swimming, says Schollander, is 80 per cent psychological, 20 per cent physical. And a big part of that 80 per cent is a matter of "psyching out" opponents — and often teammates as well — before and during the race. The tactics used in this "psyching" are sometimes questionable at best, as Schollander freely admits.

It is entirely possible that what we need now is a de-emphasis of competitiveness and a revival of sportsmanship, from age-group swimming and Little League baseball on up. Leo Durocher to the contrary, good guys do sometimes win. And win or lose, they no doubt sleep better at nights. And their sport is the better for their efforts.

The autobiographical parts of Schollander's book, while almost secondary to the treatises on amateurism and its problems, are exciting and enlightening, demonstrating the tremendous ordeal that the athlete, particularly the swimmer, must endure to attain success, and the feuds and friendships that spring up along his arduous path.



THE FLAWLESS TECHNIQUE that made swimmer Don Schollander a five-Gold Medals winner in Olympic competition is shown in this underwater photograph, one of the illustrations from the book "Deep Water" by the champion athlete and co-author Duke Savage.

BOONTLING, the distinctive local "lingo" developed in Mendocino County's Upper Anderson Valley and used freely for four decades before and after the turn of the century, to the confusion of visitors to the area, has long fascinated students of language, western history and Americana.

The name came from Boonville, the town with which it was most closely associated. There "sleeping" was "sluggin'" and a bedroom was "a sluggin' nook." A pay telephone was a "buckey walter," a dime a "deem," a peach a "fuzzeek," a chamber pot a "tipin moshe" and a preacher a "skipe."

Charles C. Adams, chairman of the Department of English at Chico State College, has compiled "Boontling: An American Lingo With a Dictionary of Boontling."

Strangely enough, the publisher is noe one of the California University of history-minded presses, but the University of Texas Press in Austin, and the well printed and well bound book is priced at $7.50.

The book is more than just a glossary as Adams explores the origins of the jargon and its terms. Even the Boonvillers who spoke Boontiling in its heyday, 1880 to 1920, could not agree upon any one origin, and Adams makes it plain that the lingo sprang up from many sources and for a number of reasons, not the least of them the desire of insiders to exclude outsiders from their conversations. Not surprisingly, a good many terms were on the ribald side, dealing with subjects considered taboo at the time. With their own "tongue," the Boonville funsters could, as one boasted, "discuss just about anything" without giving offense to the uninitiated.

If terms like "yink" and "Belk" catch your ears and twit your curiosity, Adams' book, a readable study that catches both the more serious and the lighter implications of Boontling, will interest and enlighten you.

KEN MURRAY enjoyed a brief fling on television with his "home movies" of Hollywood celebrities, with much of the footage filmed at William Randolph Hearst's opulent San Simeon estate.

In "The Golden Days of San Simeon" Murray mines that rich vein again, with a book that exploits his personal knowledge of the place and the people who frequented it. Naturally, it is a record-breaking performance in the grand old sport of name-dropping. And many of the names are those older Americans remember with fond nostalgia, and around whom the younger generations have in some instances developed cults. And San Simeon itself demands at least equal billing with the celebrities. The photographs — Murray's own candid snapshots — focus upon both people and place.

And finally there's a foreword by Ronald Reagan that adds not a whit to the book except for one more name.

Doubleday is the publisher of the $10 book, and it should more than please the many fascinated by this splendid monument to one man's vanity.

Sleuths & Suspense

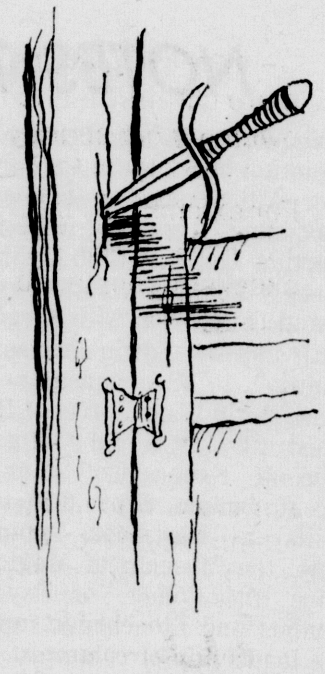
THE BAXTER LETTERS by Dolores Hitchens; Putnam, 189 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

The heroine of this new mystery is cast in the old mold of the country girl who comes to the big city and is taken in by a slicker.

Jennifer Hamilton is modern enough to share the Now Generation's outlook on marriage, or lack of it, but she is dreadfully taken in the the aspiring playwright she moves in with.

Not only is she supporting this bum by pounding a typewriter all day, but she manages to get mixed up in a very complicated plot which begins with a letter from a black-sheep uncle who is in Mexico.

The $300 he sends in exchange for delivering a letter seems like manna (even if the playwright spends most of it for a tape recorder), but Jennifer finds she has become caught up in a frightening and complicated web that includes murder.

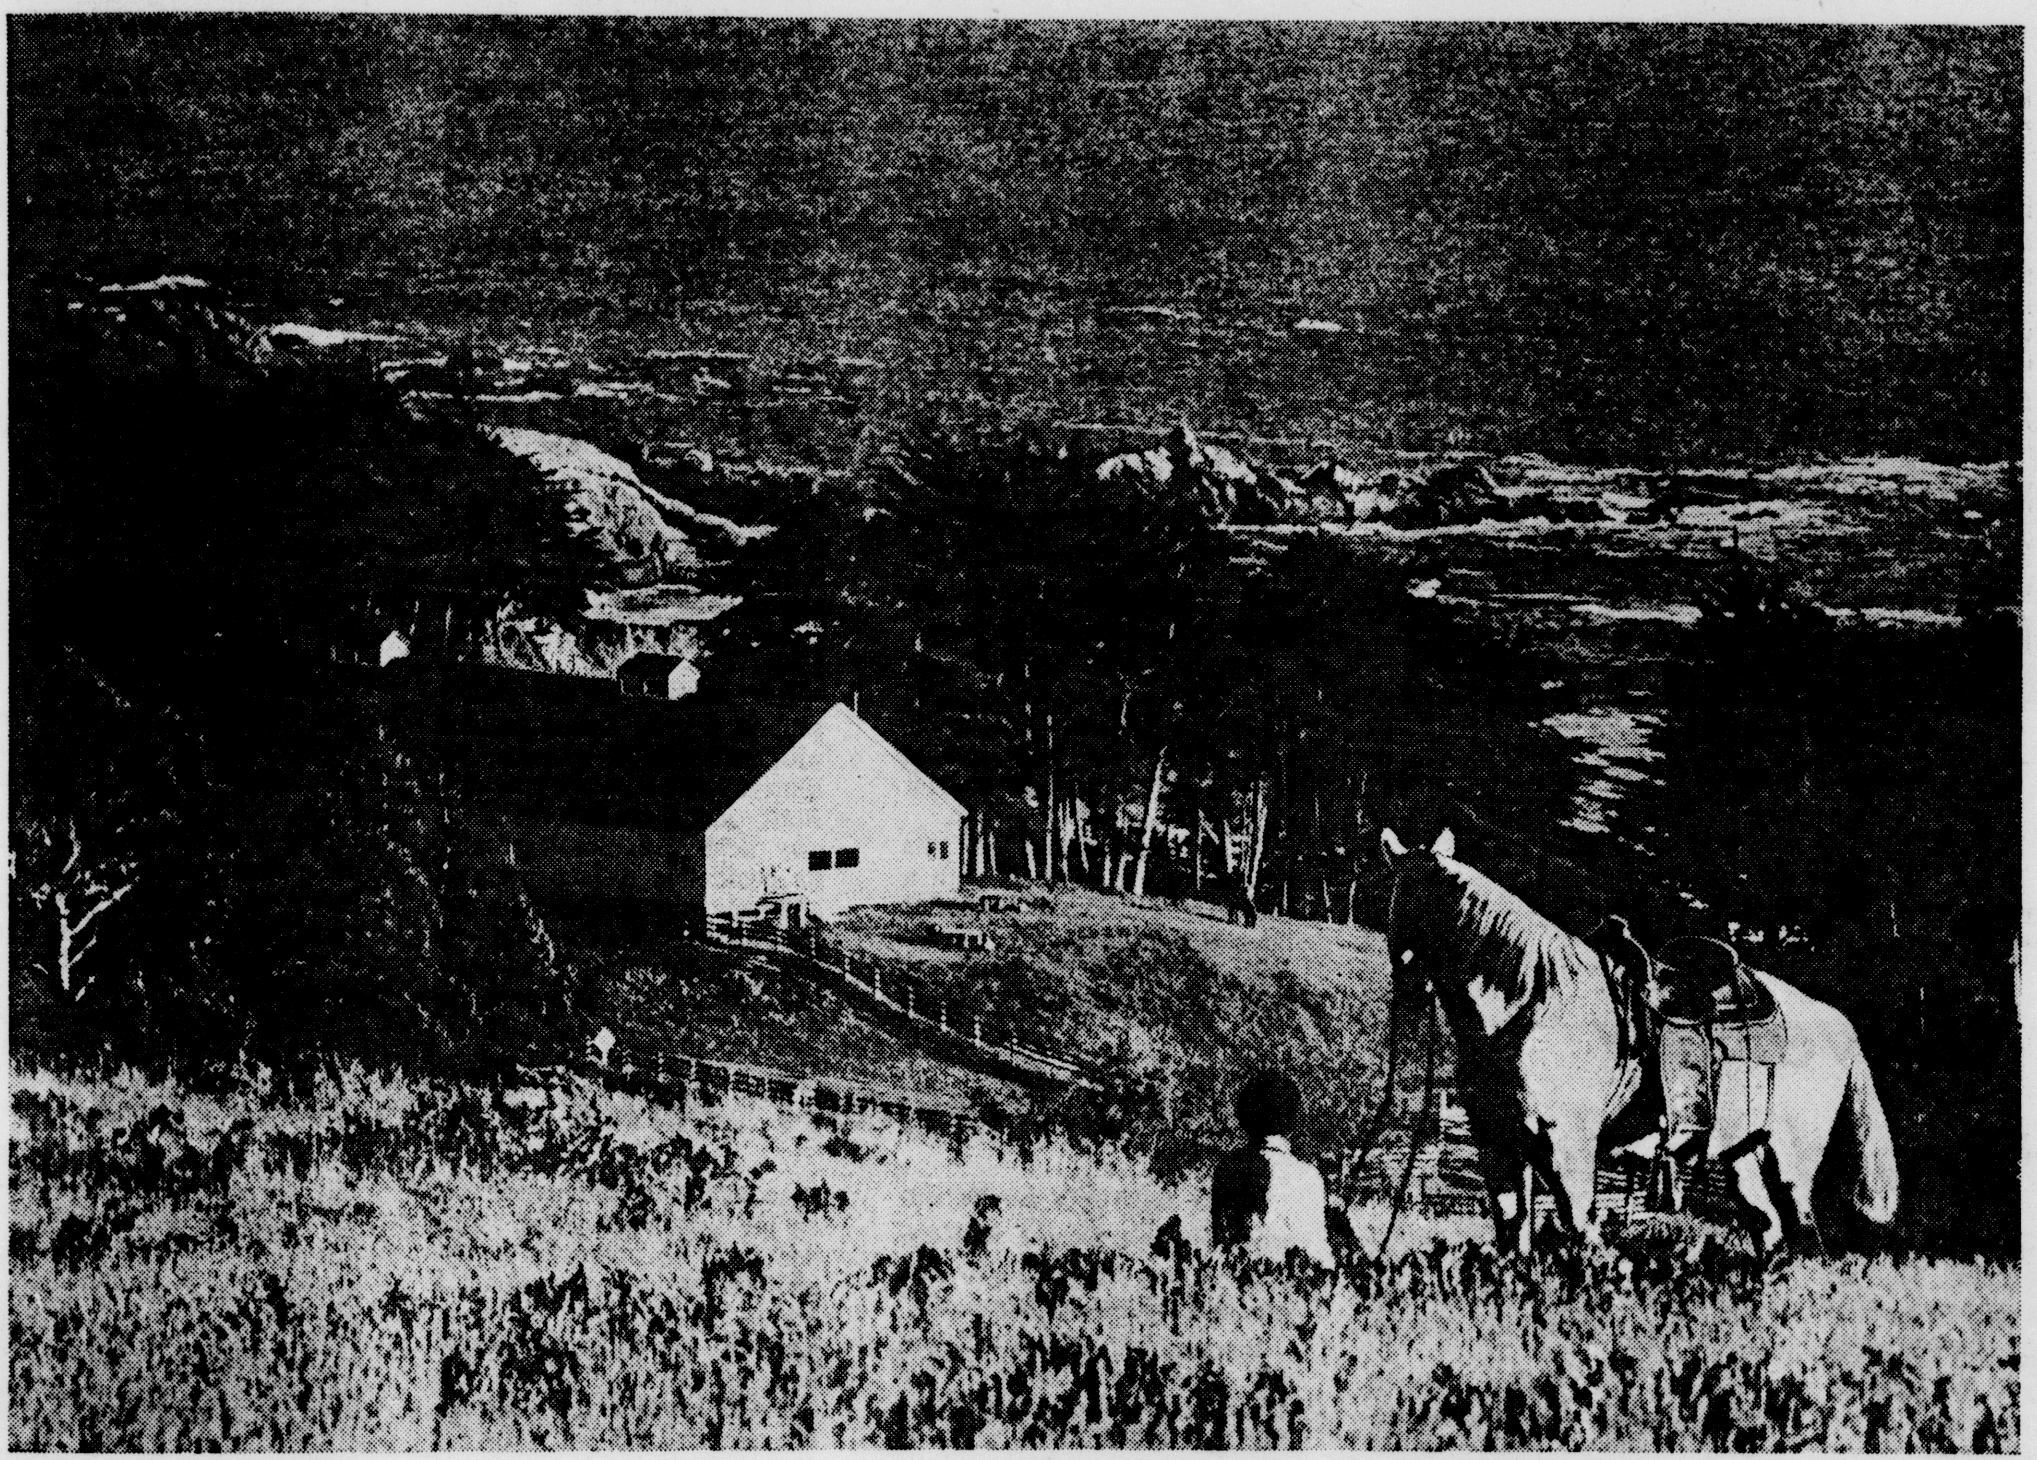


Despite Jennifer's seeming inability to take care of herself in the most rudimentary fashion, the book is quite entertaining and a tidy little suspense story.

The Sea Ranch

Beautiful country home colony on the Sonoma coast

It gives you the pleasures of a country estate —without the cost



Miles of riding trails fan out from The Sea Ranch stable. An Ernest Braun photograph.

Country living at The Sea Ranch is far more carefree—and far less costly—than owning most country property.

For example, there's no need to plan an expensive pool. Sea Ranch residents have excellent pool facilities, complete with saunas.

If you enjoy a game of tennis, The Sea Ranch has courts of exhibition quality.

For those who like to ride, The Sea Ranch maintains an excellent stable where horses may be boarded or rented. And there are over 16 miles of bridle trails through forests and meadows to explore.

There is even a private Sea Ranch landing strip for residents who wish to fly to their country homes.

Guests? There's no need to build special accommodations. Your friends can plan an overnight stay at the handsome Sea Ranch Lodge overlooking the Pacific.

Another thing to consider is security. And here it is good to remember that a security patrol protects Sea Ranch property, admitting only residents and their guests.

With all these obvious advantages, Sea Ranch living also gives you all the privacy and freedom of large country acreage. The Sea Ranch master plan reserves hundreds of acres for preservation in their natural state. Meadow homes are grouped around great open land areas. You can go for long walks, explore the headlands and quiet sea coves, and hardly meet a soul.

Find out why a country home at The Sea Ranch—just 2½ hours north of San Francisco—should be part of your life. Send the coupon today for further information.

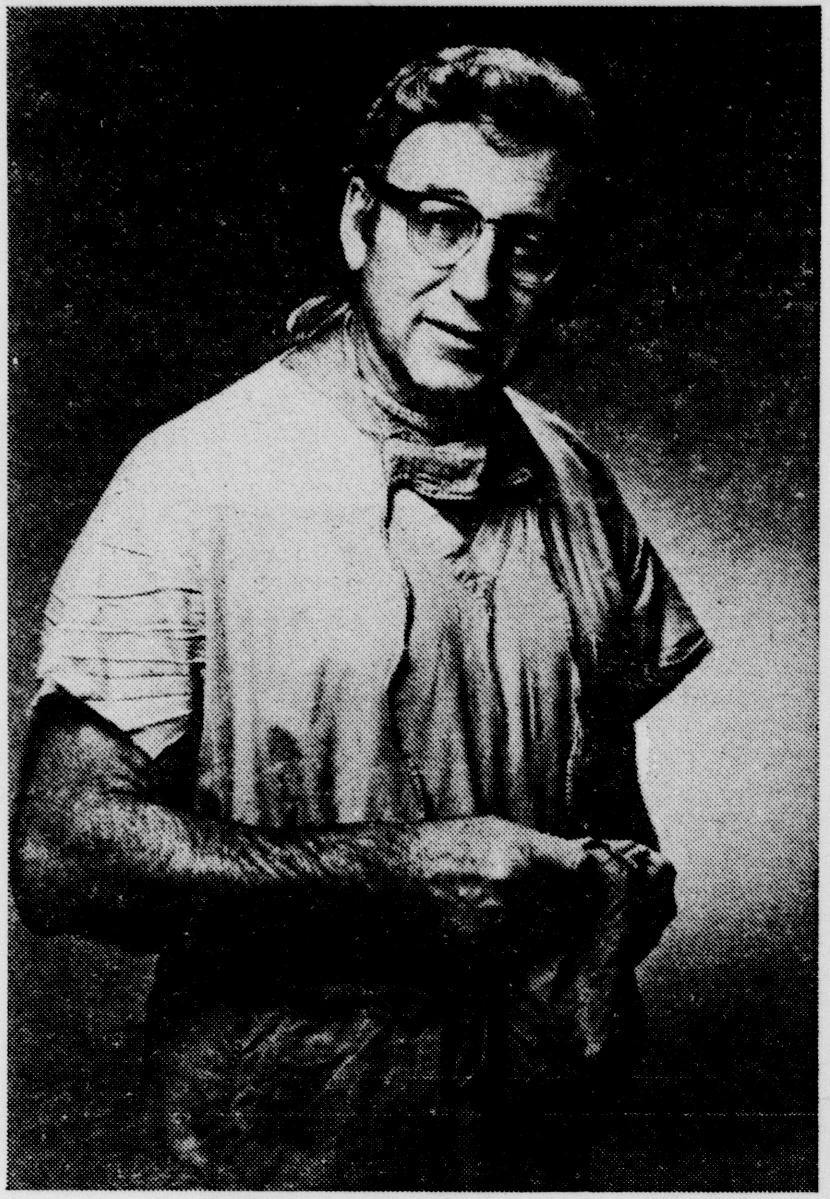
The Doctor's Question



DR. ALEX GERBER
Some healthy pokes

THE GERBER REPORT by Dr. Alex Gerber; David McKay, 242 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

There has been a fair share of criticism about the state of health care in the United States and soaring medical costs, but when it comes from a practicing physician it has a stronger impact.

Dr. Gerber tells, without mincing words, what's wrong with health care and takes a few healthy raps at the American Medical Association along the way.

He charges there is a critical shortage of doctors for which the AMA "bears a heavy share of responsibility"; a shortage that has resulted in the U.S. depending upon importation of foreign graduates.

"The simple fact is that no real improvement in the quality and availability of medical care can be expected until we come to grips with the critical problem of the shortage of doctors," Dr. Gerber says.

Furthermore, there is a serious maldistribution of physicians, since they aren't enthusiastic about practicing in urban and rural slums.

On medical costs, he contends, the problem is not so much the actual cost but whether the patient is getting his money's worth in quality.

Many unnecessary operations are performed, he claims, "an example among many where our health care has gone terribly wrong."

Dr. Gerber decries clumsily-performed operations by unqualified doctors, fee-splitting and "ghost surgery," where one doctor substitutes for another unbeknownst to the patient.

He calls for expansion of medical schools with substantial federal aid to increase the supply of doctors, tighter policing of doctors and hospitals and compulsory national health insurance.

According to World Health Organization statistics, the U.S., richest country in the world, ranks 18th among nations in infant mortality, 22nd in longevity.

"Why are we not the healthiest?" Dr. Gerber asks.

A Case For The Free University By Harold Taylor

HOW TO CHANGE COLLEGES by Harold Taylor; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 180 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

It seems that everybody these days is writing that radical changes are required in our educational system. But what changes should be made and who should make them are subjects of a wide variety of opinions.

Harold Taylor, who acquired his appreciation of student activism while president of exclusive, female Sarah Lawrence College, has become one of the principal advocates of change to non-structured, non-graded, non-semestered education, with students to have wide choice of their own curriculum.

That is again his theme in "How To Change Colleges."

He sets the theme in his introduction: "If the educators do not wish to be serious about making the university into a place where students can live a rich, rewarding, and lively intellectual life — an engaged life that commits them to the cause of mankind — they should move over and give the students a chance to invent their own university. Some of the students are already trying to do that, and they need help."

They need help, of course, from people like Harold Taylor.

By careful selection, he builds a case in favor of the "free university," emphasizing all the advantages of student activism and student choice, and ignoring or disparging all the advantages and accomplishments of educational institutions structured to impart knowledge rather than merely to "involve" their students.

Those who agree with his philosophy will like the book.

Invitations To Murder?

THEY ASKED FOR DEATH by Marshall Houts; Cowles, 241 pages $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Frequently when misfortune befalls someone, acquaintances will say, "He asked for it." But that summation is seldom heard when the topic is murder.

In a study of murder victims, Houts, a lawyer who has been a deputy coroner and judge, makes a strong case that there are people who "ask" to be murdered.

His case histories indicate there are people who are murder-prone as there are people who are accident prone; people who goad others until it ends in murder.

The motives, actions and the attitudes of the victim provide an insight into the act of murder and are more intriguing than those of the murderer, considering that the victim sacrifices his life.

A Tale Of Demonology

THE EXORCIST by William Peter Blatty; Harper & Row, 340 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

William Peter Blatty's new novel is an assured commercial success, a Literary Guild alternate choice, with both motion picture and paperback reprint rights already sold.

With "demonology" as its central theme, it deals with a subject of considerable popular interest right now.

An 11-year-old girl begins to exhibit the symptoms of being "possessed," so that her desperate actress-mother turns for help first to doctors and psychiatrists, and then to a Jesuit priest and the ritual of exorcism.

The struggle for the child's soul is a grim one, presented with considerable suspense by Blatty. Evident is the research Blatty has down into the shadowy field of demonology with its conflicting roots in religion and superstition. An eerie mood is sustained, with the most jarring and disturbing notes coming from an unnecessary, pretentious indulgence in four-letter words.

"The Exorcist" is a far cry from the farcical "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" and "Which Way to Mecca, Jack?" with which Blatty arrived upon the literary scene. This spooky story of a conflict between Satan and Christianity, between rationalism and the supernatural, makes for somber reading. But it is well-done, and winds up with a surprise ending likely to catch the hypnotized reader off-guard.

Both Patient And Psychiatrist

CASE HISTORY by Benjamin Siegel; David McKay, 278 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Dee Dinsmore.

Benjamin Siegel has followed his successful "Doctors and Wives" with a stirring novel about a psychiatrist. And, in the process, he delivers a little food for thought on the profession itself.

Each day Dr. Max Norway sat in his office listening to the people who came to him for help — the housewife with the overwhelming urge to kill her children, the teacher with his hidden fears. . .men and women from ordinary walks of life with very unordinary problems.

As he listens, Norway reflects on his own life and suffers doubts of his ability as a psychiatrist, a husband and as a human being. He becomes, himself, the "Case History," both patient and doctor. His thoughts return to hischildhood, his schooling, his marriage, his first patients, and he wonders if everything should have been done differently and where and why he failed. Only through a tragedy involving one of his patients does he find his answers.

Siegel writes with genuine understanding and remarkable perception of the troubled mind and, undoubtedly, has another best-seller.

The Predators Of Business

THE MERGER GAME by Stan Sauerhaft; Crowell, 161 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Harry Craft.

Sauerhaft, vice president of a large public relations firm that has defended many organizations against corporate raiders, takes a behind-the-scenes look at the modern business swashbuckler — the conglomerator — and his seizures of innocent corporations.

All the ploys and devious methods for gaining control of unsuspecting companies are exposed in a series of hypothetical and humorously-presented incidents, covering everything from stock raids to cash tender offers, influencing stockholders and proxy soliciting.

The raiders are professionals who go after their prey with no holds barred. The victims are often so unsuspecting that they do not know what is going on and are easily ensnared, but sometimes they stand and fight to survive. Sauerhaft shows just why a company is chosen as a target and explores the avenues open for checkmating the raiders.

He also exposes the inner working of that great spring event, the stockholders meeting — how low profits, cut dividends and high expenses are explained away and complaints from stubborn shareholders parried.

New restrictive legislation has slowed down forcible takeovers, but many of the conglomerators' tricks, refined and cloaked in respectability, are still in use.

Anyone who has ever voted his stock in a corporation for or against a merger or expects to do so should find the book helpful in detecting hidden maneuvering.

Water, Fertilizer Work Together

It's a known fact that some people eat more than others, and it's also common knowledge among lawn and garden experts that some grasses have greater appetites for fertilizer than others.

However, much leeway exists in lawn fertilization, depending upon the condition of the soil, individual lawn color preference and, of course, the variety of grass chosen for the lawn.

For example, heavy feeding varieties (such as blue grass) may require on the average of a pound of nitrogen for every 1,000 square feet of growing area for proper leaf development.

GARDEN FERTILIZERS are commonly sold in 50 or 100-pound sacks; a typical bag may contain 12 pounds of nitrogen, 12 pounds of phosphorus nad 12 pounds of potassium. The remaining weight usually consists of some form of filler material.

Nitrogen, as mentioned, promotes leaf growth. Phosphorus encourages root growth.

Potassium strengthens the stock of the plant which connects the two.

Adequate watering is the key to obtaining full value from your investment in lawn fertilizers. In order to do their work, nutrients must reach the root systems. This can be accomplished by watering to a depth of about six inches once a week.

THE WATERING LINE can be greatly reduced by using a large diameter hose.

More fertilizer is required for California's irrigated lawns, and many of the newly developed grasses usually "eat" more than common varieties. It is recommended that light feedings should be the rule for all grasses during warm weather and, as the temperature drops, the fertilization program should be increased.

Low-mowed turfs create situations where the roots are under stress — more closely exposed to heat because there's less grass covering the surface of the ground. If lawns are mowed low, an additional treatment of approximately a half-pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet should be applied during the summer months.

IDEALLY, FERTILIZERS are developed to replace the nutrients missing in the soil. However, it is often difficult to have soil tested before additional nutrients are added. Therefore, practically any reputable turf fertilizer will work.

In most cases, it is not necessary to worry about over feeding the soil with additional nutrients.

To coincide with fertilization, many experienced lawn experts incorporate some form of herbicide for weed control.

Some grassy weeds, such as crabgrass, must be treated with pre-emergence product to be really effective. But other weeds, such as the dandelion, plantain, dock and other broad-leaf pests, can be treated while they are growing and even after they have attained their growth.

REMEMBER TO USE the least potent chemical that will do the job for you, and don't over-apply.

Colors You Can Cascade

More and more beauty-conscious Marinites are achieving special effects around their homes and gardens by using plants in hanging baskets and letting the colors cascade.

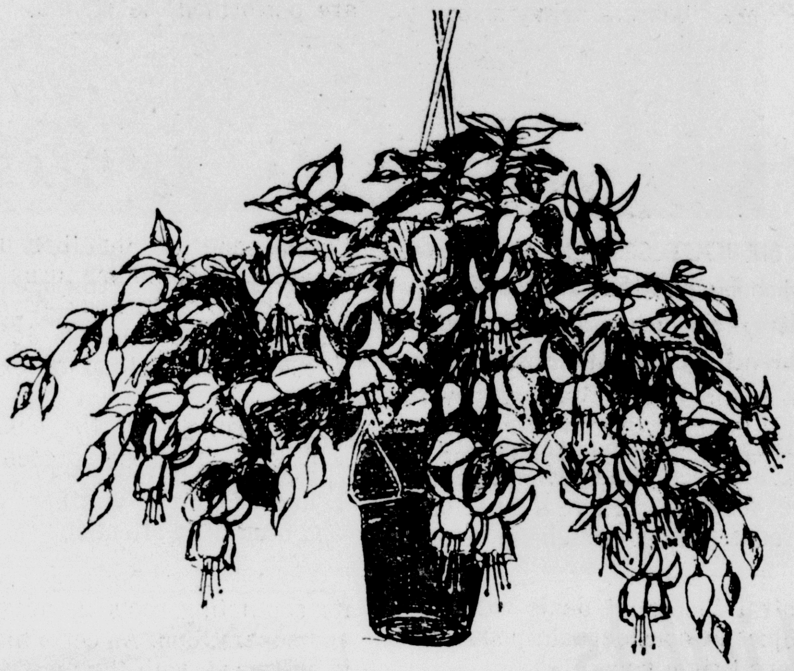
This interest in hanging baskets is reflected in the many varieties of suitable plants now available in local nurseries. There is also a large assortment of handsome containers to use.

Nurseries will have specimens already showing color. These can be taken home and their beauty enjoyed instantly.

TWO POPULAR plants for hanging basket use are Ivy Geraniums and Petunias.

Ivy Geranium's foliage is green and glossy, and during the summer months the pink, red, lavender or white flowers are a delight.

Petunias will tolerate sunnier locations and their prolific, continuous blooming habit will amaze you. The colors cover a wide range — from pure white, pink, rose and red shades to lavender, blue and violet hues.



FUCHSIAS ARE among the most popular hanging basket plants and can be found in a large number of varieties well suited to this kind of growth. (California Association of Nurserymen drawing)

BASKETS OF Tuberous Begonias and Fuchias are popular choices with Marinites.

Don't overlook Trailing Lantana, the popular lavender-blooming favorite. Or try one of the newer spreading Lantana forms, making certain it receives ample sun, and water. The bright colors — yellow, cerise, orange-red, white — are sure to please.

Parrot's Beak Lotus has soft, needle-like gray foliage and is highlighted by coppery-red blooms. It is another good choice for sunny spots.

In semi-shaded locations, use the brilliantly-marked Hanging Basket Coleus, or Impatiens (Sultanas).

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Plant Hibicus now for spectacular summer bloom. They like plenty of sun and water.

✓ Bedding plants for summer color should go in right away — some, such as Alyssum, Lobelia, Petunias and Marigolds will provide almost instant flowers.

✓ Snails and slugs are practically year-round garden pests, but can be controlled with bait or pellets.

✓ It's time to begin that lawn-water schedule.

✓ Enjoy summer harvests of vegetables by planting these now: Corn, beans, beets, carrots, cucumbers, radishes and squash.

✓ Deep watering and mulching of trees and shrubs is a good summer gardening practice.

Fencing Is A Must For Pools

For Safety And Privacy, Build With Cedar Boards

Fences are a must for home swimming pools to prevent young non-swimmers from wandering in at unguarded moments.

A handsome fence of wood around a pool also blocks too-cool breezes or dirt-laden winds, and, of course, lends privacy not afforded by a wire or chain fence.

A distinctive solid fence may be built of one-by-four-inch resawn western red cedar boards placed vertically on a frame of four-by-four-inch posts and two-by-four-inch stringers of Douglas fir.

FOR ACCENT, this is topped with three or four rows of horizontal one-by-two-inch spaced slats and a two-by-four-inch fir cap.

Fencing side and back yards offers areas for outdoor living and privacy, but many homeowners shy away from highly functional fences in front for fear of offending neighbors or appearing standoffish.

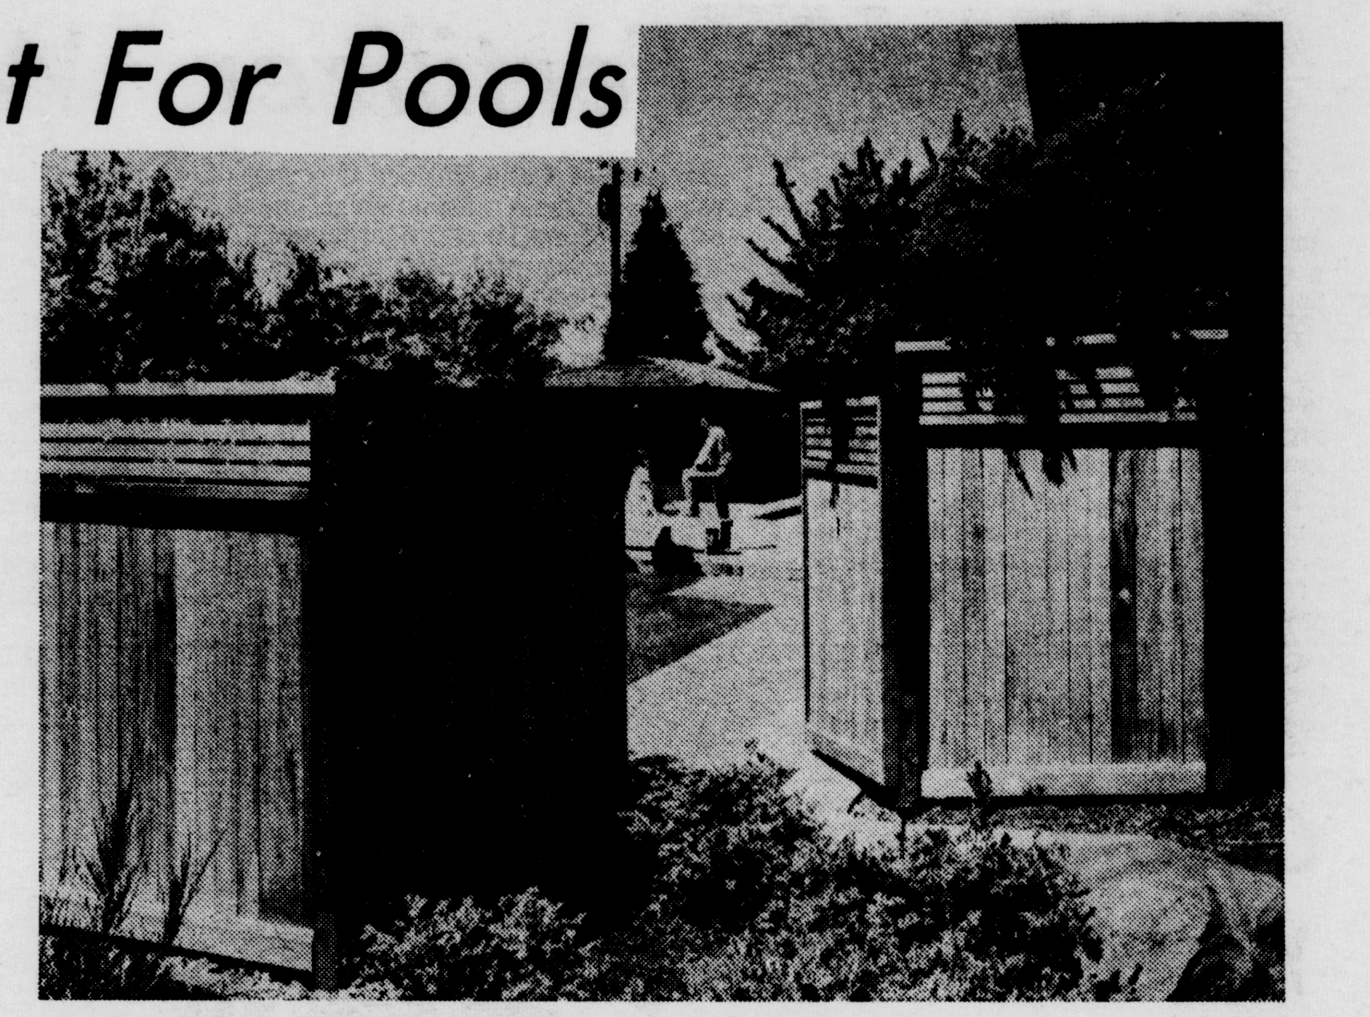
Front yard fences may be low, inconspicuous board-and-batten structures blended with plantings to keep out stray pets, or medium height slat screens to block the glances of passers-by.

A LOUVERED fence or screen combined with a deck can add valuable outdoor living space at the front entry or adjoining another room of the house. This can be especially effective for houses with deep setbacks and too-large lawns.

Western wood screens also may be used as divider "walls" to set off other living or play areas of the yard, much as a divider does inside the house. The screens also make a backdrop for shrubs or flowers.

A service area formed by adding screens out from a fence or the side of a house will hide the clutter of garbage cans, meter boxes, barbecue equipment and clothes lines for wet suits and towels.

A SCREEN OF louvered boards set vertically between two-by-four-inch stringers will block off views of the service area while providing needed air circulation.



A SIX-FOOT SCREEN to seclude and protect this swimming pool has been built of western woods — one-by-four-inch red cedar resawn boards, four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts, decorative two-by-four-inch fir caps over spaced one-by-two-inch slats. Low-maintenance gravel and bark planter areas extend to the street curb.

Douglas fir and western cedar are recommended woods to use for yard dividers or screens, either rough-sawn or surfaced.

Rough-sawn woods supply excellent texture, weather well and need little attention.

For a traditionally-styled house, where the fence is to be painted, surfaced wood is suggested.

Lighting Is More Than Lights, Says An Expert On The Subject

Light is light! Right?

Wrong!

You couldn't put enough light bulbs into your house to duplicate the light out-of-doors on a nice, bright, sunny day.

"But, you don't need that much light inside to do most of the things you do indoors," says Howard Haft who's been lighting American homes and offices for years. "What you need is proper lighting."

THE AVERAGE American home or office, according to Haft, doesn't contain enough lamp bulbs and fluorescent tubes to do the proper job of lighting. And most often what lighting exists is without pattern or much reason.

"With an absence of power and pattern, home color schemes for example, may not be as alive and vital as decorating conscious homemakers might like. And there's every chance that their families can be doing damage to their eyes as well," the president of Chicago-based Art Specialty Co. cautions.

Haft, who manufactures lighting for homes and offices, is ever conscious of the fact that indoor lighting which most enhances color and decorating is often not the most beneficial and effective for doing a variety of indoor tasks.

"FOR EXAMPLE," Haft says, "light itself produces color. When properly balanced, light and color compliment each other and are more effective than either one alone. You react to this at the theater and at motion pictures. Stage sets are painted and lighted to create atmosphere and glamor, intensifying your emotional responses. Color is made more vibrant with lights, and light itself becomes more colorful.

"The first things you look at on entering a room are the light sources. Windows by day, lamps by night. Next, you notice color, then the areas of color — shades and tints; then, composition, and finally, details such as furniture, fabrics, and ornaments.

"All these are influenced and modified by lighting."

"BUT," HE continued, "light changes the colors and the appearance of your home or office. At night the changes are even more marked under artificial light. And, you can control and plan the effect you want to achieve by proper placement, intensity, and color of the light you use."

But, if a home, like model apartments in new building developments, existed just to be looked at, decorator lighting would suffice, Haft says.

"But, we have to work in a home or office as well as look at it. So, we need utilitarian lighting to complement decorator lighting," the Art Specialty Co. president adds.

"FOR EXAMPLE, if a youngster has a desk in his room at which he does his homework, he needs special lighting there. The best lamp for that purpose is one which lights the work surface, with the actual light source being approximately 12 inches from that surface. The light source meaning tube or bulb should be shielded so as to prevent direct glare at eye level.

"An ideal unit for the purpose would be a two-tube fluorescent fixture with a metal shade. This provides good light, freedom from glare, and is in general a highly efficient and economical unit to serve the purpose."

It all seems simple enough, Haft notes, but there's also the problem of placement:

"IF YOUR youngster is right-handed, the lamp should be placed to the left of the work center of the desk, approximately 12 inches back from the front edge of the desk. For study purposes two 15-watt fluorescent tubes are an ideal light source, since light used for reading is reflected light, avoid direct incandescent lighting or high intensity lighting of any type — its like trying to read in the sun without sunglasses," Haft said.

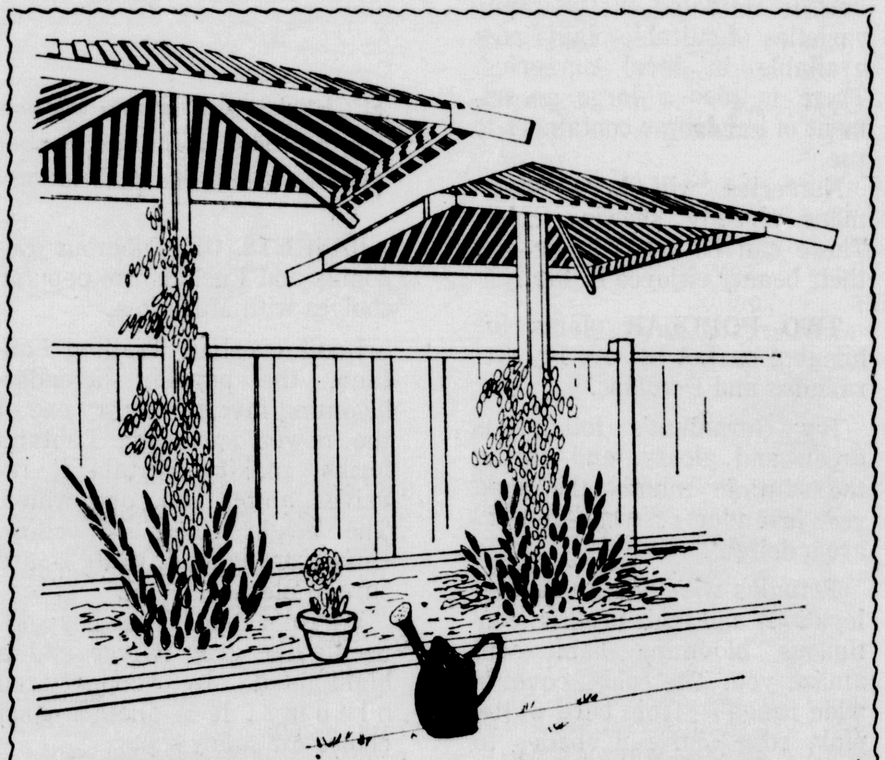
Studying is only one of the things people do at home.

"Think of all the other things, and you can see the variety of lighting that's required in the average home.

"Sure, light is important. But lighting is more important," he concluded.

Dowels Will Hold

A neat way to support bookshelves is to set dowels into wall paneling at right angles. Space three-quarter-inch dowels no more than 20 inches apart and lay shelves over them.



FLOWERS THAT shun the sun will thrive in the shade of graceful parasols built of wood. It's an excellent idea for small gardens where large trees are out of the question. (Homemakers Institute drawing)

Shade Plants With Parasols If Trees Aren't Practical

Some flowers show their true colors only when shielded from the sun's hot rays. Without shade, they may wilt and die.

For areas where the shade of trees or larger structures isn't possible, one or more western wood parasols will provide decorative cover and allow air circulation.

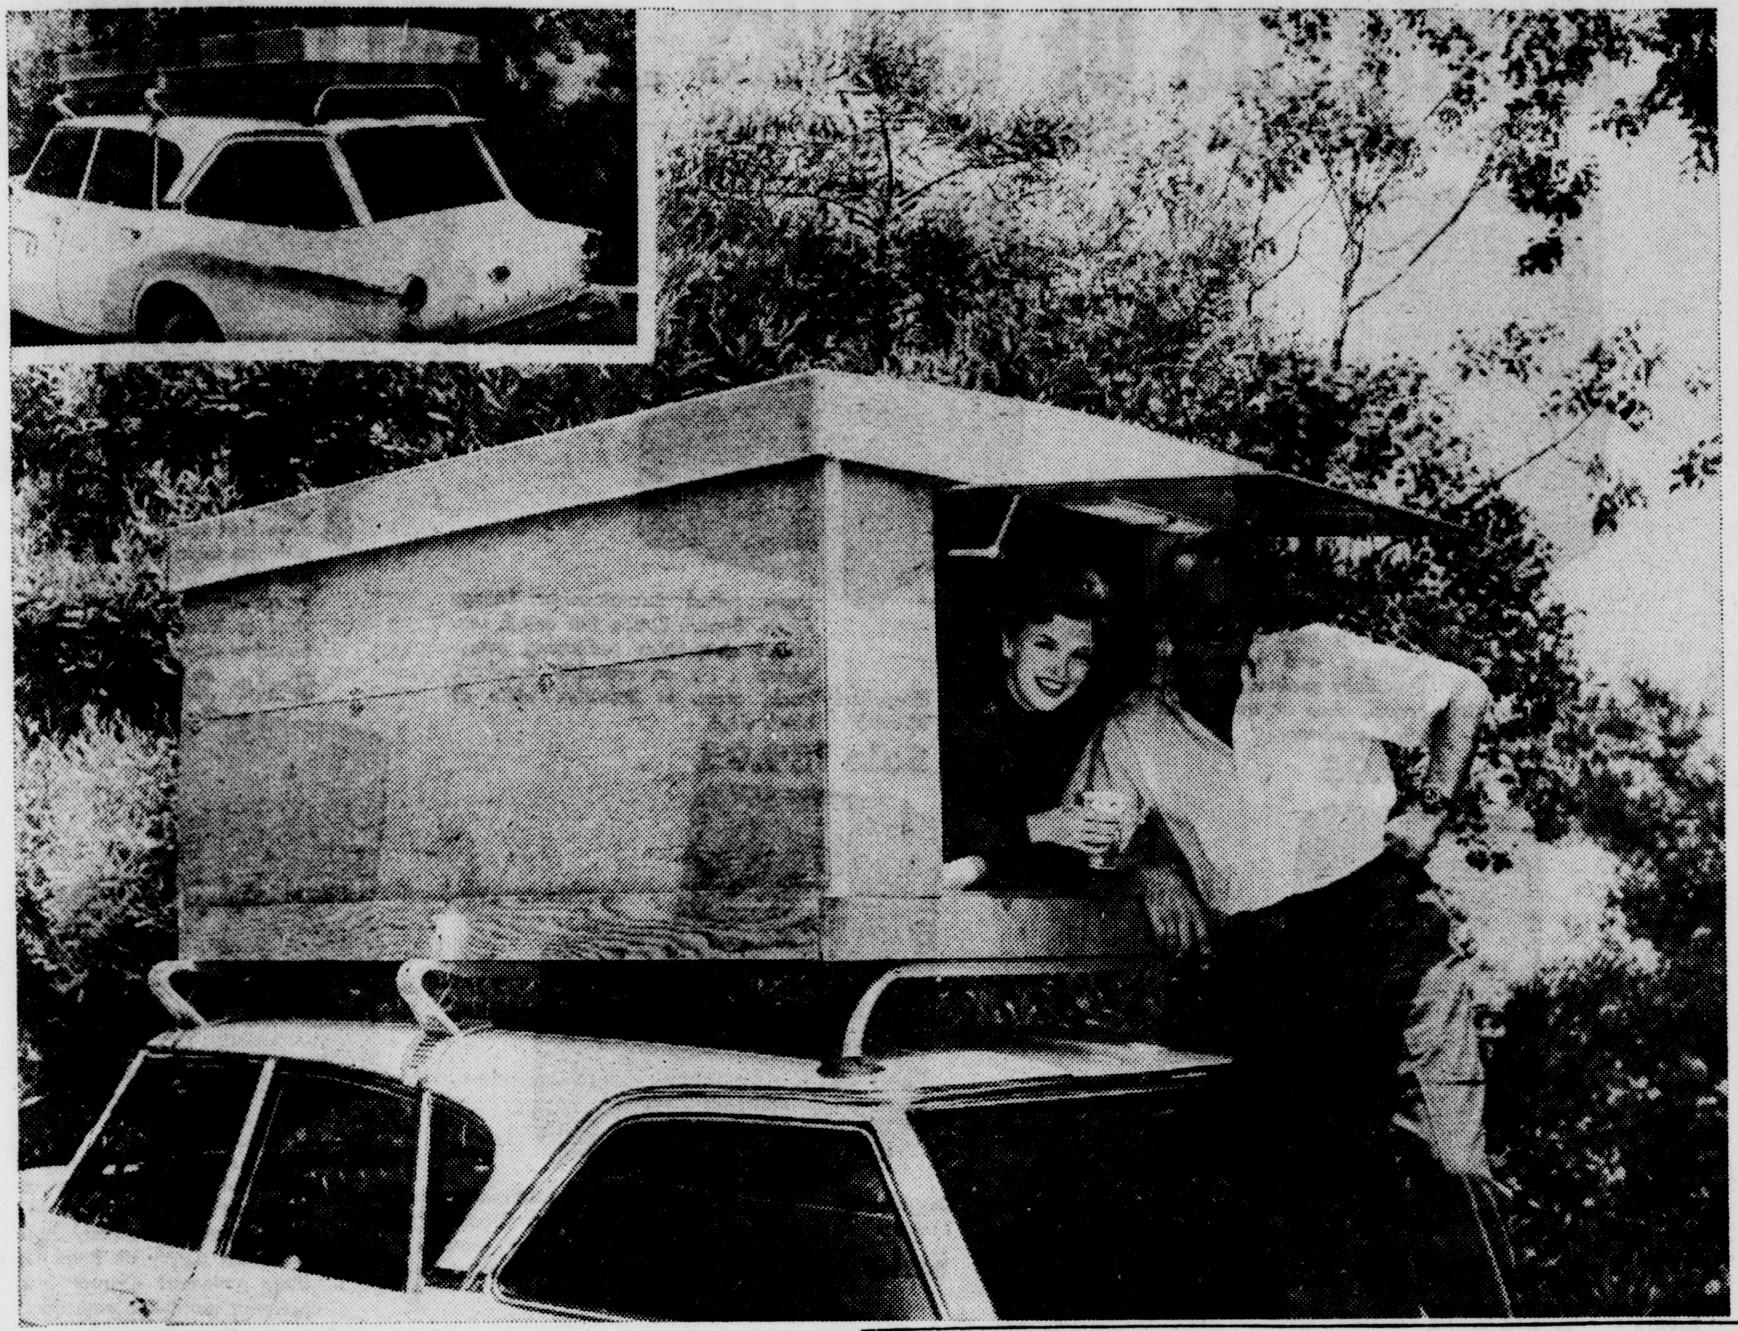
Combined with planter boxes and a fence of vertical boards for a backdrop, these seven- to nine-foot tall parasols lend new personality to a garden.

Another pleasant combination is a bench and fence, providing a shady, restful spot.

The craftsman can build the parasol of four-by-four-inch treated posts, one-by-three-inch rafters and laths. Favored woods are Douglas fir, western pine and western cedar.

Sink the posts below frost level, and rip intersecting slots in the top to hold the slanting hip rafters. Stringers of the same one-by-three-inch boards are nailed on under and about a foot from the tips of the four rafters, forming the square of the parasol.

The laths are nailed to rafters and stringers, with a four-inch overhang. Overall size of the parasols may be adjusted to coverage needed. In a group of three, interest is added if one is smaller than the others.



Handyman's Pages

THE CAR-TOPPER is a form of camping that has been winning new adherents in recent years. And the one shown here was built by a home handyman with the help of Car-Top Sleeper Pattern 281, available for $1 (plus another 25 cents if you want airmail service) from Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. On top the car, it is only eight inches high. But the sides unfold like an accordian to provide sleeping quarters that are wind, rain, dust and bug-proof, and with the aid of an air mattress or outdoor furniture pad quite comfortable. There are windows front and back for ventilation. And one person can erect it in less than two minutes. The materials, mostly plywood, are inexpensive, and the instructions are easy to understand and to follow.

Now Is Check-Up Time For Air Conditioners

It's spring and if you're going to be ready for summer you'd best heed your cleaning chores — particularly those involving air conditioning.

Whether you have a window unit or a central cooling system, probably it has been idle all winter. Taking the time now for a little preventive maintenance may save several days of sweltering discomfort when the summer sun shines hot.

A handy do-it-yourselfer can take care of routine maintenance but repairs should be handled only by professionals, advises G. E. Buchanan, general service manager of the York Division of Borg-Warner Corp.

WINDOW UNITS that have been stored all winter in other than their regular operating position should be placed "at the ready" on a level surface for 24 hours to allow the oil in the sealed system to drain back into the compressor, Buchanan suggests.

Dust all exposed surfaces, paying special attention to air inlets and outlets; wipe down plastic surfaces with soap and water, and oil according to manufacturer's instructions. Rusting does not often occur, but it can happen. Buchanan suggests cleaning and painting any exposed parts that may have rusted over the winter

It always is wise to test-run the unit on the floor before installing it. Choose a day when room temperature is in the 70s and outside temperature in the mid-60s and let the air conditioner run for five to 10 minutes. Note the cooling effectiveness and listen for unusual noises that may indicate the unit requires more extensive checking.

If the unit runs but does not cool, it usually means it has lost its charge of refrigerant and an authorized repairman should be called.

Air conditioners that have been left in the window over the winter also require attention.

MANY HOMES have central air conditioning with common duct work for heating and cooling. In this case, Buchanan recommends:

Reset dampers for air conditioning. Damper adjustment is required only if there are separate duct for the cool air.

See that air inlets and outlets, both indoors and out, are free from obstruction.

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where called for. Generally this is limited to fan motors and bearings.

Turn on the power for at least one day before you start the compressor. Run the fan only, with the cooling thermostat set high. In the compressors of many makes of air conditioners, power is required to prewarm and improve the lubricating qualities of the compressor oil.

If there is an auxiliary drain pan under the unit, be sure this pan is cleaned out and that the drain is open. Flush with a pitcher of water to check runoff because insects sometimes block drains.

Pick a day when outside temperatures are in the mid-60s for a test run. Shift the thermostat from "Heat" to "Cool" and run equipment for five or 10 minutes by dropping the thermostat to below room temperature. Listen well for any unusual noises, either indoors or out. If any unusual noises persist, call the dealer.

LectraBed

LectraBed adjusts to you — to give your body maximum comfort for sleeping, reading, TV watching, letter writing, sewing, hobby work, so many other things! All you do is press a button (on the palm-sized control at your side) for head-up position, feet-up position, combination head and feet-up position or level position. Built like the couches astronauts use, LectraBed will contour to the natural curves of your body and adjusts smoothly to the exact position you choose.

BROWN MOTORS, INC., is the new name of your Marin County Fiat Dealer. Same location. Same fine cars, but a new name.

We'd like to meet you and have you get to know us and our cars. The following chart is printed to help you make a choice on your next car.

Charts are valuable but the real comparison is the way the cars drive. And that's what we'd like you to do. Drive ours and all the others. Then decide.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Bob Hope will have six specials on the NBC air in 1971-72. He's been on the tube since 1950; before that on radio beginning in 1938.

The first project announced for "The New CBS Friday Movies," due in the fall as a made-for-video film series, is Arthur Hailey's adaptation of his "Runway Zero 8," story, dealing with trying to land an airliner whose pilot and co-pilot have become ill. Hailey is author of the best-selling novel, "Airport."

"Make Your Own Kind of Music" is a summer series that NBC will introduce July 6 — Tuesdays from 8 to 9 p.m. — with the brother-sister team, the Carpenters, as starring hosts with their singing and instrumental work. Regulars also will be the Doodletown Pipers and singer Mark Lindsay. There will be a major musical guest star and rotating guest comedians weekly.

"The Six Wives of Henry VIII" will be aired by CBS as a series of six 90-minute dramas about the British monarch's marital problems. The first, "Catherine of Aragon," will be broadcast Aug. 1 at 9:30 p.m. The other five will be on consecutive Sundays through Sept. 5. Keith Michell, who just closed on Broadway as co-star of "Abelard and Heloise," plays Henry in this made-in-Britain series.

The "NBC World Premiere Movie" series for the coming season will include "The Harness," based on a John Steinbeck story and starring Lorne "Bonanza" Greene and Julie Sommars. Unmarried young woman and her son complicate the life of a farmer with an invalid wife.

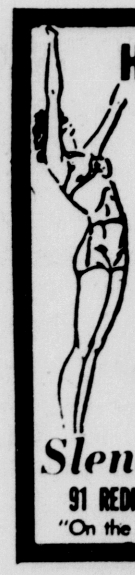
Lively June On KQED

In what is generally accepted as the season of television reruns, the public Broadcasting Service will offer a "third season" of summer programming with five new series coming to KQED (Channel 9).

"Firing Line" with William F. Buckely — new productions now seen exclusively on noncommercial television — and 12 new hour-long "Boston Pops" shows, with Arthur Fiedler conducting the famed Pops section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, are among the summer program highlights.

Other new shows beginning in June include: "Boboquivari," a youth-oriented music series with performers such as Roberta Flack, Tim buckley and Freddie King; "Just Jazz," a 10-part concert series with leading jazz artists; and "Artists in America," 11 one-hour programs depicting the life-style and work of creative people in fields ranging from art and music to literature and the theater.



HOW DO YOU SHAPE UP?

Hips, Waistline and tummy "stretched" out of shape!! Thighs too large!! Lax, underexercised muscles don't hold you in. Start today to shape up for the swim suit season.

Marin Poets' Corner

A MORNING WALK

The garden path is soft with blossoms
Blown from the trees in last night's storm,
My slippered feet are lightly cushioned
As I walk among the fragrant scents
Of California's rain-greened spring.

I walk alone beneath the branches
Bent heavy with buds and new leaves,
Content with pleasant recollections
Of your gentleness; after the tempest,
My mind has been blessed with a rainbow.

MILL VALLEY MARVIN JOE SHUCK

PLANNING COMMISSION MEETING

Down the middle aisle he strode
Between the factions;
Young, assailable,
Shoulders tight with courage,
Although the time and place
Of desecration
Had been approved, before
By unpliant men, disapproving
Youth itself.
His voice, like a seed,
Spoke for the future,
"Why don't you just plant trees?"

LARKSPUR MURIEL S. SHORT

THE GOLDEN GATE DROP

When things get too big for you,
And you're at the very end —
LOOK UP!
Open your heart all the way,
And watch the moonbeams play;Don't drift along
the roads of tomorrow
Until you have made the sun shine today;
And then some day as you sift the ashes,
And soot gets in your eyes,
LOOK UP!
Thank you, dear God, for showing me the way.

SAN RAFAEL JOSEPH TRICOMO

On The Stereo Scene—

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

The ability to make voters laugh by telling a joke or making a humorous comparison has always been a strong point of the successful politician. But he wants those voters to laugh with him, not at him.

And no matter how careful a politician may be in making campaign speeches or on other occasions, his words can be used to poke fun at him if they are taken out of context by a clever technician.

Alen Robin, who wrote "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch" several years ago, has surfaced again to record "Supershrink" (Janus JXS 7001).

In this go-around, Robin puts President Richard M. Nixon, Vice President Spiro Agnew, Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller, Mayors John V. Lindsay and Richard Daley, Sen. Strom Thurmond and columnist William Buckley Jr. on the psychiatric couch.

Robin wins a lot of laughs by using his victims' actual words to form answers to his loaded questions. Thus, he gets President Nixon to say he will confer with Napoleon at Camp David on the morrow, Governor Reagan to say he is a horse, and Governor Rockefeller to claim he is Pancho Villa.

He even managed to make Buckley, a take-charge guy, sound confused.

Robin's spoofery is fast-moving with no dull moments, but it is somewhat frightening to think of the damage some malicious person might inflict by misuse of tape recordings.

"THE CREDIBILITY Gap Presents Woodschtick" (Capitol ST-681) is another satirical album which shoots arrows at politicians. The Gap is not so charitable as Alen Robin. In one sequence, Nixon is depicted as a man who doesn't understand the meaning of the word "lose." Nixon's mimic at times sounds like the President but more often like Jimmy Stewart.

One skit, which involves Sen. Edward Kennedy at Chappaquiddick, is conceived in bad taste and is not very amusing.

TAPE DECK — "A Kaleidoscope of Stereo Sound" (A&M W-72) spreads the talent of Herb Alpert's recording company over a three-hour listening period on this Ampex tape release which American Airlines uses on its flights. In addition to Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, the tape includes performances by Burt Bacharach, The Carpenters, Sergio Mendes and Brasil '66, Paul Desmond, Liza Minelli, The Sandpipers, West Montgomery, Antonio Carlos Jobin, Miguel Rios, Evie Sands, Pisano and Ruff, and Julius Wechter and The Baja Marimba Band.

Eight-track cartridge: Guitars are featured on two recent auto decks. "For the Good Things" (RCA Victor PS8-1663) features Chet Atkins picking such tunes as "Snowbird" and the theme from "Love Story."
